Winner Moores kissed by wife: 'new era'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives led by Premier Frank Moores, 39, scored a landslide victory over the Liberals in Friday's Newfoundland election, winning 33 of 42 legislature seats.

The Liberals, who had won six straight provincial elections with ease until last October's near-saw-off, took the other nine seats.

The outcome was seen as a return to political stability in this province of 525,000, where one political crisis followed another after the indecisive Oct. 28 election.

The Conservatives bowled over the opposition from St. John's in the southeast to Labrador in the northwest to score their first majority victory in the 23 years since Newfoundland became a Canadian province.

Newfoundland had been a bastion of Liberalism from Confederation in 1949 until last October's election, which saw former premier Joey Smallwood's forces badly battered. But that battering wasn't enough to give Moores' Conservatives a majority in the 42-seat house.

The fears of many Newfoundlanders that Friday's vote would be a rerun of the October "cliff-hanger" were quickly dispelled as the Conservatives scored victories in traditional Liberal ground as well as PC ridings.

Two hours after the polls closed, all of Moores' cabinet members had been elected or were leading while only two

Bill 88 Shelved

'I've accomplished what I wanted . . . by getting the commitment from the two—the building trades and the federation'

Bill 88 went down for the count Friday in what is being hailed in some quarters as a clearcut victory for labor over the provincial government.

But provincial Labor Minister James Chabot says he hasn't backed down at all, that he will resurrect the piece of potentially dangerous legislation if the construction unions haven't shaped up as promised by the end of this year.

Chabot said he decided to let the bill die on the order paper because he was impressed by the pledge of the unions to conduct a study of inter-union rivalry and seek a solution.

While this was somewhat less than he had originally demanded, Chabot said he is convinced labor means business and that there will be no more trouble this year at job sites.

Situation Modified

"You have to have faith in people," he told the Colonist, "and I think I have reason to have faith in both the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council and the B.C. Federation of Labor in this case."

Some political sources say Chabot's move can't be described as anything but a retreat. Their reactions range from "astounding back-off," to "compromise of a compromise."

Originally, Chabot had introduced Bill 88 as an amendment to the Trade Unions Act to remove restrictive clauses from agreements negotiated with employers. He said he wanted to end tight affiliation clauses that were keeping some unions off construction sites.

Last Tuesday he offered a compromise proposal that modified the situation a bit. He gave the 60,000-member building trades council a deadline of noon Friday to accept or reject.

When the deadline arrived he granted a two-hour extension and it wasn't until after 4:30 p.m. that he announced his decision.

The result was twofold: Immediately obvious was the avoidance of what appeared an almost certain confrontation between labor and government. Less noticeable but there just the same, is a slight cooling of election talk.

Confrontation Fear

Premier Bennett has made it clear before that he wouldn't hesitate to go to the people over a labor confrontation. But it is also known in the current case that not all government backbenchers were happy about Bill 88.

Some were said to fear confrontation because of the growing number of people such as teachers, public employees and others taking a stand against restrictive legislation.

Meeting at the same time were officers of the building trades council. Later officers of both met together, as they had the day before.

The 155,000-member federation had moved quickly to make sure the construction unions didn't act on their own. A united front was wanted and when Chabot received a telegram announcing the final decision, it was signed by both Jim Kinnaird, president of the council and George Johnston, president of the federation.

They said in the telegram many hours had been spent looking for recommendations Chabot would find satisfactory.

"This is, of course, an extremely complex problem affecting building trades unions and other unions in a variety of ways," the telegram said. "The building trades council does not have the power or the right to make a commitment without first having an opportunity for its affiliates to consult with their membership."

"Clearly, this could not be accomplished by today. We cannot emphasize strongly enough that the specific pro-

CONGERS, N.Y. (AP) — A freight train rammed into a school bus at a rural grade crossing Friday killing three high school pupils and injuring 47 persons, eight of them critically. Bus wreckage was scattered along the track for quarter of a mile.

An investigation is attempting to determine initially whether the bus had stopped at the crossing.

London Takes Over in Belfast

Give Peace a Chance Heath Plea to Ulster

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fresh from announcing the imposition of direct rule by his Westminster government over turbulent Northern Ireland, appealed Friday night for Ulstermen of all religions to regard the British move as "a chance for peace."

Heath made his appeal in a television broadcast as angry militants of the majority Protestant community in Ulster threatened intensive — though for the time being peaceful — protests against suspension of the semi-autonomous Northern Ireland government.

The British Army alerted 4,000 additional troops in case of violence in Ulster where there already are 14,500 British soldiers and where 286 persons have died in violence in the last 32 months.

In the Irish Republic, Prime Minister Jack Lynch gave cautious approval to the British action by announcing the return to London of the Dublin ambassador, recalled after the Jan. 30 killing of 13 civilians during a demonstration in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city.

The underground Irish Republican Army rejected the British initiative and promised a continuation of its guerrilla campaign.

But less extreme Roman Catholic politicians in the North promised serious consideration of Heath's program, which provides for administration of Northern Ireland by a British minister, aided by a commission made up of elements representing all sections of the community.

The British government's plan, announced in the House of Commons by Heath, also provides for eliminating internment of suspected IRA supporters in Northern Ireland, provided no new terrorism results and for plebiscites to test Northern Ireland sentiments on the question of remaining part of the United Kingdom or joining the republic to the south.

There are about one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics in the North.

Lynch expressed belief that the minority group in Ulster will accept the opportunity for peace presented by the Heath initiative and will be encouraged "in the right direction."

But Rev. Ian Paisley, a leader of militant Ulster Protestants, denounced what he termed the British government's failure to bring about complete integration of Northern Ireland with the rest of the United Kingdom.

Premier Brian Faulkner, though indignantly rejecting a London takeover of his Northern Ireland government's security powers, combined the resignation of himself and his cabinet with an appeal for order and dignity among Protestants in the face of direct rule.

Trudeau Would Take Connally 'for a Ride'

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday night Canada did not need enemies when it had friends like U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Trudeau made the comment, his second swipe at Connally in two days, when the host of a television hotline program asked about President Nixon's statement earlier in the day that trade talks with Canada were deadlocked because it was harder to negotiate with friends than with enemies.

"I didn't think we were hard to get along with, but I think we feel the same way ever since last August when they brought in these very tough measures against their friends and enemies alike.

"We felt that with friends like Secretary Connally, who needs enemies. We're tough negotiators, I suppose, and so are they," Trudeau said.

He said he was looking forward "very much" to Nixon's April visit to Canada, when trade is expected to be the main subject of discussion. After more than a year's negotiation, Connally vetoed a proposed package of revised trade arrangements with Canada on Feb. 9. No date has been set for a new round of talks.

When the moderator asked if Trudeau was going to "be tough" with Nixon, Trudeau's only reply was: "It will be a very pleasant visit, I'm sure."

He said he did not know if Connally would accompany Nixon, but "he would be very welcome if he comes. We would bring him for a drive . . . take him for a ride," Trudeau said with a smile.

On another question, Trudeau said the government was exercising "royal prerogative" in commuting to life sentences the death penalties of eight persons convicted of capital murder.

"If we did not exercise the royal prerogative, people

'Basic Disagreements'—Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon said Friday "some very basic disagreements" may remain between Canada and the United States after his April 13-14 talks with Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa.

Nixon told an impromptu White House news conference:

"I think it is very helpful that at this point we are meeting with our friends from Canada, although we will find that we have some very basic disagreements, probably, after the meeting as before."

From prior meetings with the prime minister, Nixon said he feels Trudeau "has some very constructive ideas to suggest."

Referring to deadlocked trade negotiations between the two countries, the president said it sometimes seems that the U.S. had more problems negotiating with its friends than with its adversaries.

Hanoi Filibuster Blamed by U.S.

Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said Friday that he ordered suspension of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris to break a 3½-year "filibuster" by the North Vietnamese.

"They refuse to negotiate seriously," he told a press conference. "They use the talks for the purpose of propaganda while we have been trying to seek peace."

But Nixon emphasized his readiness to resume the talks, either publicly or in secret channels, when Hanoi decides to negotiate seriously. Other press conference points:

● In Vietnam "an ominous enemy buildup continues," and communist attacks in the dry season are still expected.

● In the strategic arms limitation talks, the U.S. and Soviet Union are agreed in principle but "still very far apart on some fundamental issues — whether or not SLBMs (submarine-launched ballistic missiles) should be included (in an agreement), matters of that sort," Nixon said.

Silver Buck Will Cost A Mint

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint will issue a silver dollar dated 1972 for coin collectors, the finance department announced Friday. It will cost $3.

The coin will be double-struck to give sharper images, and will be made from an alloy of fine silver. Regular "silver" dollars are mainly nickel now, and smaller than they used to be, because of rising cost of silver.

Heart Surgery Delayed Fourth Time

The Wait Goes On

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

A 42-year-old Saanich man was told for the fourth time Friday that the open-heart surgery he is awaiting at Vancouver General Hospital has been postponed.

Len Ainey, 4055 Magdelin, had just got the word from his doctor when he was contacted by the Colonist to inquire whether the surgery scheduled for next week was still on the hospital books.

He said he had been told that the surgery now will be April 2 or April 23 — and both bookings are tentative.

"If anything, I expect it will be the 23rd," he stated. "I was not given a reason for this postponement but I anticipate persons more ill than I have had to be given priority."

He said he had made arrangements to be in Vancouver next week, including finding a housekeeper to look after the three children while he and Mrs. Ainey were away.

He has been off work for about 18 months, with his heart's pumping capacity declining after two veins on its outer wall became obstructed. The operation would involve grafting a vein over the obstructed segments, thus restoring a blood supply to the heart's muscles.

The Aineys have daughters aged 15 and 18 and a son, 8.

His heart problems were

home affairs and now chief of a vocal new movement called Vanguard, greeted Heath's Commons statement with a call for a two-day protest strike, beginning Monday, by employees throughout Northern Ireland, including policemen.

Later, Craig was asked in a television interview whether he believed civil war might break out.

"We believe that unless we could give our people a new sense of confidence and purpose, civil war could easily develop but we want to avoid that," he said.

"I realize the daunting nature of my task," said the 53-year-old former leader of the Commons, a son of the landed gentry.

The British prime minister, making one of his most memorable TV appearances since assuming power in 1970, insisted there will be no letup in Britain's fight against terrorism in the six Ulster counties.

Underlining this was his readiness to send additional British troops to Northern Ireland if more trouble develops.

Promising more economic aid for bomb-battered Northern Ireland, Heath told Ulstermen: "You have suffered enough."

But in Belfast, Craig told a news conference he expects 185,000 Ulster workers to join the planned protest strike.

"The British government has surrendered to terrorist violence," Craig charged.

Even as he spoke, thousands of Protestant workers from Belfast shipyards were parading peacefully to city hall in protest against the Heath move.

Coinciding with the shipworkers' protest march in downtown Belfast, there was another demonstration of Protestant anger at the city's airport, where ground workers refused to refuel aircraft.

Chabot Drops Bill 88

posals which you presented to the building trades council will not solve the problems which concern you.

"Nor do they provide even minimal levels of protection to union members."

Then came the main point of the telegram.

"Accordingly, we urge you to withhold any further action for a reasonable period of time to enable us to study the problem in detail to enable our affiliates to consult their membership and to ensure that a workable solution to these problems is developed.

"We give a personal and collective commitment that such a study will be given top priority," the telegram said.

It concluded: "In the interest of preserving industrial peace at such a critical time in the midst of serious negotiations in the construction industry, we ask you to recognize the desirability of such a course of action."

"We will be prepared to begin discussions and study immediately upon receipt of a favorable reply."

Chabot told reporters the personal and collective commitment of labor had impressed him and that "I feel under the circumstances it is only right Bill 88 should be allowed to die on the order paper."

He felt such a study could resolve the critical problems existing and would achieve what he had sought through the compromise proposal.

The four-part proposal called on the unions to immediately give up protective clauses on sub-contracting to allow other unions on to construction sites, to permit non-affiliated unions to deliver to the sites, that they work with government and management to complete a "hot cargo" study by Dec. 31, and that agreement be reached on current jurisdictional disputes.

Chabot said Friday he was sure the unions would abide by their word and that such unions not affiliated with the building trades council as the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers and the International Woodworkers of America, would not be harassed where construction jobs were concerned.

"I've accomplished what I wanted to accomplish," he said, "by getting the commitment from the two the building trades and the federation.

"I think this is a major step forward to labor peace in B.C."

While this clears up the trouble with Bill 88 for the time being, the construction front could be boiling with another problem before every long.

Negotiations with the Construction Labor Relations Association have made little headway and contracts for all unions expire March 31.

would say we were downgrading the monarchy," he said.

After the television interview, the prime minister ended his two-day tour of southern Ontario and returned to the nation's capital.

Earlier Friday, Trudeau said in Toronto the government's bilingualism policy did not threaten the identity of other ethnic groups.

In a speech to a luncheon of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Trudeau said "needless fears" were being raised about the government's policy proclaiming English and French as equal official languages in Canada.

"If the bilingualism policy is misunderstood or misrepresented it can lead to needless fears," he said. "our language policy, unfortunately, has been attacked by some persons with this aim in mind.

"Those who pursue this destructive line of thought view bilingualism not as a door to opportunity for Canadians who wish to broaden their perspective of Canada, but as a barrier to their own understanding, at the expense of others.

"The most charitable description of these views is that they are mistaken.

"The official designation of a second language is, indirectly, a support for the cultivation and use of many languages. It is an invitation to explore the delights of many cultures, for it denies that any one tongue or culture is preferable to all others."

He said the two official languages were chosen for "a most practical, down-to-earth reason — the overwhelming number of Canadians use either French or English for their communications."

He said the "multiculturalism policy" introduced last fall by the government amply and clearly demonstrated" there was no intention to downgrade ethnic groups other than English and French.

Moores, who followed returns in Corner Brook, said the outcome "shows the people of Newfoundland want a new era of politics."

Rather than a party vote, he said, the result was "a vote of confidence in individuals who have been really slugging it out and want to do a job."

Among those to cave in under the Conservative landslide was the controversial Tom Burgess, a former Liberal, former New Labrador party leader and Former Independent Liberal, who was back in the Liberal fold for this election.

Burgess was defeated in Labrador West by a Conservative. He won the seat as NL leader in the October election and, for a time, it appeared he might hold the balance of power in the legislature. He subsequently switched to the Liberals, but this move was offset by the resignation of two Liberal members.

"The people just got tired of the look of us they were bored," Smallwood said after the Conservative victory.

Smallwood, 71, who was not a candidate, said in a brief interview Liberal leader Roberts probably would be "quite pleased" with the results.

"He knows that history repeats itself, as it has a habit of doing. The PCs will be out after one term and the Liberals will return to power for another 12 or 14 years."

No Progress In Baseball Discussions

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Representatives of major league baseball players and club owners met for 1½ hours Friday, but made no progress toward settling differences over the players' benefit plan.

John Gaherin, the owners' negotiator, said meetings would continue privately in hopes of reaching an agreement before a March 31 strike deadline set by the Major League Players Association.

The Wait

first diagnosed in 1964 and he has since had two "attacks." The chances of recovery decline with each "attack."

The operation first scheduled for early '71 was once scheduled for last July 31, then was put off to the end of February, when he was told he would have to wait until the last week of March.

"I'm not deteriorating physically — it's my mental attitude," said Airey. "No one wants to do any screaming but if enough of us would squeak perhaps something would be done."

The waiting lists for open-heart surgery at Vancouver General have been critized by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, who has asked the hospital for a list of each patient awaiting such an operation.

Loffmark also was annoyed by the hospital and its heart surgeons performing such an operation on a woman from Sparks, Nev., while the provincial government sent a Richmond man to Montreal Heart Institute for similar life saving treatment.

High-Flying Pain

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What advice do you have to offset the terrific oppression of high altitude flying?

It was recently my misfortune to have to fly in a jet at 35,000 feet. I thought my eardrums were about to split. I cupped by hands over my ears and someone who saw this told me to open by mouth which helped to some extent.

Also I tore strips of tissue and stuffed my ears, but for the duration of the flight I was completely shaken and trembling. Would rubber earstoppers help? Or make the situation worse? — J.M.

The pain of a variation in pressure can make one miserable indeed; fortunately, it does not bother most people on plane flights these days, because cabins are pressurized, and as the plane rises (or descends) the pressure is adjusted to altitude.

But unfortunately for some folks, there can be some variations in pressure in spite of the attempt to keep pressure steady. What probably happened in your case was that your ears were unable to adjust to such changes as occurred.

There is a tiny tube (the Eustachian tube) about an inch and a half long, which runs between the inner ear and the back of the throat. It is of very small diameter, but it serves to keep pressure the same both inside and outside the eardrum.

If this tube is constricted in some manner, it takes longer for the pressure to equalize. Then pressure builds up on the eardrum.

Yawning, or swallowing, as well as just opening the mouth, causes movement of the throat muscles, and this very often can help to dilate the inner end of the Eustachian tubes, allowing more air to pass through the tube and equalize the pressure. Twenty years or so ago, before pressurizing of cabins had developed to the present state, passengers were routinely given gum to chew because the chewing and swallowing often helped open the Eustachian tubes. (Maybe the chewing helped the nerves of people who were still apprehensive about flying.)

But yawning and swallowing will do as much good without the gum.

However, assuming that the inner opening of the Eustachian tubes are constricted (perhaps from some infection that you didn't much notice at the time) an ear specialist can dilate them.

Possibly the use of a nose drop to shrink the tissues will help. The drops would be put into the nose and the head cocked back, and when you feel the solution in the back of the throat, tip the head to one side and then the other, to get the solution out toward the openings of the tubes.

If the trouble persists in future flights, have an ear specialist do some checking.

Help us improve the World Environment.

This June, more than 130 countries will meet in Stockholm for the first United Nations Conference on the Human Environment.

We want your help to ensure that the views of Canadians are known to those who must establish the official position our delegation takes at the conference.

Over the past year, Canada has been represented on a UN Committee preparing for the conference. The result is a UN Action Plan for international co-operation against pollution which is being submitted to the nations which will participate at Stockholm.

Canada will gather public opinion on the plan in two ways: 1) a national committee with broad representation from our society is studying the Plan and offering comments and 2) a series of public meetings across the country is seeking advice from the interested public. The combined comments and advice will be used to guide our delegates.

You can take part. Simply forward the coupon in this advertisement to the address given. Details of the Action Plan will be sent to you along with information on how you can present your views.

Regional Consultations: You are invited to attend one of the public meetings and speak on your own proposal. Your hearing will be held:

Guerrillas Threat Fiat-Boss Executi

BUENOS AIRES — Kidnappers of Fiat company top executive Oberdan Sallustro announced he will be executed within 48 hours unless a series of seven ransom demands, including payment of $1 million in school supplies are met.

The demands were listed in a communique which also demanded that 50 inprisoned Argentine guerrillas be flown to Algeria.

The kidnappers said the 56-year-old Sallustro had been tried by "popular justice" on a series of charges and that "he will be executed by a firing squad unless the demands are met."

Wallace Stirs Crowd With Tax 'Message'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — With roars, whistles and the rhythmic stamping of feet drowning out chants of protest, Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace launched his presidential campaign in the north, igniting his followers in the Wisconsin primary with the same ardor that swept him to a one-sided victory in Florida a little more than a week ago.

Virtually shunning the busing issue which roiled up a 42-per cent vote for him in Florida, Wallace told nearly 6,000 frenzied supporters at a massive rally Thursday night that he had a second "message" for President Nixon — tax relief before the end of 1972.

Even before Wallace spoke there were strong indications that taxes would become the dominant issue of the Wisconsin primary April 4 as busing was the major controversy in Florida.

Speaking at a news conference earlier Thursday, Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota charged that the Wallace "phenomenon represents the failure of liberalism.

We gave him his opening," McGovern said. "He didn't devise the American tax structure. That was done by the so-called liberals."

Castigating bureaucratic waste, foreign aid and "welfare loafers and chislers," Wallace drew ovation after ovation.

But in the cold night outside, demonstrators peacefully circled the sidewalk, chanting "if you like Hitler, you like Wallace" and "we want Wallace with a rope around his neck."

At a sparsely-attended airport news conference, New York Mayor John Lindsay took up the chant — proposing that Congress adopt emergency tax relief for property owners before April 15.

McGovern went on to say that Nixon and Wallace might have a "deal" to split the Democrats. "I wouldn't rule it out. They're both sustaining the same fears."

Filing under the deadline were Hubert Humphrey, who joins Muskie and Wallace in a three-way race, for the Democrats and Nixon and Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio for the Republicans.

Wrong Clamps Death Cause

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Jean-Paul Drouin testified Friday that a mix-up in stomach clamps he used in performing three obesity operations led to his error in connecting wrong sections of the small intestines.

The errors were committed on three persons in operations May 26 and May 27 last year. All three patients later died.

Giving evidence for the second day in a coroner's inquest into the death of one of the three, Mrs. Denise Seguin of Hull, Que., Drouin repeated that he had changed his procedure in the operation designed to cure overweight.

"I was going in much deeper in the belly," he told Dr. H. B. Cotnam and a five-member jury.

"The only explanation I can give is that there was a mix-up in the clamps."

Drouin said he hoped he would have the opportunity later in the inquest to show that the surgical errors were not the cause of death in any of the three cases.

He said he discovered his error after reading the pathologist's report in the death of Roger Maranger of Thurso, Que., one of the three patients.

Maranger, operated on May 27, 1971, died in Montreal Hospital nine days later.

Drouin said Maranger would not follow prescribed treatment while in hospital. A tube fitted into his stomach to prevent vomiting was removed by the patient several times and there were instances when he refused to have it reinserted.

Cause of his death was vomit in the lungs.

The Desperate Search

PRIME MINISTER EDWARD HEATH, strongly backed by the leader of the Labor Opposition, Harold Wilson, has taken the first daring steps towards what he hopes — along with all moderates — will be a settlement of the dispute which has so cruelly hurt Northern Ireland.

London, according to the Heath formula, will now assume direct control of Northern Ireland affairs. Ulster's provincial government will be in a state of suspended animation for a year. This is no usurpation of power; for the ultimate responsibility has always been in London.

It would be quite wrong, therefore, to denounce this particular move as one of unwarranted and uninvited interference — although, of course, it will be.

Ulster's Premier Brian Faulkner had agreed to all the other terms of Mr. Heath's formula — relaxation of internment of terrorist suspects, periodical plebiscites on the question of union with the Irish Republic, and the general rehabilitation of the six counties which comprise Ulster. He balked only at relinquishing his and his government's responsibility, holding acceptance a surrender to terror and an admission of failure. But if there was any acceptable alternative to London's assuming control in the circumstances, not even the government at Dublin admits it.

Unhappily, the more radical Protestants do not agree. Although Mr. Faulkner has joined one of their leaders, the Rev. Ian Paisley, in urging restraint — "Use your heads, not your fists" — William Craig, of the extremist Vanguard movement, has warned: "I cannot exclude the possibility of violence."

He insists that Mr. Heath's policy is one of appeasement in the face of threats and terror. And first reactions in Belfast seemed to indicate he had strong public support.

Most depressing aspect of the situation, however, is the repetition of the Irish Republican Army (an outlawed organization not to be confused with the Irish Republic's regular forces) of a vow to drive all British troops out of Ulster and unite the island by force.

It is this dangerous intransigence rather than the suspicion of surrender on Mr. Heath's part that is more likely to inspire reprisals by the Ulster Protestants that could lead to new and greater agonies.

The two most encouraging developments — apart from Mr. Heath's courageous compromise — is the sympathetic response of all political parties in the Irish Republic and the fact that William Whitelaw will be the new minister for Ulster's affairs in the United Kingdom cabinet. This is a man of great political ingenuity, tact, humor and courage. He has been a right hand man of Mr. Heath as Tory whip and House leader. He was, in the words of a colleague, "too valuable a lieutenant to be wasted in a ministry."

It is this man, more than any other, and the commission of Ulstermen of both dominant religious persuasions that will advise him, who will determine the destiny of a small corner of a land which has had more than its share of suffering. His search for peace in the direction Mr. Heath has pointed has about it an element of desperation. For without the co-operation of the moderates, the help of the government of the Irish Republic, and the restraint of the radicals it will be hard to find.

The next few days — even hours — should determine whether Ulster is to know the tranquillity that comes of reason or the turmoil of unrestrained fanaticism.

Shifting Pattern in the East

THERE IS SOME INTERESTING speculation abroad about the continuing repercussions from President Richard Nixon's visit to Peking. No one pretends to know precisely what he expected to accomplish, but his example has set in motion diplomatic exchanges and skirmishes in unexpected places.

The Philippines Republic, for instance, whether in alarm or simple opportunism, is cultivating Moscow and Peking simultaneously. The development is surprising in view of Manila's consistent anti-communist stance of the past and the continuing Maoist rebellion in the islands.

Japan, of course, has pointedly recognized the Mongolian People's Republic — even while Mr. Nixon was still in Peking, as a matter of fact. This regime in remote Ulan Bator is committed to the Soviet Union and downright unfriendly towards the People's Republic. It was over the Mongolian mountains that Marshal Lin Liao, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's designated successor, was reported to have been shot down in flight with other fugitives from the last purge in the Peking hierarchy. It was assumed he was flying to sanctuary in Mongolia when he was overtaken.

The recognition by Japan was generally accepted as a gesture of invitation to closer association with the Soviet Union.

Such a departure by such a dedicated anti-communist as old Marshal Chiang Kai-shek can only be the result of traumatic shock, and Mr. Nixon is held responsible.

Then there is Indonesia. Here the menace of Chinese communism brought the reaction that ousted President Sukarno after a period of virtual civil war. And the tendency ever since has been to lean to the right under the military-led administration. The Soviet Union is anxious to have Indonesian goodwill because of its concern for navigation rights in the strait of Malacca, of strategic importance to the Russians. They would like to see it internationalized. But failing that, accomodation from Indonesia, as well as Singapore and Malaysia, is an important consideration.

With the gradual withdrawal of the United States from the more vulnerable areas of southeast Asia — Laos, Cambodia, Thailand and South Vietnam — it is likely these peoples, too, will invite Russian protection. They would be likely to prefer it to the dubious guarantees Peking might offer.

Even North Vietnam is showing a greater reliance on the U.S.S.R. for aid than on China.

All of this adds up to a polarization in Moscow's direction, particularly in view of the Russo-Indian romance and the determination of the Soviet Union to expand its naval presence in the Indian Ocean and beyond it, to the east.

In the circumstances, incongruous alliances and agreements — like a Russo-Indian-Japanese coalition — could well develop. And all because Mr. and Mrs. Nixon said a polite how-d'you-do to Chairman Mao and his colleagues in Peking.

"Tell me mirror, mirror on the wall, am I still the fairest one of all?"

Peace in the Middle East

Jerusalem Is the Key

By ROBERT STEPHENS from Amman, Jordan

A PEACE settlement between Israel and Jordan envisaged in Jordan King Hussein's plan for a United Arab kingdom — still seems to be blocked by the disputed future status of Jerusalem. Hussein wants to recover sovereignty over Arab Jerusalem, while Israel insists on keeping the whole of Jerusalem as its capital and will give Jordan only symbolic rights over the Muslim holy places there.

* * *

King Hussein's plan is a more elaborate version of the idea for regional autonomy for the Palestinians on the West Bank of the Jordan River which he first publicly proposed more than two years ago. The plan cannot be put into practice before there is a peace settlement with Israel, which would end the present Israeli occupation of the West Bank.

But some western diplomats in Amman believe that the official launching of the plan now is linked with Hussein's determination to move gradually (but as fast as he can) toward a settlement, or at least a modus vivendi with the Israelis.

Hitherto Hussein has waited cautiously for Egypt to take the first steps toward peace, but Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace diplomacy has reached deadlock because Israel's terms have remained too high and the United States has shown no signs of pressuring Israel to reduce the terms. Now it looks as if Hussein has risked an initiative himself, hoping to get the West Bank Palestinians to share the responsibility.

The present Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan was formed in 1949, when Hussein's grandfather, King Abdullah, annexed to his Kingdom of Transjordan the part of Arab Palestine that the army had saved from being overrun by the Israelis in the first Arab-Jewish war.

Of Jordan's present population of 2,250,000, almost two-thirds are Palestinians. Some 750,000 live on the West Bank, which has been occupied by the Israelis since the June, 1967 war. About the same number of Palestinians with about an equal number of native East Bank Jordanians live on the East Bank of the kingdom. There are 400,000 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip, now occupied by Israel, but until 1967 under Egyptian control. A similar number live in Israel itself, and another 300,000 or 400,000 are scattered in the Arab countries, chiefly Lebanon, Syria, Libya and Kuwait.

Under King Hussein's plan, there would be a Palestine region on the West Bank and a Jordan region on the East, each with its elected parliament and a regional government headed by a governor-general. There would be a central federal government with so-far vaguely defined powers, but covering at least defence, security, foreign affairs and economic development. The king would remain the head of state and chief executive, with a cabinet named by him and a federal parliament with equal representation from each region.

The amount of real autonomy in each region would clearly depend on how really representative the central government became. All real power now lies in the hands of the king, supported by the army.

The immediate purpose of the new federal plan seems to be to try to hold the allegiance of the Palestinians to the Jordan state in the event of a peace settlement, while at the same time consolidating the Hashemite monarchy's hold on the East Bank and reducing its responsibility for the Palestine problem if no settlement can be achieved with Israel.

The offer of autonomy for the West Bank and for any other Palestinian areas that are liberated and want to join the federation — such as the Gaza Strip — competes with two other appeals to Palestinian national sentiment.

* * *

One is that fired by the Palestine guerrilla movement. This led to civil war on the East Bank in 1970 and last summer and the crushing of the guerrilla forces by the Jordan Army. These events left a deep gulf between the Palestinians here and the regime. The king's plan is in part intended to bridge this gap.

The other counter-attraction is the idea of a separate Palestine entity or even a separate Palestinian state on the West Bank, which has received intermittent encouragement from the Israelis.

Officially, Israeli government policy is to deal with King Hussein and the Jordan state, but some Israeli leaders have appeared to encourage the emergence of a separate Palestinian political leadership on the West Bank with which they might one day make a settlement. The Israeli ordering of municipal elections on the West Bank appears to be part of this process.

* * *

No one knows what the majority of Palestinians think about the federal plan because they have not yet been asked in any meaningful way. They have no reliable means of freely expressing their opinions. The Palestinian guerrilla organizations have already denounced it. They were unlikely, in any case, to accept anything now coming from King Hussein, but also they and other Palestinian nationalists see it as abandoning their claim to regain all of lost Palestine now held by Israel and to transform it into a mixed Jewish-Muslim-Christian state.

But neither in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza, nor on the East Bank, tightly controlled by King Hussein and his army, are the Palestinians in a position freely to choose their future status. Elsewhere the Palestinians in exile are subject to the control of other Arab governments.

For the Palestinians, the plan could have psychological importance in advancing the idea of a distinct Palestinian political identity.

But Palestinian opposition leaders, who were consulted in Amman by the king shortly before his announcement, are believed to have been critical. They are reported to have told the king that the plan would be divisive, nationally and in the Arab world.

They recalled the king's previous public promises that the Palestinians of the West Bank would be free to decide their own future after the end of the Israeli occupation. They feared that the announcement of the plan now would increase pressure on the people of the West Bank to accept Israel's present stiff peace terms and sign away the national rights of all the Palestinian people while still under occupation.

But they offered no alternative way out of the present impasse. Among the Arab governments, those most strongly supporting the Palestine guerrillas — Syria, Libya, Algeria and Iraq — are likely to be hostile to the plan. Others, including those most friendly to Hussein — Saudi Arabia, Morocco and Tunisia — may reserve their judgment. Egypt is saying that it is up to the Palestinians to decide, although the leading Cairo newspaper, Al Ahram, has already attacked the plan.

Israel has denied having had anything to do with the plan, and the Jordan government has also denied recent reports of secret peace talks with Israel. There is little doubt, however, that there has been a good deal of contact recently between the two sides.

* * *

The first fruit of these contacts has been the easing of two-way traffic across the Jordan bridges so that passengers, as well as goods, can now cross without changing vehicles. Jordan has also agreed to allow tourists to come across as well as going the other way, provided their journeys are arranged through Arab travel agencies in Jerusalem or on the West Bank. But any bolder move towards a peace settlement still faces the problem of Jerusalem.

A Kiss Of Death

IN the March 18 issue of the Colonist you quote Mr. David Groos, member of parliament, as saying he would "vigorously oppose" any effort to remove the Monarchy from the Canadian scene.

In view of his performance at the time the Red Ensign was an issue, this statement is tantamount to the kiss of death.

I heard him make very much the same promise when the Red Ensign was in danger. Yet when the matter came to a vote in the house, Mr. Groos voted against the Red Ensign.

Team Work

I wish to express my utmost thanks to everyone who has taken part in the search for Richard Cherry and Gregory Alger. Everyone has been so kind and I know that if there was anything anyone could do, I'm sure there's not a person that would hesitate. We don't realize how many friends we have until tragedy strikes. I know that we will keep having faith that something yet will turn up.

From my family and myself I wish to express many, many thanks for the wonderful team work that has taken place in the recent days.

It's wonderful to know that we have such available facilities at hand.

Pensions

At a meeting of the Victoria Branch of the Federal Superannuates, held March 14, grave concern was expressed for all old age pensioners in Canada.

Those who receive the basic $80 a month, and use it for necessary living expenses, find at the end of the year that they have to scratch around to raise as much as two or more hundred dollars to give back to the government. This is simply shocking. The basic pension should be income tax free.

Those who receive pensions from the federal government or from the Canada Pension Plan are limited to only 2 per cent increase per year to compensate for the ever-increasing cost of living. This, too, is simply shocking.

All old-age persons are urged to write immediately to Ottawa, addressing letters to the prime minister, our members Mr. Groos and Mr. Anderson, asking that something be done before the coming election.

It must be remembered that old persons form a large part of the voting population, that older persons invariably vote while many younger people do not bother. This would indicate that older persons have a great deal of power at the polls, if only they will use it.

Balderdash

The remarks made by NDP member McDonald with reference to the government's decision to withhold advertising from publications that defy the tobacco and liquor advertising ban, are absolute balderdash. He is reported to have called this action of the government: "The thin edge of tyranny."

It is perhaps true that it might have been better if the attorney-general had been less precipitate, and had waited until the Supreme Court concludes its findings, and had then brought the full weight of the penalties to bear on the violators, rather than take the steps he did. However, until this is proved to be invalid (and it may be this will be the case), it is still LAW.

How can anyone be so asinine as to believe that any government would patronize a business which defies a law, duly passed by the legislature? It is like condoning a city council for purchasing building supplies from some firm which refuses to pay the business licence! The principal is the same.

Disgruntled employee George Bennett shot George Brown 92 years ago today in 1880 — at the office of the Toronto Globe. Brown died May 9. Sir John A. Macdonald's arch-enemy in politics, Brown joined his coalition government for the critical Charlottetown and Quebec conferences before Confederation, only to resign in 1865. The newspaper he founded, The Globe, was the most influential of its time.

I Beg to Differ

It's Your Turn Now

By FRANK LOWE

WHO says there is never any good news in the newspapers these days? Why, just the other day while browsing through one of my favorite journals I came across this item:

"WASHINGTON — A man's right to stroll the streets or to be a downright idler, living off his wife, was upheld yesterday by the Supreme Court."

How about that for a big step forward for Men's Lib?

Up until this historic moment men had always been at a disadvantage economically. The tradition, at least in most of the Western world, was that a man must work.

Even more important, a man must hand over the fruits of this work to his wife intact.

Any man who opened his pay envelope prior to reaching home was a no-good, a menace and, heaven forbid, the kind of fellow who might even have a drink on pay night.

I suppose this conception of how things should be was okay when it was conceded, even by women, that a woman's place was in the home. And the man went out to work.

But for quite a few years now that is not the way things have been. Women have been charging off to work at a great rate and earning money.

The one thing that didn't change was the economic concept.

* * *

In other words, the sacred concept of the untouched (by the male) pay envelope still flourished.

But now it is a new money game. If a fellow does not want to work he has the legal right to be idle. He can even demand that his wife support him.

At least, that is the way it is in the United States according to the Supreme Court. And if the United States has said so, can Canada be far behind?

The prospect, I must say, is alluring. After all, I went to work when 16. Since then it has been punch that clock, beat that deadline, gulp that drink.

Hurry, hurry, hurry — and never, never write a cheque on that joint bank account. What is hers is hers, and what is yours is hers, too.

But now, well, now things could be different. Once my wife gets a few more raises, and can support me in the style to which I have become accustomed, perhaps I will get out of the mouse race.

One of these days, maybe, I will wake up, look at the clock — and promptly roll over and go back to sleep. When the inevitable question about going to work arises I will arouse myself only to mention that I have quit.

Then, when my wife asks who I think will support me, I will smile sweetly, nod in her direction and say, "You."

I may even have the energy, before once more closing my baby blues, to say: "It's your turn now."

Victim's Peers Stress Peril In Mixing Drugs

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury including five men with drug experience recommended Thursday that schools start compulsory programs to teach young people the dangers of mixing drugs and how to give first aid for drug overdose.

The recommendations were part of a verdict that found the Feb. 26 death of 16-year-old June Dickinson resulted from "an overdose of heroin and, or a reaction from a mixture of heroin and MDA."

Coroner Glen McDonald praised the jurymen for volunteering for the inquest and told them they could use assumed names if they wished.

He said the decision to have Miss Dickinson's death probed by a jury of at least four of her peers stemmed from a recommendation following the inquiry into the death of another 16-year-old North Vancouver girl in January.

The jurors, who spoke the language of the drug user, were told Miss Dickinson purchased two capsules of MDA at a beer parlor the night she died in an east-end apartment.

Another witness said she was in the apartment when Miss Dickinson arrived with a group, and that Miss Dickinson might have used a syringe that was in the bathroom to take a fix.

Squirrel Cage Operation

Pathologist T. R. Harmon testified he found a fresh needlemark and the evidence of several old marks on the girl's arms and hands.

Harmon said tests showed the girl came to an unnatural death "from an overdose of MDA and morphine of heroin — probably heroin," both non-prescription drugs which would have to be bought on the street.

Coroner McDonald accused the police of engaging in a "squirrel cage operation" by picking up drug suspects and letting them go. There is no end in sight, he said.

"We are here to find Mr. Big in the drug trade. They never seem to come up with him."

Dennis Emmons told the jury he had met Miss Dickinson eight months before her death and they had "built up a relationship with each other."

He said she did not appear to be "stoned or high on anything" when she first arrived at the apartment, but had vomited.

They made love and fell asleep, he said, and an hour later he awoke to find her on the floor whining.

B.C. Tory Sees 'Something Big'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace said Friday the B.C. Progressive Conservative party "is at the start of something big," but he expressed some concern about his party's tendency "to become consumed by paperwork."

In an unscheduled speech at the opening session of the B.C. Tories' policy convention, Wallace told more than 150 delegates:

"Let us not forget that our total and all-important goal is to elect members to the Legislature."

Wallace became the first Conservative MLA in more than 16 years when he joined the party in January after bolting the ranks of the governing Social Credit party.

Don Marshall, representing Peace River South, became the second Tory MLA Wednesday when he quit Social Credit and walked across the floor to join Wallace.

"The greatest influence in persuading me to make the move I did was undoubtedly (provincial partyleader) Derril Warren," said Wallace Friday.

Warren did not attend the opening session but was scheduled to take part in a question-and-answer session later Friday night.

Vancouver lawyer Peter Hyndman, 30, was elected president of the Progressive Conservative Association of B.C. He succeeds Mrs. Rebecca Watson of Vancouver.

During last 12 years Hyndman has been involved in federal and provincial Conservative campaigns. In 1963, he served as special assistant to Dalton Camp, at that time national director of the federal-Conservative campaign.

GRETNA, Man. — It's been another of those congenial years between the 100 Canadian and American farmers on opposite sides of the Pembina river, which forms the border here.

They are reported to have told the king that the plan would be divisive, nationally and in the Arab world.

They recalled the king's previous public promises that the Palestinians of the West Bank would be free to decide their own future after the end of the Israeli occupation. They feared that the announcement of the plan now would increase pressure on the people of the West Bank to accept Israel's present stiff peace terms and sign away the national rights of all the Palestinian people while still under occupation.

But they offered no alternative way out of the present impasse. Among the Arab governments, those most strongly supporting the Palestine guerrillas — Syria, Libya, Algeria and Iraq — are likely to be hostile to the plan. Others, including those most friendly to Hussein — Saudi Arabia, Morocco and Tunisia — may reserve their judgment. Egypt is saying that it is up to the Palestinians to decide, although the leading Cairo newspaper, Al Ahram, has already attacked the plan.

Israel has denied having had anything to do with the plan, and the Jordan government has also denied recent reports of secret peace talks with Israel. There is little doubt, however, that there has been a good deal of contact recently between the two sides.

The first fruit of these contacts has been the easing of two-way traffic across the Jordan bridges so that passengers, as well as goods, can now cross without changing vehicles. Diary Mute Witness to Addict's Hell

Eileen Sullivan was wrong. She never made the nine months. She was dead within three.

On Feb. 17 at 10 p.m., she left a party where she had been dropping acid — LSD — smoking marijuana and taking barbiturates. She walked to the top of a multi-storey car park in Newport, Monmouthshire, and plunged 30 feet to her death on the concrete.

Her scantily-clad body, daubed with red lipstick arrows and four letter words, was found the next morning.

At the inquest into her death Thursday, coroner Glyn Evans said exposure, head injuries and the drugs killed Eileen.

"If there was ever a case that illustrates the horrors of drugtaking, this it it," Evans said. He picked up one of her waterstained and rumpled note books and began to read.

"Drugs are hell," Eileen wrote in a jerky, spindly scrawl. "I hate drugs. They all put drugs before health, food and money. It's a terrible way to die.

"It's not the dying that worries me, it's before — when I can't get the money to buy drugs.

"What worries me are the wrinkles on my face and the infection in my veins. When I can't find money for drugs, it's awful.

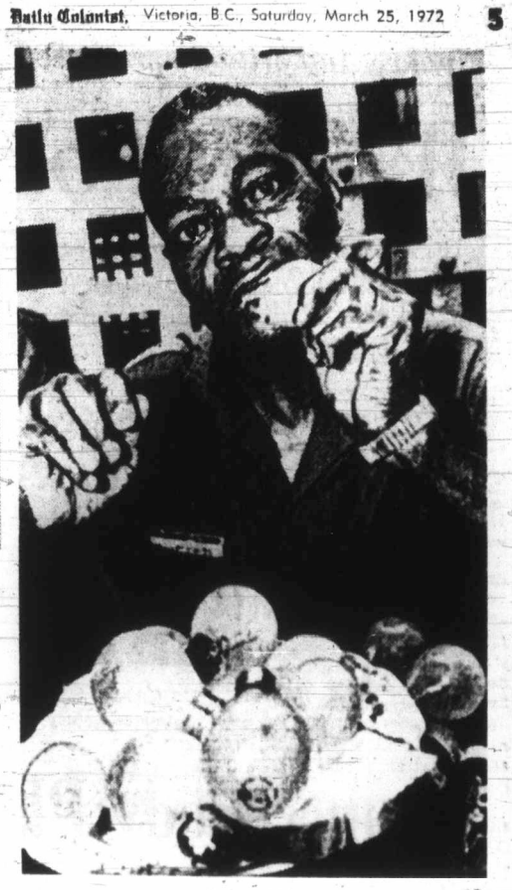

"I'm very sad when I think what I have done with my life. I feel like dying. I've had all the good things. I married all the chances and betrayed all the trust.

"Why did I ever start? Drugs are evil. They cause mental illness, aging skin, baldness and rotten teeth.

"I can no longer behave naturally."

Evans said Eileen had talked about suicide in her diaries, but the inquest panel returned an open verdict into her death.

He called Eileen both intelligent and beautiful and added, "It's clear drugs brought her no pleasure, no joy, only unhappiness."

Spring Thaw Melts Border Bonds

By CHARLES HILLINGER
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

GRETNA, Man. — It's been another of those congenial years between the 100 Canadian and American farmers on opposite sides of the Pembina river, which forms the border here.

They've gone golfing together in the summer, and curling in the winter.

"It's a wonder there hasn't been bloodshed," said American Frank Hughes. "If this thing isn't resolved soon, there may well be."

This "thing" is the river.

Hard-working farmers on both sides share the Pembina river when it flows peacefully from Pelican lake in Manitoba to the Red river in North Dakota, 75 miles south of Winnipeg.

But late each March or early April, when the snow melts too quickly, the Pembina swells and spills over its banks. It floods the farms surrounding Neche, N.D., pop. 450, and Gretna, Man., pop. 600.

Separated by only the river and the international border, the towns are almost identical in appearance. A few modern brick homes are sprinkled among the 50-to 100-year-old two-story frame dwellings.

And before the floods come, the farmers on each side of the border are busy building up their dikes to divert the waters from their land downstream.

Vancouver Dilemma

Clubs Wonder About Nudes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Bellamy, regional managing director of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said Thursday he will approve a return to nude dancing in city clubs if he doesn't get some official guidance on the issue soon.

Bellamy said that 60 days have elapsed since Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced his displeasure with bottomless dancing in the clubs.

Clubs belonging to the restaurant association gave up nude dancing when police visits followed Peterson's statement, and each club put up a $500 bond as a guarantee against a return to bottomless go-go dancing.

Bellamy said one club — not a member of the association — has ignored Peterson's warning and continues to stage nude dancing.

Bellamy added that the club — which he did not name — does not have a liquor licence and has not been raided.

He said that if clubs like this are going to be allowed to continue nude dancing, then he will return the performance bonds.

Soaring Prices Watched

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John Connally hinted Friday the U.S. government may take strong action if food prices continue to rise as they have done in recent months.

Right now, Connally said, the administration is telling retailers: "Watch your prices, because we are going to be prepared to move."

The price commission announced in Washington that the government has filed suit in Boston against a discount supermarket chain, charging it with raising prices on more than 700 items without following proper procedures.

Connally in a TV interview ruled out controls on raw agricultural products except as a last resort. But he said the administration could bring in food stores for consultation on food price increases and look closely at their reports to see whether they have increased profit margins.

Finance Authority 'Impressive'

Watch Foreign Markets for Capital—Curtis

A keen awareness of developments in foreign markets should be maintained by the Municipal Finance Authority of British Columbia, the authority's retiring chairman Hugh Curtis said Friday.

"The authority should continue to investigate all capital markets and while we have indicated that we are primarily interested in the Canadian market, we should be fully aware of developments in foreign markets as well," Curtis told an annual meeting of finance authority directors.

Curtis, who is also mayor of Saanich, said the finance authority should maintain constant knowledge of changing exchange rates and interest costs.

"The finance authority must have sufficient background information that, if an attractive offer is made by an acceptable investment group anywhere in the world, the authority is then prepared to move quickly to finalize an issue," he said.

Curtis
. . . unique agency

Curtis urged trustees to maintain active "selling" of the authority.

"It is a unique government agency and its continuing success will depend on how quickly and positively it is recognized and understood by those who invest in debentures and recommend such investment."

Curtis said it is a logical step for the authority to sell bonds direct to the general public sometime in the future.

But a secondary market hasn't yet developed to the point where authority bonds could be sold direct to B.C. residents.

However, Curtis said, "This marketability certainly will develop and it is an extremely logical later step to sell finance authority bonds over the counter at all municipal and regional district offices in the province."

Curtis said that since the finance authority was established two years ago to borrow funds on behalf of B.C.'s 28 regional boards for sewer, water and pollution abatement facilities, its achievements have been "impressive".

He said the authority has sold three issues in the last six months—one in the United States and two in Canada. The sale totalled $27.3 million. Each issue has been sold at a more favorable price than the preceding one, he said.

"Our two-year history can be summarized as a first 12 months period of rather unspectacular and tedious preparation, followed by a year of outstanding success in the task assigned to us," Curtis said.

Curtis said conversations he has had with senior people in the investment business reveal that the finance authority "is being looked at as a provincial type bond rather than as a straight municipal.

Finance Body Plans To Broaden Scope

Ron Andrews of North Vancouver region, newly-elected chairman of the Municipal Finance Authority of B.C., told the annual meeting Friday in Victoria that the authority plans to broaden its financing mandate in the future.

Andrews succeeded Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis as chairman. Curtis, however, agreed to act as acting chairman if Andrews cannot attend any future meeting.

Andrews said that in the last few months, "we have canvassed regional districts and received almost unanimous support to extend the authority to financing in other areas."

The other services would depend on specific requests for financing from municipalities and could include projects such as acquisition of parklands and construction of arenas. Projects in past have been limited to sewer and water.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell told delegates that in a few short years the authority has caught the imagination of the financial community and commended Curtis for his outstanding efforts in its formative years.

The minister added that he hoped that the authority would mount a promise to sell $5 million in bonds this year. Andrews stated that this was an expensive way to sell bonds but sometime in the future the authority may consider selling at a local level.

"We cannot share the minister's enthusiasm to sell $5 million at the local level this year," Andrews stated.

Appeal Court Reduces Marquardt's Sentence

The long case of Victoria-area businessman Siegfried Marquardt came to an end in Vancouver Friday when the jail term to which he was sentenced was reduced from one year to three months.

Marquardt was also required by the court to pay a $5,000 fine, not part of the original sentence.

The sentence was on 11 counts of fraud, his convictions on which were upheld by the Court of Appeal earlier this year.

In an oral judgment, the court said it believed the original sentence of a year concurrent on each count was somewhat excessive in view of the evidence offered of Marquardt's previous good character, in view of the fact that he had no previous criminal record, and in view of the fact that the company he defrauded was a private one with no public shareholders involved.

However, it also felt that it was not appropriate to remove the jail sentence altogether because other people must be deterred from trying to defraud private companies.

Sitting on the case were Mr. Justice A. B. Robertson, Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz and Mr. Justice J. D. Taggart.

In a short hearing, crown counsel Brian Smith argued that the year sentence was appropriate because other businessmen must be deterred from committing similar crimes.

Defence counsel David Williams stated that Marquardt had already suffered enough from the lengthy court case and from acquiring a criminal record, so jail was not needed as a further punishment.

Marquardt, 39, of 2841 Sea View, Saanich, was convicted of defrauding V.I. Shipyards Ltd., a company substantially controlled by himself, by taking money intended for conversion of the former U.S. naval vessel Robert Emery into a floating entertainment centre at San Francisco.

He was originally convicted in January 1971, of 12 counts in January 1971, of 12 counts of fraud by Victoria County Court Judge M. L. T. Drake, but the appeal court quashed the conviction on the 12th count.

Community Worker Dies

The Capital region this week lost one of its staunchest community workers — William Reader, who died Wednesday in Veterans' Hospital at the age of 73.

One of the original directors of the Capital Regional Board, he resigned his Colwood seat in February, 1969, because of ill health.

Reader was an outspoken opponent of the dumping of raw sewage into the sea and in 1968 he attempted unsuccessfully to stall the region's $23,500,000 sewage disposal scheme because of this conviction.

Born in Marden, Kent, England, Reader has been a resident of the Colwood-Langford area since 1943. For the past four years the family residence has been at 3608 Happy Valley Road.

He is survived by his wife, Isabelle, also an active community worker who is a member of Sooke school board; two sons, Robert and Charles, at home; three daughters, Mrs. Wellyn Soares of Saanich; Mrs. Joyce Barlow and Mrs. Winnifred Forten of Langford; nine grandchildren and one great grandson. His sons William, George and Harvey died before him.

Oak Bay Fights For Character

Members of an Oak Bay council committee want assurance from the provincial government that legislation being prepared to create overall building and plumbing standards won't destroy Oak Bay's character.

Lands and buildings committee, at a meeting Thursday, decided to recommend to council that Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell be written a letter asking for assurance that the legislation will not undermine the validity of Oak Bay bylaws.

Municipal building inspector William Skead told committee that there is "a massive lobby" movement among contractors' associations for an overall standard which would make it easy for them to go into any area.

Ald. Brian Smith said "I can see why contractors would like to come in here or anywhere else and be able to put up tacky little boxes like they have in Surrey. We are really getting homogenized."

Municipal administrator E. H. Hart said he had contacted the minister's department and voiced concern that safety factors now required for Oak Bay buildings would go by the board.

These include elevators wide enough to take heart cases on stretchers, garbage chutes wide enough to avoid the risk of clogging and fire and the banning of paperback insulation.

James Bay Concerned

The James Bay Community Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at South Park school. Group officials said members are concerned about "the city's land-use and transportation plan" and the future of the area.

Body Found Off Wharf

The body of James Melville Danbrook, 45, of 1165 Oscar, who was reported missing and presumed drowned five weeks ago, was found in water off Fishermen's Wharf, Erie Street, Thursday afternoon, Victoria police said Friday.

Tories' 'Socred Eggs' Won't Hatch—Bennett

Premier Bennett predicted Friday both Progressive Conservatives in the Legislature will lose their seats in the next provincial election.

In Scott Wallace, member for Oak Bay, and South Peace member Don Marshall, the premier told reporters, the Tories have been successful in stealing "two eggs from the Social Credit nest." He added: "But these two eggs won't hatch."

Bennett said the issue in the next election will again be "grassroots Social Credit movement free enterprise" versus "the socailist movement and big labor bosses."

In that kind of an election, he added, "there is no room for (B.C. Progressive Conservative leader) Derril Warren or anyone else."

Advance Gone In Slow Day

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market hesitated Friday after its big advance in the previous session. Trading was the slowest in nearly two months.

Some analysts said an increase in the prime lending rate by several of the major U.S. banks was responsible for the losses. Rising interest rates are considered a market depressant by many investors, analysts said.

Among Canadians, Dome Mines declined ⅞ to $65⅜ and McIntyre Porcupine was off ½ at $86. Walker Gooderham advanced ½ to $45¼ and Alcan was up ¼ to $21.

On the American Stock Exchange, Preston advanced ⅜ to $9¼ and Scurry Rainbow Oil declined ¼ to $16½.

Mackenzie Gas Committed

TORONTO (UPI) — Imperial Oil announced Friday it has signed agreements with two American firms committing volumes from potential natural gas reserves in the Mackenzie Delta area of the Northwest Territories.

Imperial said the two companies, Michigan-Wisconsin Pipe Line Co., of Detroit and Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, Chicago, will benefit from early identification of and commitment for future supply sources to meet their market requirements.

The two American companies are to advance Imperial a total of $40 million, at $10 million a year, to accelerate development and production of discovered and undiscovered natural gas reserves.

Imperial said the agreement covers natural gas reserves up to a maximum of 10 trillion cubic feet which may be discovered on its wholly owned acreage in the Mackenzie Delta.

Certain prepayments for gas purchases are to be made in stages when approvals and permits have been granted to transport gas by pipe line to the appropriate markets and when the gas begins to flow from the Delta into these markets, Imperial said.

MLS Printing New Listings —Computerized

Victoria Real Estate Board Friday officially launched its weekly multple listing book. It is the first of its kind in North America that has been prepared and printed by such a board.

The book provides an up-to-date supply of fresh listings (about 70 per week) in order to minimize the amount of paper shuffling on the part of salesmen.

"It will give them more of a chance to perform their task," said Norman Ross, president of the VREB," that is, of providing full attention to their customers."

One key to the operation is an IBM computer connection. Data is processed at IBM and the new sheets for loose-leaf binders held by the salesmen are in their hands 48 hours later.

The VREB has installed a photo-copier machine that provides a positive plate for an offset duplicating press. After printing, the sheets are automatically sorted, stacked and drilled, ready for the 800 licencees and agents each week.

The entire outlay for the board amounts to $43,000 and has taken two years of preparation to get into operation. John Hicks, board executive officer, said that 10 people will be involved in the weekly publication effort.

Could This Be You?

LONDON (Reuter) — Someone, somewhere in Britain may be the heir to a $283,400 windfall — and doesn't know it.

An unknown investor purchased shares on the London stock market in the 1930s, and after five years vanished without a trace.

Since that day, the shares have grown in value to $215,800 and have accrued $67,000 in dividends. But no one has come forward to claim the money.

In a bid to find the owner the stockbroker who carried out the original deal successfully applied in London's high courts Thursday for the official lawyer to hold an inquiry.

Stockbroker Harold Sibley said a lawyer instructed him to buy some American and Canadian securities in the 1930s for an unknown client. In 1948, the lawyer lost touch with the mystery buyer and then the lawyer died in 1961.

B.C. Millwork
Prairie Possibility

To Bank?

John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, has been touted as one of those who may succeed Louis Rasminsky as governor of the Bank of Canada, according to a Canadian Press Ottawa story. Rasminsky is said to be ready to retire.

A new provincial government study urges British Columbia millwork manufacturers to invade the prairie market for case and cabinet work — a market estimated to be worth about $17 million a year.

The report, prepared for the department of industrial development, trade and commerce, says the prairie market for these products now is supplied mostly by small plants without modern equipment and hampered by winter weather and lack of salesmanship.

Rex Werts, the marketing consultant who prepared the report, says B.C. manufacturers do not have the same handicaps, have better plants and are nearer their sources of supply.

His report said:

"Adding the prairie provinces to B.C. means adding a new potential market of over 3.5 million people, a market 160 per cent greater than our own."

Provincial COURT

"Much more than ordinary pilfering" was the phrase used Friday in Victoria by Judge William Ostler to describe the shoplifting by a 28-year-old Nanaimo woman.

The woman, Mrs. Lana Gossen, pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $50 Thursday from The Bay.

A store security officer said Mrs. Gossen was seen to take a pair of slacks, two sheets and a pair of pillowslips. After she was stopped, it was found she had taken a total of 15 articles worth a total of $46.20 from three levels of the store.

Mrs. Gossen was fined $150, which was $100 more than the normal fine for a first offence of shoplifting.

Identical sentences of three months in jail and a one-year probationary term were ordered by Ostler for Ralph Leonard Bradshaw, 23, and Keith Pearson, 20, both of 948 Old Esquimalt Road.

They and Heather Lynn Parker, 17, of the same address, had pleaded guilty March 3 to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting March 2 at The Bay of 10 items worth a total of $29.75.

The judge set a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term as the penalty for Miss Parker.

□

Richard Kendall, 38, of 715 Catherine, was sentenced to a total of 20 days in jail after he pleaded guilty March 13 to a three-count Victoria charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency. The charge was laid after Kendall gave 2½ cases of beer to some youths on Pandora Feb. 19 after buying it at a nearby liquor store.

□

In traffic court, Wayne Douglas Gillis, 20, of 2646 Cook, pleaded guilty before Judge E. F. N. Robinson to a Victoria charge of dangerous driving, driving while his licence was suspended and driving without insurance. He was fined $350 and given a one-year driving ban on the first count and fined $100 on the second and $250 on the third. The charge followed a Dec. 17 incident at Blanshard and Finlayson in which a $5,000 car was demolished and five persons were hurt.

Violence Suspect Sought

A warrant has been issued for a 31-year-old man after the quiet of a Metchosin area home was shattered overnight Wednesday by an unusual incident, Colwood RCMP disclosed Friday.

The man was identified as Richard Arthur Bergeron and he was the only one of six persons involved in the incident, which saw two men enter the home unexpectedly, who was named by police.

RCMP and other sources told this story:

Parole Revoked

Bergeron was sentenced last June in two divisions of Victoria Provincial Court to a total of nine months in jail. In addition, a previous parole on a robbery conviction was revoked and Bergeron was due for release next September.

He has recently been serving his time in a federal prison work camp at Agassiz in the Fraser Valley and was sent from there Wednesday to see his parole officers in Vancouver.

Bergeron was due to report at a Vancouver rehabilitation centre at 11 p.m. Wednesday and then back to Agassiz at 11 p.m. Thursday. Instead, he was reported to have violated an order not to leave the Vancouver area and went to the Metchosin area.

At about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, a woman who was formerly associated with Bergeron was driven to her home by a male friend. They saw Bergeron in a car outside the home and the woman went inside to phone Colwood RCMP.

Car Followed

The other man drove away with Bergeron's car behind him. Not far away, the other man's car was forced off a road in a residential area.

One of the homes there is occupied by a couple and their boarder. The husband went outside to investigate the noise of the two cars and the man whose car was being chased knocked on the front door.

The wife opened the door and the man asked for help. In seconds, the man was inside and Bergeron forced his way in. The boarder appeared on the scene and, after a brief conversation, Bergeron got away and drove off.

The warrant charges him with possession of an offensive weapon, a knife. The boarder in the home is employed as a correctional officer at the William Head minimum-security institution near Metchosin.

Ottawa Has Brief

Sooke Wharf Need Reviewed

A brief compiled more than six weeks ago by Sooke-Jordan River Chamber of Commerce complaining of lack of wharfage facilities for commercial fishermen in Sooke Harbor is being reviewed in Ottawa.

Transport department official Charles Brooks said Friday that he recently forwarded the brief, and his report on the situation, to the department's regional office in Vancouver.

Brooks, the department's harbor and wharfs administrator for the Victoria marine district, said they were forwarded to Ottawa through the public works department.

Public works officials in Ottawa, Brooks said, will decide whether or not to extend the wharfage facilities. He said he does not know how long the decision will take.

Brooks said the public works department is responsible for construction and maintenance of wharfage facilities while the transport department is responsible for operation and administration of the facilities.

The brief said capacity of wharfage facilities at Sooke's government wharf is 13 average-size fishboats. About 60 fishermen in the community have to compete for the space.

Longtime MLA Dies

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — John McInnis, a longtime B.C. politician, died here Friday in hospital. He was 92.

McInnis, born in Prince Edward Island in 1879, was first elected to the B.C. Legislature in 1907 as a member of the B.C. Socialist party. He represented the Boundary riding and was the youngest member in the house.

He later represented the Fort George riding from 1945-49 as a member of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, the forerunner of the New Democratic Party.

NHL Moves To Reduce Equipment Bickerings

By AL McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Stanley Cup playoffs are less than two weeks away and the National Hockey League has taken steps to remove some of the recent bickering over the use of illegal equipment — primarily sticks.

The league announced Friday in Montreal that it has introduced a new procedure for dealing with the problem — a procedure that will be in effect only during the 1972 playoffs.

The procedure calls for the measurement of all sticks and examination of other possibly illegal equipment by a league supervisor before the start of each playoff game.

League president Clarence Campbell said the step was taken "in an attempt to curb the increasing number and misuses o fchallenges by one team against another."

As the rule now stands, in order to prevent undue delay, measurement of any questioned stick must wait until the next intermission for the referee to examine the stick.

If the curvature of the blade exceeds the ½-inch limit, or if the blade measures less than 2½ or more than three inches in width, the offender is subject to a $200 fine.

If the challenge is not upheld, the challenging club is fined $25.

At the moment, a minor penalty is imposed on a player guilty of using illegal equipment other than sticks. Glen Sather of New York found that out March 8, when, in a game against Chicago, he was found to have a hole in the palm of his glove.

The Hawks claimed the hole allowed Sather free movement of his fingers outside the confines of the glove — thus allowing him to grab an opposing player without the referee seeing the actual clutch.

Campbell said that for the greater part of the season "few challenges have been made requiring stick measurement."

"However, in recent weeks, complaints have increased and a cause for some anxiety has been produced in that these challenges have been made not primarily as a means of rule enforcement, but as a matter of gamesmanship and harassment of opponents."

The league president said these tactics had produced a "number of somewhat farcial situations" which downgrade the game.

"To avoid the possibility of carrying such a challenge to extremes, such as challenging the legality of a star opponent's entire stick supply, every stick as well as other equipment will be measured in the teams' dressing rooms before each game."

This will take place in the presence of the coach or club trainer of each team.

"Each stick approved will be stamped on both sides with distinctive marks where they will be plainly visible to everyone," Campbell said. "Only those sticks stamped with the supervisor's approval will be 'legal' for use in the playoff games."

Campbell said any modification or tampering with an approved stick will see the stick impounded for further measurement.

"If the stick is found illegal after this second measurement, the offending player and team shall be subject to fines of not less than $500 each.

It is expected the new procedure will be reviewed following the playoffs.

In addition to the case of Sather's glove, the same game produced a protest by the Rangers against the stick used by Chicago's Dennis Hull. The challenge was rejected and New York paid $25.

However, in a Feb. 8 game in St. Lous, the Leafs batted .500.

They first protested about Jack Egers stick. It was found to be illegal and cost Egers $200. Later, the Leafs complained again, but on this occasion Egers won the case and Toronto lost $25.

But St. Louis cost Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota $200 two days later. The referee upheld the St. Louis complaint when measurement of Goldsworthy's blade showed it to be too narrow.

Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens lost a similar decision to the Leafs in Toronto March 15.

Saints Storm to Wins As Hoop Event Starts

By KING LEE

Coach Moe Turner added to his string of titles Friday and his First United Saints established themselves as the power of the Canadian juvenile girls basketball tournament at Central Junior High School.

Saints gunned down two opponents in the opening day of the five-team, double-knockout tourney and advanced to the winners' bracket final against St. Stephen's Spartans of New Brunswick at 11:30 this morning.

Saints walloped Hamilton Steelworkers, 58-29, in the opener Friday and then scored a surprisingly easy 62-26 victory over Salmon Arm Jewels, runners-up to Mt. Douglas in the recent B.C. high school tournament in Terrace.

St. Stephen's, rocked by the loss of their star centre in the morning because of a horseback riding accident, got a sparkling performance from guard-turned-centre Kim Hansen, who scored 37 points, to beat Calgary Premier Athletic Club Kay Gees, 55-46.

Hamilton and Calgary clash in a losers' round game at 10 a.m. today, followed by the winners' bracket final at 11:30. Jewels meet the winner of the Hamilton-Calgary game starting at 2:15 and the final game of the day is between the loser of the Victoria-New Brunswick contest and the survivor of the 2:15 game, beginning at 9:00. The tournament concludes Sunday.

Saints applied the zone-press effectively in both games, roaring to a 28-12 lead by halftime against the poor-shooting Steelworkers. Turner substituted freely after his Saints bolted to an 18-4 lead in the opening quarter.

In a game which also meant the B.C. juvenile title, Turner's ninth provincial championship, and in which Jewels were pitted against four members of the Mt. Douglas team which handed them a 35-37 overtime defeat in Terrace, Saints combined their strong defensive game with some great shooting, especially in the first half. Saints fired 17 consecutive points in the second quarter before Jewels closed out the first half-scoring with a foul shot, which made the score, 37-10.

Sandra Tatchell of Salmon Arm, voted the most inspirational player at Terrace, was effectively contained when Saints' 1-3-1 defence prevented her from getting close enough for good shots. The five-foot-three guard had only one point. Marg Mainwaring, who drew most of Jewels' attention, was Victoria's top scorer with 14 points, one more than Mairi-Anne Longmore.

DEEP GASH

Spartans lost Rose Anne Johnston when her horse toppled on her during a morning ride, causing a deep gash on a knee. She was taken to Queen Victoria Hospital where minor surgery was required to close the wound. Coach Judy Wilson said late Friday that she did not expect Miss Johnston to play in the championship.

Spartans were behind, 28-30, at the half, tied it at 30-30 and raced to victory after the score was tied, 32-32, by Calgary, by scoring the next nine points.

Spartans Win Russell Cup For Fourth Straight Time

By MAX LOW

Champions again, for the fourth straight season — that's class-y Claremont Spartans. But they did it the hard way.

Trailing, 0-4 at half time to plucky Oak Bay Bays after wasting countless first-half chances, the Spartans had to battle against a stiff breeze for an 18-4 victory Friday night in the Howard Russell Cup senior high school rugby final.

Bays, who finished second to the unbeaten Spartans in the Victoria high school league, surprised the crowd of about 500 at Royal Athletic Park by holding off wave after wave of attacks and then grabbing a shock 4-0 lead on a fine try by centre Mark Britton.

Although outplayed in the forwards in both scrums and lineouts and pinned down inside their own half for 80 per cent of the time, the Bays didn't falter.

Backs like Neil Rahn, Terry Morton, Dave Reid and Britton and forwards Jim Tarbuck, Pete Smith, Joe Whipple and the rest tackled so well and so hard that the fumbling Claremont line couldn't get a rhythm going.

Burly Tarbuck, in fact, was the individual star and it was his great intereception and kick ahead, supported by Smith, that led to Britton's try.

STAMINA GONE

But it was soon obvious early in the second half that the effort had burnt Tarbuck and his Bays out. Gone was the stamina for the quick follow-up and for the interceptions, which really was their only hope for victory.

Then, as the crowd went wild, Claremont, as expected, took over.

Sparked by some clever tap-kicking through by standoff-half Tim Lott, and fine cover work by fullback Bud Scott, the Claremont back line swung into action and winger Gordon Conrad scored the equalizing try after only eight minutes.

EMERGE AS HEROES

In the last 20 minutes, the Claremont pack ran riot over the tired Oak Bay forwards and experienced captain Ken Macrae and his fellow breakforward, Mike Puckett, emerged as the game's heroes.

Puckett, flashing to the loose ball time after time, gained valuable yards for Claremont and the fast Macrae was there just at the right time to score two fine tries. Lott converted one of them and, two minutes from the end, scrum half Murray Hull slipped round a ruck to get the last try.

And, as the young fans poured from the stand, jubilant teammates had to lower a smiling Macrae from their shoulders just long enough to receive from Stan Gill, president of the Greater Victoria Secondary School Athletic Association, the prized Howard Russell Cup.

CLAREMONT SPARTANS — Richard Scott, Earl Sandwith, Gordon Conrad, Rod MacDonald, Ben Ellwell, Tim Lott, Murray Hull, Brent Isaac, Ken Macrae, Mike Puckett, Jim McQueen, Bill Isaac, Chris Neal, Ron Sluggett, Ted Konrath.

OAK BAY BAYS — Maurice Wiart, Fred Manson, Dave Reid, Terry Morton, Mark Britton, Neil Rahn, Masahiko Ishimitsu, John Willow, Ian Bruce, Don Carson, Dave Kilshaw, Joe Whipple, Jim Tarbuck, Pete Smith, Barry Stevens.

Referee — Harry Turner.

'Scoring Machine' Packed Rink

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Brantford's novice hockey team got knocked out of the Brampton invitational novice hockey tournament Friday, and it was hard to say who was more disappointed: Brantford's little scoring machine Wayne Gretzky, or tournament organizers.

The tournament had been playing to packed houses whenever young Gretzky's team was on the ice, with the four-foot-four, 70-pound hotshot being the obvious drawing card.

But it ended suddenly in the A series semi-final Friday, at 14:01 of sudden-death overtime, when Trent Mood scored the winning goal in Oshawa's 3-2 conquest of Brantford to take the two-game series, 8-7.

Ten-year-old Wayne scored both his club's goals and just missed winning it early in the overtime session to climax a fantastic year in which he scored 331 goals plus 120 assists in 73 scheduled and exhibition games.

Youn Gretzky's sensational scoring feats became the talk of the tournament soon after it started and by Wednesday the Brantford team was playing all its games in front of a full house.

"We're only supposed to have 1800 in the place, but they kept coming when Gretzky was playing," said tournament official Ross Milne, adding that the crowds probably numbered closer to 2000 and the local fire marshal was rumored ready to step in and close the building if the arena was over-crowded.

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Canucks, continuing to give Toronto Maple Leafs trouble, Friday night kept Detroit Red Wings right in the thick of a National Hockey League battle for a playoff spot. It's a two-team affair for fourth place in the East Division and Leafs, one point ahead, lost the game they had in hand when the Canucks handed them a 5-3 setback.

Result left the clubs even for their first two seasons of competition. Last season the fledgling Canucks were 3-3 in the six games between the two clubs, this season the record shows a 2-2-2 slate.

Leafs are the only established club the Canucks have come close to handling. The West Coasters are 1-11 against both Boston Bruins and New York Rangers for two seasons, 0-10-2 against Montreal Canadiens, 2-9-1 against the Wings and 2-8-2 against Chicago Black Hawks.

Friday's was a stunning defeat for the Leafs, who could have been in an almost impregnable position if they could have taken the four points available on a West Coast road trip which ends in Los Angeles tonight.

That would have left them five points to the good with the Wings having a St. Louis — Boston — New York — Chicago finish. Now a defeat by the Kings could be fatal. The Leafs have two of their last three games at home but the Boston — New York — Boston end to their schedule isn't likely to produce many points.

Leafs lost Friday despite the ending of a long slump by Ron Ellis, who had been junxed by goal posts, bad shooting and brilliant goaling and had seemed headed for his least-productive season.

The 27-year-old rightwinger, who managed 176 goals in his first seven NHL seasons, potted all three Toronto goals.

He opened the scoring, then brought Leafs from 1-3 to even but his club failed to produce another scorer while four Canucks put pucks past Jacques Plante.

Andre Boudrias, matching last season's contribution of 25 goals, made the winning shot in the ninth minute of the third period and Bob Schmautz, who gave his club a 2-1 lead in the first period, removed all doubt by finding an open net at 19:27.

Viking XI Whips Visitors

University of Victoria Vikings Friday blasted visiting University of California from Davis, 4-0, in an exhibition soccer match at Centennial Stadium.

Vikings, co-leaders in Division I of the Victoria and District Soccer League, got goals from Mike Sails and John Leier to lead, 2-0, at half time and then Jim Marshall and Glen Moffatt scored in the second half.

Dave Achurch, one of the District League's hottest goalkeepers, handled well but only had to make three saves on difficult shots.

It was the same score that the Vikings' more highly-rated neighbors, University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, who play in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, beat the California team in Vancouver Thursday.

Firefighter Rinks Gathering Here

Victoria-area firemen won't be among the complainants if what has been an unusually-wet winter lasts for another week.

That would lessen the chances of any distractions and enable them to concentrate on the 13th annual Canadian firefighters' curling championship, which has ice action scheduled to start at the Victoria Curling Club at 1 on Monday afternoon.

The stage is all set and the cast is expected to be completed some time today. It will consist of 32 players, 28 of whom will be trying to take the starring roles away from Doug Wyatt, Harvey Uhryniw, Archie Bartley and Max Pressly, the Saskatoon quartet which stole the 1971 show in Moncton.

Rivals this year are from Sackville in New Brunswick, Charlottetown, Red Rock and Brampton in Ontario, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, and they face a formidable task.

The slender Wyatt was also the winning skip in 1970 and 1966, and he has been outdone by Bartley, who is seeking his fifth championship. Bartley skipped the 1961 champions, was vice-skip in 1966 and 1970 and this year is throwing second rocks for the second time.

Wyatt was among the early arrivals, showing up at a Friday luncheon along with British Columbia-champion Aubrey Neff and Bob Swarbrick of Winnipeg, who is president of the Canadian Firefighters Curling Association as well as skip of the Manitoba rink.

Neff, who originated the event is a former champion. He won the title in 1962 in Edmonton and has a completely-new lineup for this try. Neff's victory and a Manitoba triumph in 1964 are the only two titles to escape Alberta, a six-time winner, and Saskatchewan, four times producing the title quartet.

Today is a-day for socializing, and there will be more of the same tomorrow along with registration and an executive meeting and a get-further-acquainted session in the evening.

Monday starts at 11:30 a.m. with a parade from the Yates Street Firehall to the Victoria Curling Club. Opening ceremonies are at 12:15 p.m. and there will be a second draw at 7 p.m.

The draw at 1 gets Saskatchewan started against Ontario, B.C. against Manitoba, Prince Edward Island against Northern Ontario and Alberta against New Brunswick.

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN (CP) — Unbeaten Canada meets Scotland and West Germany and the United States tangle today in the semi-finals of the world curling championship.

The four survivors in the annual competition were decided in a round-robin playoff among the eight competing nations.

It finished Friday with a single draw. Canada bested Scotland, 10-7, for a seventh straight victory while four other rinks finished with 4-3 records.

That brought about a playoff for the fourth spot in the sudden-death knockout play which will decide the winner of the Silver Broom.

West Germany was awarded second place on the basis of having the best record in the games played between the four rinks which finished tied. The same yardstick made the U.S. the third-place team and Scotland grabbed the other spot by defeating Switzerland in a playoff game.

Alex Torrance's Scottish rink, which won its first four games, appeared to have ended a slump when it stated three on the eighth end to take a 7-3 lead. But the Canadian quartet led by Winnipeg's Orest Meleschuk came crashing back with a five on the ninth end for a one-rock lead, heading home.

Victory was again in the grasp of the Scots when a missed takeout by vice-skip Dave Ramano gave them a chance to count two. But Torrance using the extremely-fast ice down the middle, slid through twice trying to draw and Canada stole two.

In other last-round games, Switzerland was a 6-5 winner over France, the U.S. bombed the winless Swedish rink by 10-6 and Norway's Knut Bjaaneas, who proved tough in almost every game, upset West Germany, 7-5, to wind up 3-4.

Casper Finds Putting Touch To Grab Two-Stroke Lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Billy Casper, again possessed of the touch that has brought him 48 tour titles, pulled out to a two-stroke lead Friday in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament, firing a four-under par 68.

Casper had a 36-hole total of 134, 10 under par on the 7080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, one of four tied with Casper from the leading starting second-round play, bogeyed the final hole for a 70, giving him a 136 total. He was tied at that figure with Jim Colbert, who cut three strokes off par with a 69. Ralph Johnston and Dave Eichelberger, each of whom had a 70, followed at 137.

OTHERS FALTER

Casper, in a slump most of this season and much of last, was tied with Nicklaus, Mason Rudolph, Bob Payne and Bunky Henry when play started on the mild, sunny day.

None could keep pace. Henry had a 72—138. Payne was 73—139 and Rudolph 74—140.

South African Gary Player closed up with a 69 but was still eight strokes off the pace at 142. Defending-champion Frank Beard matched par 72 and just made the cut for the final two rounds at 144.

PUTTED WELL

"I didn't play quite as well as I did yesterday," said Casper, who has won only once in the last 18 months. "But I putted very, very well.

"I'm very pleased with the round, all things considered."

Casper needed only 28 strokes on the greens as he broke the logjam that had two dozen players locked within three strokes of each other after one round.

The 40-year-old veteran, one of three men to collect $1 million in prize winnings, started on the back nine first — and started quickly. He chipped to two feet for a birdie four on the 11th hole and punched a wedge shot to within six feet on the next.

Casper took his only bogey on the 14th hole when his tee shot found the rough and picked up a glob of mud. He had to hit through the mud and missed the green. But he got the stroke back on the next hole, making a six-foot birdie putt.

Playing with Nicklaus, he saved par from 10 feet on the 17th, then went in front alone when he chipped to within two feet on the sixth hole. It was his third birdie of the day on a par-five hole.

He capped his round with a 30-foot putt for a deuce on the eighth hole.

"I just played badly," said the disgusted Nicklaus, the season's leading money winner and only two-time champion of the year. "I wasn't happy with my swing. It should be better tomorrow."

Nicklaus had six birdies — but struggled with four bogeys. He had a pair of sixes on his card and dropped back with a bogey on the final hole, where he missed a three-foot putt.

It took a score of 145 to qualify for the final two rounds. Tony Jacklin of England was at that figure after a second-round 71. Among the casualties was Masters champion Charles Coody at 148.

George Knudson of Toronto fired his second 71 and was in the large group at 142 which included Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, who had a 72 Friday.

Three other Canadians missed the cut. Ben Kern of Toronto had a 76 for 150, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver a 73 for 153 and Bill Wright of Edmonton a 76 for 154.

Horton Drills Four Hits To Spark Tigers' Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Horton of Detroit drilled a pair of home runs, a double and a single Friday, driving in seven runs and leading the Tigers to a 12-3 exhibition baseball victory over Boston Red Sox.

And Houston and Minnesota engaged in a 28-hit slugfest with the Astros prevailing 12-9 over the Twins.

Horton, who had managed just one homer in 13 previous pre-season games, doubled and scored Detroit's first run in the fourth inning after Boston had taken a 2-0 lead on pitcher Gary Peters' homer.

In the fifth inning, Horton unleashed a two-run homer, then cracked a three-run shot in the seventh and capped his performance with a two-run double in the eight inning.

The Astros erupted for eight runs in the fourth inning — two each on John Edwards' single and Lee May's double — but still found themselves in a 9-9 deadlock in the seventh inning. So they struck for three more to down the Twins.

John Mayberry slammed two homers for Kansas City before Buck Martinez lined a run-scoring double in the 12th inning to lift the Royals over New York Yankees, 9-8.

Chilliwack Quartet Tops Seniors Play

A Chilliwack rink skipped by Joe Hadfield and including Ford Wray, Mervin Gregory and Harry Fulton Friday won the Pacific Coast seniors (over 60) curling championship.

It took possession of the Guy Philp Trophy by defeating Reg Darwin, winner of the Delta-Richmond zone, 9-8 in an extra-end final at the Victoria Curling Club.

Hadfield bested Art Silver of the host club, 9-5, in the semi-finals of the four-rink, single-knockout competition while Darwin took out George Lunn of Nanaimo, 11-7.

Four-enders were the difference in both semi-finals. Darwin got his big count on the ninth end to break a 7-7 tie while Hadfield broke out front, 9-4, when he cracked his four on the eighth end.

The four Pacific Coast finalists are now on their way to Kelowna to compete for the B.C. championship in a round-robin playoff which also includes four interior zone winners. Play starts on Sunday and ends Wednesday.

West-United Plays UBC In Replay Here Sunday

Victoria West-United take on the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds for the second time in just over two weeks in a vital Pacific Coast Soccer League match Sunday.

United, which leads the Coast League by one point over Paul's Canadians and North Shore Labatts, blanked the Thunderbirds, 2-0, at Royal Athletic Park on Saturday, Mar. 11.

Sunday's match is one the league executive ordered replayed following a protest by UBC when the teams met in the first half of the schedule. United won that game, 3-2, but the Thunderbirds protested the decision, claiming coach Frank Grealy made too many substitutions.

The replay was to have been at UBC but the Thunderbirds agreed to play at Royal Athletic Park when United offered to pay travelling expenses. Kickoff will be 2 p.m.

United has been undefeated since Nov. 6, when Inter-Italia of Vancouver edged to a 5-4 victory, and last Saturday the Victoria squad got past Paul's, 3-2, to regain the lead.

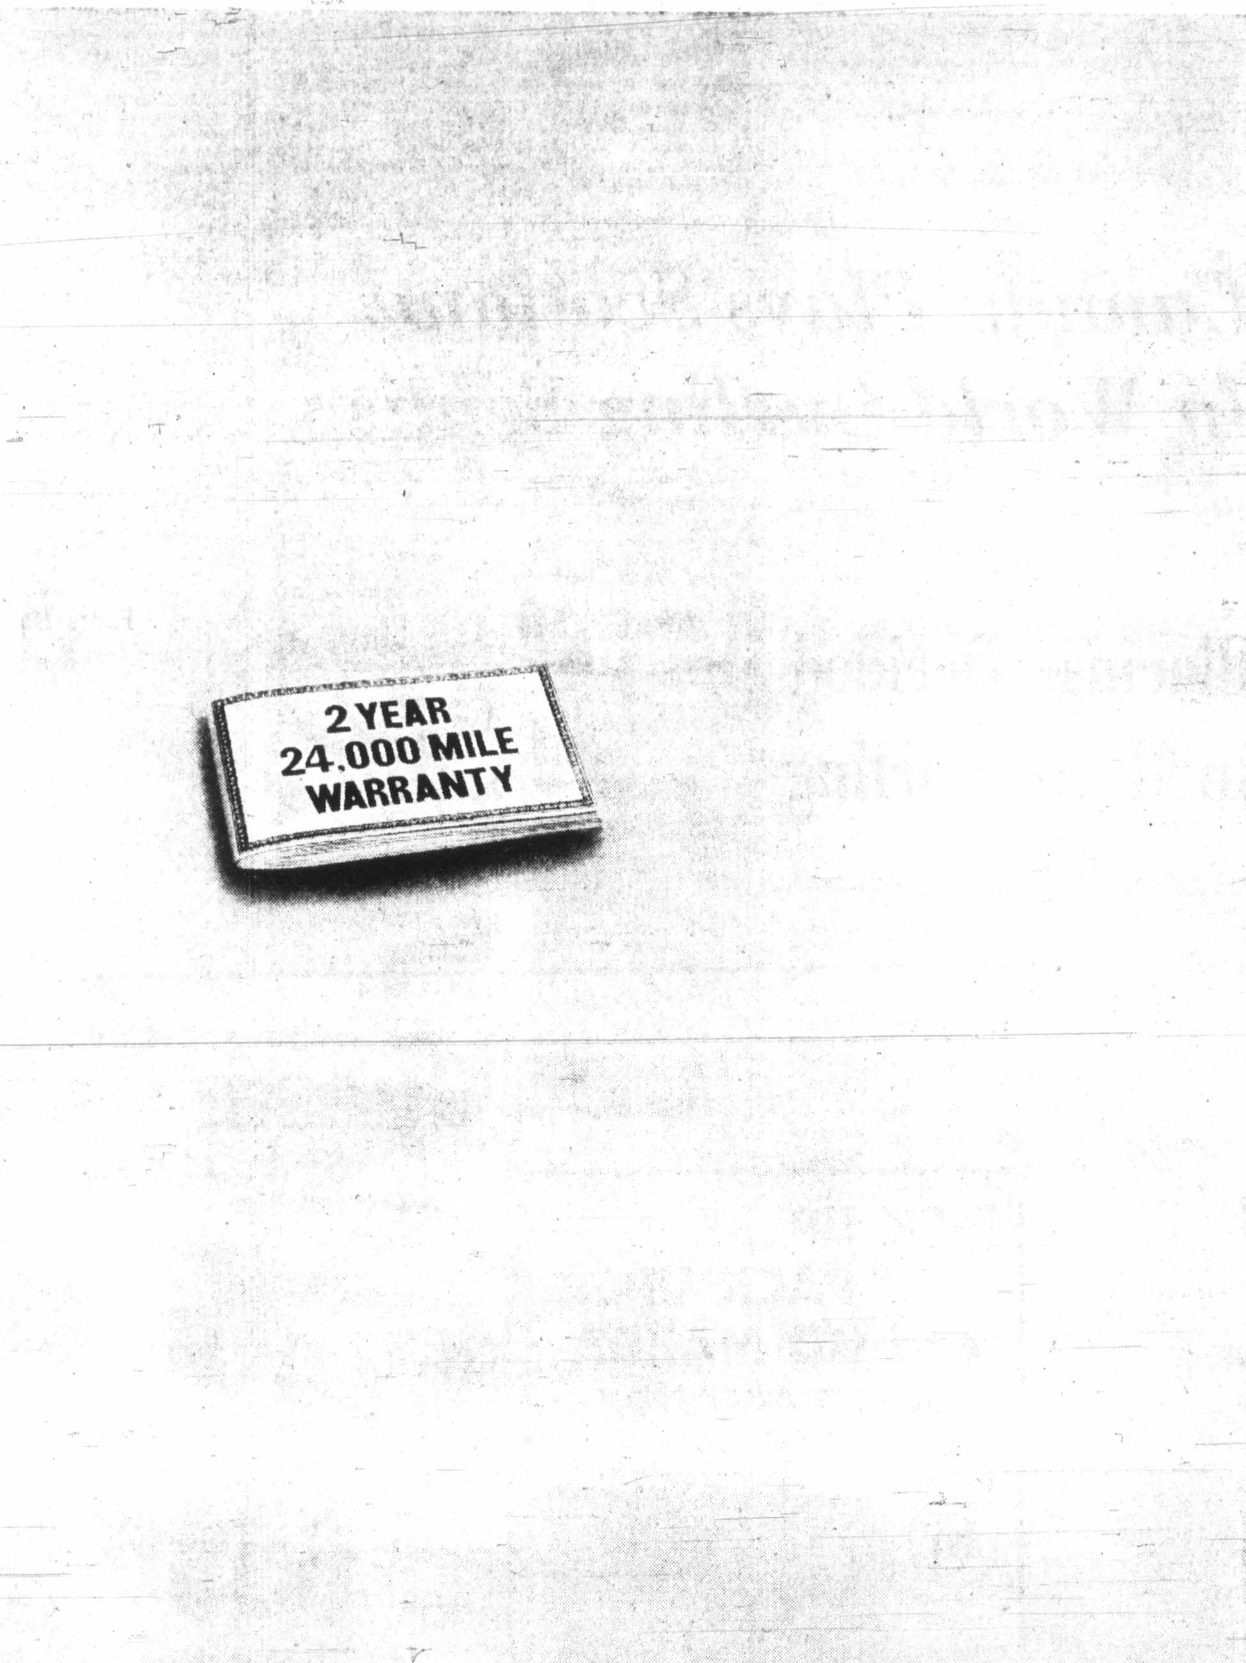

Things have been going so well that Grealy said Friday night his biggest worry for Sunday's game was over-confidence. The coach said he would go with the same lineup that downed Paul's and UBC will field virtually the same squad they had here two weeks ago.

NDP Backs Bennett

Opposition Divided In Gift Tax Debat…

Socred backbencher Herb Capozzi broke party ranks Friday afternoon to vote with the five Liberal members against the imposition of a provincial gift tax.

Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) argued during debate on the complex 29-page act that the gift tax was double taxation because the federal capital gains tax took care of the situation.

The Liberals agreed that the bill was double taxation and felt it was "poorly-drafted, sloppy" legislation.

Class Disparity

The NDP, however, joined the government in supporting the bill, arguing that without the gift tax the disparity between the rich and poor in the province would grow larger.

Premier Bennett said, in defending the bill which would impose taxes on large gifts made from one person to another, that the Liberals were supporting the concept of special classes in B.C. He felt that the tax was perfectly fair.

Social Reform

But he also warned that, although he was glad of NDP support on the bill, the Socreds were not socialists like the NDP, but were a party "for social reform . . . for the masses, neither for the extreme left nor the extreme right."

Garde Gardom (L Vancouver-Point Grey) said the bill was not only "practically and philosophically unnecessary" but was also "gobbledygook of the first order" because it was so poorly drafted.

Reading aloud a particularly complicated 12-line subsection of it, Gardom said that to explain what the bill meant was equivalent to "trying to teach a Sasquatch the A plus B theory."

'Tax Maze'

It led only to another "tax maze" in the province and was another harassment of the taxpayer by the government. The federal government had eliminated the gift tax because it felt the provisions of its new tax act covered the situation, he said.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, an accountant and tax expert, said that although the legislation was complicated the federal tax laws in Ottawa were far worse.

The legislation had been agreed to by most provinces, he said, and really represented only "an amicable transfer" of revenue from the federal government to the provincial governments.

Bennett said the gift tax would not raise much money in itself but was essential to protect the province's succession duties.

Capozzi said the tax would really mean that "initiative in the province will be taxed three times," he was referring to federal capital gains tax, the gift tax and succession duties.

The tax showed that "we are being pushed more and more into the socialist concept in which the state has the right to take everything" above the basic necessities." B.C., he said, when what was he said.

It would limit investment in needed was to bring more capital into the province.

Insurance 'Barons' Slammed

Amendments to the Insurance Act currently before the Legislature will do nothing but increase the stronghold which large insurance companies have over compulsory auto insurance in the province, Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) told the Legislature Friday.

Hartley said he believed the "insurance barons of Bay Street" had a hand in drafting the legislation and that it would work to their advantage.

He felt this was particularly noticeable when one considered that the Insurance Agents' Association was gathering money for political activity which would mean supporting the government in the next election. He was called to order by Speaker William Murray.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) and Herb Capozzi (SC Vancouver Centre) said the bill didn't go far enough in solving difficulties in the auto insurance industry in the province.

Gardom suggested a discount on prepaid premiums and a more definitive role for the Auto Insurance Board as an ombudsman while Capozzi said that in claims where payments were delayed, the interest should go to the claimant not the insurance company.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said these amendments were "immediate and simple" ones but others might have to be made later.

Other acts receiving approval in principle included the amendments to Legal Professions Act and the Podiatry Act.

NDP Backs Bennett

Opposition Divided In Gift Tax Debate

Capozzi . . . with Liberals

Socred backbencher Herb Capozzi broke party ranks Friday afternoon to vote with the five Liberal members against the imposition of a provincial gift tax.

Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) argued during debate on the complex 29-page act that the gift tax was double taxation because the federal capital gains tax took care of the situation.

The Liberals agreed that the bill was double taxation and felt it was "poorly-drafted, sloppy" legislation.

Class Disparity

The NDP, however, joined the government in supporting the bill, arguing that without the gift tax the disparity between the rich and poor in the province would grow larger.

Premier Bennett said, in defending the bill which would impose taxes on large gifts made from one person to another, that the Liberals were supporting the concept of special classes in B.C. He felt that the tax was perfectly fair.

Social Reform

But he also warned that, although he was glad of NDP support on the bill, the Socreds were not socialists like the NDP, but were a party "for social reform . . . for the masses, neither for the extreme left nor the extreme right."

Garde Gardom (L Vancouver-Point Grey) said the bill was not only "practically and philosophically unnecessary" but was also "gobbledygook of the first order" because it was so poorly drafted.

Reading aloud a particularly complicated 12-line subsection of it, Gardom said that to explain what the bill meant was equivalent to "trying to teach a Sasquatch the A plus B theory."

'Tax Maze'

It led only to another "tax maze" in the province and was another harassment of the taxpayer by the government. The federal government had eliminated the gift tax because it felt the provisions of its new tax act covered the situation, he said.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, an accountant and tax expert, said that although the legislation was complicated the federal tax laws in Ottawa were far worse.

The legislation had been agreed to by most provinces, he said, and really represented only "an amicable transfer" of revenue from the federal government to the provincial governments.

Bennett said the gift tax would not raise much money in itself but was essential to protect the province's succession duties.

Capozzi said the tax would really mean that "initiative in the province will be taxed three times" he was referring to federal capital gains tax, the gift tax and succession duties.

The tax showed that "we are being pushed more and more into the socialist concept in which the state has the right to take everything" above the basic necessities," B.C., he said, when what was he said.

It would limit investment in needed was to bring more capital into the province.

Minor Changes Urged

Movie Scans 'Working'

The Legislature's committee on movie classifications reported Friday the Motion Picture Act, 1970, is "working well" but recommended constant vigilance to ensure that the restricted category doesn't become "a receptacle for filmed trash."

It recommended the present adult category should be changed to "mature entertainment" and said that, for restricted movies, anyone under 18 should be covered by a consent form signed by an accompanying responsible adult.

The report said the committee considered recommending establishment of a fourth X-rating for films which couldn't be shown in B.C. at present without censoring but rejected the proposal on the advice of both projectionists and exhibitors.

It made no reference to an earlier proposal by the committee for a review board to advise B.C. censor Ray McDonald on granting of certificates to controversial films. The MLAs officially viewed two films: Stanley Kramer's The Clockwork Orange and The Stewardesses.

The committee said lack of detailed knowledge of the classification system is a cause for concern among many people. It added that every movie theatre should be required to hand out pamphlets containing detailed information on the system and how it works.

Ads on newspaper theatre pages and advertising trailers made available to theatres are among other suggested ways of informing the public.

Finally the committee recommended increasing the staff of the director of film classification to provide a pool of experienced people "in the interests of future continuity."

Insurance 'Barons' Slammed

Amendments to the Insurance Act currently before the Legislature will do nothing but increase the stronghold which large insurance companies have over compulsory auto insurance in the province, Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) told the Legislature Friday.

Hartley said he believed the "insurance barons of Bay Street" had a hand in drafting the legislation and that it would work to their advantage.

He felt this was particularly noticeable when one considered that the Insurance Agents' Association was gathering money for political activity which would mean supporting the government in the next election. He was called to order by Speaker William Murray.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) and Herb Capozzi (SC Vancouver Centre) said the bill didn't go far enough in solving difficulties in the auto insurance industry in the province.

Gardom suggested a discount on prepaid premiums and a more definitive role for the Auto Insurance Board as an ombudsman while Capozzi said that in claims where payments were delayed, the interest should go to the claimant not the insurance company.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said these amendments were "immediate and simple" ones but others might have to be made later.

Other acts receiving approval in principle included the amendments to Legal Professions Act and the Podiatry Act.

School Changes Approved

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

Amendments to the Public Schools Act which have caused consternation among teachers and school trustees in British Columbia were debated and passed clause by clause in the Legislature Friday. All opposition members opposed the controversial clauses dealing with teachers' salaries, school financing and teacher dismissals.

Frank Ney (SC—Nanaimo) joined with the opposition to oppose the section which would require teachers' salary increases over a provincially-set level to be approved in a referendum but supported the rest of the bill.

Robert Wenman (SC—Delta), a teacher himself, was absent from the house when the vote was taken on the salary section.

During a wide-ranging debate on the issue, NDP and Liberal members repeated charges made in earlier debates on the bill that the legislation would destroy collective bargaining for teachers, would take away much of the power of district school boards, and would drastically lower the quality of education in some B.C. school districts.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett read a letter from the Prince George school board which criticized an advertisement the government had placed in newspapers last weekend advocating its stand on limiting education costs.

The letter said this was a waste of taxpayers' money which could better have been spent providing education for the children in the province.

Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) listed to the Legislature many programs which would have to be cut in the North Vancouver school district following the narrow defeat of an operating referendum there last week.

Many of the programs, such as outdoor education, kindergartens and major work classes, were ones which had received high praise from the education department but would have to go because of lack of money.

Ernie Hall (NDP—Surrey) described the amendments as "sheer unadulterated craziness" and said they showed the department had no trust in its trustees. They should be renamed rubber stamps, he suggested.

The amendments governing teacher dismissals were criticized because they did not make it mandatory that a teacher be paid during the period of his suspension and because they did not require that notice and reasons be given to teachers about to be suspended.

The bill must still receive final approval but this is just a formality and no further debate is expected.

Fishing Patrols Resumed by U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard said it plans to increase fisheries surveillance patrols next month in anticipation of return by foreign vessels to fishing areas off the Washington and Oregon coasts. The patrols, conducted year-round, had been reduced during the winter when foreign fishing activities has been minimal or nonexistent. Rear Adm. Joseph J. McClelland, commander of the 13th Coast Guard District, said both aircraft and surface patrols will be increased.

Report Urges Youth Program for All:

Opportunities Limited

OTTAWA (CP) — A report on the government's Opportunities for Youth program, tabled in the Commons Friday, says that the summer employment scheme should not be limited to students or even to youth.

The report, prepared by a committee within the department of the secretary of state, backs opposition criticism made in the House Thursday that the program caters to an elite group.

It also says that, while the program proved itself worthwhile in some respects last summer, it really didn't do much toward solving the unemployment problem or in providing students with enough money to return to school.

The tabling of the report on last year's $23 million OFY program, which is to be expanded into a $34 million program this summer, capped a Commons week that featured summer employment as a major issue.

On Thursday, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier announced that this summer's program has been oversubscribed with 19,112 applications for grants on behalf of about 190,000 youths under the OFY program by the March 8 deadline. Only 3,000 applications involving about 30,000 youths would be approved because of budget limitations.

Cairo, Moscow In Cool Phase

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet-Egyptian relations have reached an unprecedented low, resulting from deep resentment in Cairo over Soviet inactivity in the Middle East crisis, qualified diplomatic reports from the area said Friday.

The Soviets, in turn, are disappointed with their Egyptian allies, the reports said.

The Russians reportedly told President Anwar Sadat in no uncertain terms to forget for the foreseeable future any ideas about a military liberation campaign against Israel.

Soviet politicians and military, according to the reports, minced no words about the persistent unpreparedness of the Egyptian armed forces for such major action and the grave risks involved at present for an all-out offensive.

'Skinny' Travel Not for Curious

BON (UPI) — West Germany's Bundesbahn (federal railway) will soon offer trains with special compartments for nudists traveling to the North Sea island of Sylt, site of a well-known nudist colony. Passengers taking advantage of the deal will be allowed to travel "topless or bottomless or both," a train spokesman said. However, there is one catch. The special cars will be open only for those passengers who pack away their clothes in sleeping compartments or stow them away in personal lockers on the train, the spokesman said. Passengers with clothes on will have to stay in the regular cars.

Bank Stickup Ma Flees with $600

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

A bank robber who used a withdrawal slip for his holdup note just before noon Friday in Langford didn't get his wish for "all big bills" because of the coolness of a bank teller who was going through her second holdup.

Instead, the "average-looking" robber got only about $600 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at 752 Goldstream before escaping in a car and eluding a police dragnet of more than 30 cars spread across southern Vancouver Island.

The robber was described as about 40, six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, with dark curly hair and wearing a green ski jacket, light-colored slacks, dark shoes and dark sunglasses. He left in a light green, late-model sedan.

Staff Sgt. Lloyd Smith, officer in charge of the Colwood RCMP detachment, asked that anyone with information on the holdup man — either at the time of the robbery or since — phone his office at 388-3123.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 11:50 a.m. and printed these words on a withdrawal slip, "Hold Up, Live Longer, All Big Bills, Have Gun."

He gave the note to teller Mrs. Joyce Copeman, Happy Valley Road, saying nothing. She tried to stall and the man said something to the effect of "Let's get on with it."

Campbell Praises Council Stand

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

North Saanich council was commended Friday night by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell for the stand it took earlier on council indemnities.

At a special meeting Friday afternoon council decided to hold the line on indemnities for aldermen and increase that of the mayor by $100 a year.

"It was a very responsible position to take," Campbell said and noted it was the first municipal council to come within the proposed government guidelines limiting indemnity increases that are now before the Legislature in amendments to the Municipal Act.

The proposed indemnity bylaw when first introduced at open council Friday would have allowed an increase for aldermen from the current $700 to $1,000 a year and for Mayor Trevor Davis from $2,600 to $3,600.

Davis told council the proposed increase was "very modest" and noted the increasing responsibilities borne by council members.

"It is only a token compensation," he said, and emphasized that in "no way" did it begin to compensate aldermen for their responsibilities.

Ald. Nell Horth said that she had never measured her service to the community in terms of money.

"I'd be plain embarrassed to take a raise," Ald. H. A. Taylor said emphatically and noted there were many people in the municipality living on fixed incomes. Council was also trying to hold down costs.

The mayor pointed out the purpose of the bylaw was to provide "further compensation" for aldermen before indemnity-restricting legislation was passed in the Legislature.

Mrs. Horth said the indemnities could be raised at any time provided they came within the government guidelines

Council decided to amend the bylaw so the indemnities for aldermen would be unchanged at $700 and that of the mayor's to be increased from the basic $2,600 to $2,700 a year.

Ald. Paul Grieve and the mayor opposed the decision.

Hydro Expropriation

Land Valuation Price Doubled in Court Test

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

B.C. Hydro has been ordered by a County Court judge to pay a Munn Road property owner more than double the sum the crown agency first claimed was a proper price for the five-acre site.

Judge M. L. T. Drake, in a judgment handed down earlier this week, stated that $17,848.35 is the compensation that should be paid to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden for the property Hydro has expropriated for a powerline right-of-way.

Before Hydro got a cabinet order expropriating the land on Jan. 29, 1971, its top offer to the Bordens was $7,500.

First Tested

This is the first Hydro expropriation in the Munn Road area that has been tested at the level of a County Court judge.

Almost every property owner along Munn Road and the Highlands, where Hydro is putting through a new power system, has complained about the prices the Crown authority has paid for their land.

P. A. Codyre, 1890 Munn Road, likely is the best-known of the group. He is so inflamed over Hydro's prices and tactics that he has refused to leave his home and four acres that also have been expropriated.

Planned Home

However, the Bordens, who live at 2144 Ferndale Road, Saanich, hoped to eventually use their five acres at 2100 Munn Road for a new home.

When they refused Hydro's offer of $7,500, their property was expropriated by a provincial cabinet order. Under the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Act, they had the right to ask for an appraisal by a government-appointed valuator and they did so.

The valuator, J. G. Ritchie of Victoria, reported that the replacement value of the Borden's property was $13,585, or roughly $6,000 more than Hydro's highest offer to the Bordens before it expropriated the property.

However, Hydro thought the Ritchie valuation was excessive and it ordered its lawyers to take the issue to a County Court judge. That is how the matter went before Drake, who has now set the value of the property at more than double Hydro's offer and $4,000 more than that of the government-appointed valuator.

Drake stated that while the five acres may now be a parcel of wild land, its price must be calculated on the basis of its highest and best use, which he said is that of a country homesite.

Not Impressed

The judge said the Ritchie valuation erred in that it spoke of market values. Compensation must represent the value to the owner of the property taken and not the cost of replacement, he said.

The judge stated he was not "particularly impressed" by the evidence of H. R. Jones, an appraiser whom Hydro called as a witness at the hearing. He valued the parcel simply as vacant land and based his value on a study of seven recent sales, admitting there were no exact comparisons.

Allen Keenleyside, another appraiser who was a Hydro witness, also made no allowances for various valuable intangibles such as topography, location or municipal services "nor did he search very far in the market area for comparable sites," said Drake.

Unique Nature

He then reviewed the evidence of P. J. Jackson, an appraiser who appeared on behalf of the Bordens.

"Not only did this witness recognize the somewhat unique nature of the property taken but he studied some 12 comparable properties and covered a wider area in his search for comparisons, thus indicating his knowledge of the realities of the real estate market in the southern Saanich Peninsula and the Highland district area," said the judge.

Drake said Jackson came to a market value that was only $30 away from the Ritchie estimate.

(The Bordens said they would have accepted the Ritchie estimate of $13,585 if Hydro had not taken them to court.)

Power Easement

The Jackson estimate did not include the 1.65 acres of Borden property already occupied by a power line easement. The judge noted Borden testified that the easement did not interfere with his enjoyment of the property and therefore, said Drake, the per acre value of $3,369.97 should apply to the whole area.

Added to that was $1,000 for improvements — Drake noted that a primitive road and a cabin on the property were used by the Bordens from time to time.

"I can find no special value to the owner over and above all the factors reflected in the market value and so find the compensation payable to the owners by the Authority to be $17,848.35," stated the judge.

Cost $6,000

Mrs. Borden said Friday the whole episode with Hydro has cost the family about $6,000. In addition, she said, Hydro has been flagrantly wasting taxpayers' money by being vexatious.

All of its lawyers and appraisers work at public expense, she stated.

Codyre said the outcome of the Borden case proves what he has been claiming for two years about Hydro's expropriation policies.

He also reiterated that B.C.'s expropriation laws need updating and the report of the B.C. Law Reform Commission on that topic will be tabled "until Hydro gets all the land it needs for its disgraceful powerlines."

Old Trick

"Provincial Secretary Wesley Black says the report needs more study," said Codyre. "It's just another old trick that is being pulled before the election. The government will take it out of mothballs again in two or three years."

The power line that will march through the properties formerly owned by the Bordens, Codyres and other persons along Munn Road is the system that has been strongly attacked by local municipal councils.

Langford Branch

Bank Stickup Man Flees with $600

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

A bank robber who used a withdrawal slip for his holdup note just before noon Friday in Langford didn't get his wish for "all big bills" because of the coolness of a bank teller who was going through her second holdup.

Instead, the "average-looking" robber got only about $600 from the Canadian-Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at 752 Goldstream before escaping in a car and eluding a police dragnet of more than 30 cars spread across southern Vancouver Island.

The robber was described as about 40, six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, with dark curly hair and wearing a green ski jacket, light-colored slacks, dark shoes and dark sunglasses. He left in a light green, late-model sedan.

Staff Sgt. Lloyd Smith, officer in charge of the Colwood RCMP detachment, asked that anyone with information on the holdup man — either at the time of the robbery or since — phone his office at 388-3123.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 11:50 a.m. and printed these words on a withdrawal slip. "Hold Up. Live Longer. All Big Bills. Have Gun."

He gave the note to teller Mrs. Joyce Copeman, Happy Valley Road, saying nothing. She tried to stall and the man said something to the effect of "Let's get on with it."

Mrs. Copeman, who was robbed of about $6,000 during a 1966 holdup of a Vancouver bank where she was a teller, decided against giving him big bills and shoved a mass of small bills through the wicket instead.

The man took them in his hands, walked past the only other customer in the bank — a woman directly behind him — and went out the door.

He then ran across the small parking lot of the Westbrook shopping plaza, of which the bank is a part, got into a parked car and drove north. The woman customer ran to the front window and provided police with their only description of the car.

As Mrs. Copeman sounded the alarm, the officer in charge of the bank branch, Phil Lindsay, was talking on the phone to R. J. Walker, who manages both the Langford branch and one at 307 Goldstream in Colwood. Walker, in his Colwood office, heard: "Oh," it's an alarm. We're being held up."

Colwood RCMP were notified at once and passed the word on to RCMP headquarters in Victoria and police in Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and the RCMP detachments in Sooke, Sidney, Duncan and Shawnigan Lake.

Walker, who said three persons were working in the robbed branch at the holdup time, praised Mrs. Copeman for her coolness. He said the branch had never been robbed before.

It was the first bank robbery in Greater Victoria since Sept. 24, 1970, when a young Ontarian robbed a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at Yates and Government and then went on a trail of terror that included two wounded Victoria policemen and six unhurt hostages.

The youth, who surrendered to U.S. authorities early Sept. 25 after holding some of the hostages in a boat that drifted across the border, was later sent to prison for 20 years.

Hear the Siren? Then Pull Over

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

Ask the average driver what he does when he hears sirens or sees flashing red emergency lights and he'll probably say he pulls his car over — and most of the time, he may be right.

But Oak Bay firemen have been reporting so many motorists ignoring emergency signals lately that Fire Chief Bill Pearson has issued a public appeal about the problem.

The chief estimates men of his department have gone on 70 emergency runs to date this year and says, that, during half or more of those runs, at least one driver did not pull over but, in fact, "just kept right on going."

How is it in other parts of Greater Victoria?

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons says go-ahead drivers are a problem on virtually every emergency run his department makes. Saanich Chief Glen Robbins says it isn't as much a problem in his area and spokesmen in Esquimalt and Langford say it is.

Pearson says firemen on a rig making an emergency run simply do not have the time to jot down the licence number of a go-ahead car.

He and other firemen say that the odd time a motorist is stopped for this offence, the answer is either "I didn't hear the siren" or "I didn't see the light" or "I didn't know I had to stop."

Well, the law is that drivers should pull over to the side of the road whenever an emergency vehicle is in their area — whether coming from behind or approaching. The penalty is several demerit points.

All departments said their men are warned they just can't go flat out. As Robbins said, firemen have a duty "to consider the public, too" — like the people with eyeglasses or hearing aids.

Robbins added the reason Saanich may not have the go-ahead problem to any great extent is that a police car travels in advance of every vehicle on an emergency run, clearing the way. Other departments agreed that was a good scheme but one chief said, "We shouldn't have to have police ahead of us to tell drivers to obey the law."

In Langford, the worst problem time is Sunday afternoon on the Trans-Canada Highway. Then, said one fireman, "nobody listens — and we have the loudest siren you can get."

Pearson and other spokesmen said they realized most drivers go along with the windows up and the radio on, which makes it difficult to hear a siren.

Campbell Praises Council Stand

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

At a special meeting Friday afternoon council decided to hold the line on indemnities for aldermen and increase that of the mayor by $100 a year.

"It was a very responsible position to take," Campbell said and noted it was the first municipal council to come within the proposed government guidelines limiting indemnity increases that are now before the Legislature in amendments to the Municipal Act.

Old Buildings Issue

Separate Groups Take Joint Aim

By BROCK KETCHAM
Colonist Reporter

Two separate groups of concerned citizens trying to achieve a similar goal in a confined area can lead to difficulties.

So, one of the citizen groups, which met Friday night to discuss ways in which old buildings in Victoria could be preserved, agreed on an amicable solution to the problem.

The newly-formed group, which has been named the Capital Region Heritage Foundation, decided to abandon a plan for setting up a formal organization.

Instead, it will attempt to join forces with the Greater Victoria Historic Building Foundation.

At Friday night's meeting, Bawlf told the 14 persons who attended that Foundation No. 1 — the historic building foundation — will be having a general meeting sometime after its board of trustees meets next Thursday.

Bawlf said Foundation No. 1 confines its interest to historic buildings while No. 2 would broaden its interest to all buildings of heritage value.

"Historic buildings tend to be historical monuments for persons or incidents," Bawlf said.

"Heritage buildings are those buildings which are of significance in broader social terms. They represent the heritage of our community . . . and we must preserve a wider cross-section of our heritage."

Referring to Foundation No. 1, Bawlf said: "There are people who take a narrower definition of what is worth preserving. They have had the best of intentions but in a narrow context."

Another meeting was scheduled for 8 p.m. April 7 in the auditorium of South Park elementary school and Bawlf handed out copies of a proposed program.

Bawlf told the persons that Foundation No. 2 must establish definite objectives and attend Foundation No. 1's next meeting to present those objectives.

"It is not sufficient to preserve the heritage merely by going and lying in front of a bulldozer at a demolition site," he said.

Although both groups should join together and attempt to create a "groundswell of support," Foundation No. 1 will have to scrap its formal name, Bawlf said. He said the mention of historic buildings in the name narrows the organization's goal.

At the meeting, Mrs. Kathleen Ransom, of 450 Simcoe, Peter Cotton, of 649 Admirals, Esquimalt, and Robert Peden, of 908 Sioux Place, Esquimalt, were chosen to act as a correspondence committee.

They were instructed to write a letter to Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien asking for information on the Heritage Canada program and how local organizations could participate.

Search for Lost Boys Stopped by Police

Central Saanich police have discontinued their search for two boys missing on a fishing trip since March 16, police said Friday night.

Site Survey Will Be by Air

A survey of possible sites on Vancouver Island for the United World College of the Pacific will be made from a seaplane by Earl Mountbatten of Burma Tuesday afternoon.

Mountbatten, chairman of the International Council of United World Colleges, will make the flight over Vancouver Island during his visit to Vancouver next week, Bertram Butler of Victoria reported Friday.

Butler, chairman of the United World College ad hoc committee which is negotiating for a site for the college, said the seaplane will not touch down on the Island during the tour.

He said the earl will leave Vancouver harbor for the flight over Southern portions of Vancouver Island in a MacMillan Bloedel plane after a noon address to a joint meeting of the Canadian, Rotary and Lions clubs.

J. V. Clyne, chairman of the large forest products company, made arrangements to provide the plane and pilot, Butler said. Clyne will be chairman of the board of governors of Pacific College.

Butler said the site committee is studying "three or four" possible sites for the college, locations of which are not being disclosed because of possible land speculation.

Butler said, however, that the sites are located on southern portions of the Island but he was unable to comment on when a site would be chosen.

Target date for opening of the college is September, 1973, with 60 students from Pacific rim countries attending. Enrolment is expected to reach 300 by 1975.

It will be the third in the United World College system. An Atlantic college is in operation at St. Donat's Castle in Wales and a second is to open in Singapore this year.

Golf Club Opens Season

Goose Was Belle of Ball

Dorothy Wrotnowski

The Krazy Hat contest held in conjunction of the annual spring opening of the Women's Section at Colwood Golf Club brought out both original and pretty hats.

The Kraziest hat was won hands down by Avis Nichol. Her upturned brimmed white hat had a huge toy goose riding on top — this gander or goose was most realistic, even to the feathers on the back. Across the front on a card was written "Too Lucy — the Goosey."

Other members thought this very funny — the reason being that geese are haunting the golf course pool with the result that one of the fairways is becoming well fertilized.

The most original hat also had connotations of the golf course. Doreen Brunston wore a transparent rain hat with snorkel in front with huge yellow satin bows and a golf ball hanging from a small cane. With all the rain, the course has been a bit wet and soggy at times.

Mildred Stelck won the prize for the prettiest hat. It was a large flatcircle with black falling ruffle around the brim. The entire top was ablaze with spring flowers.

Not a prize winner but a very pretty hat was worn by Freda Mineh — it had chicks perched atop pale yellow silky straw, looking like a large Easter nest. Anne Steele's flower covered cap was also one of the pretty ones. Terese Todd also had a pretty one — the large brim turned up at one side, two briliant blue ostrich plumes and quite a number of miniature birds. She is a bird watcher herself, or so I was told.

Someone remarked that it was sad that Florence Andrews looked at spring "that way." They were referring to her hat which was covered with spring-cleaning equipment, even to scouring and SOS pads.

Jean Stokes women's captain had her hat covered with green paper and daffodils around the crown with two love birds on the top, and Nora Montgomery wore a huge paper daffodil as her pretty choice.

There were lovely large arrangements of spring blossoms and tulips and other spring flowers around the lunge, smaller arrangements on the lunch tables and a basket filled with sprigs of forsythia, plum, daffodils, white hyacinths, primula and daphne at the head table.

After lunch the prize-giving took place. First on the list were the foursome winners and runners up for the game played in the morning.

Winners were Marge Thorburn, Anne Shields, Anne Belither and Dale Wilson. Runners-up were Claire Ditchburn, Ann Stainforth, Elva Callbeck and Claire Maybie.

Then came gifts of a golf ball to new members present, Thelma Bydel, Ruth Harris, Joan Quatsch, Marj Pickrem and Mary Reid.

When it came to the draw for the door prizes, laughter exploded until it reached an hilarious stage. Sheila Morgan, president of the Canadian Women's Golf Association, Vancouver Island Branch, presented the prizes after Jean Stokes drew the tickets.

Jean not only drew her own ticket but the three people sitting to her left: two members of the executive, Terese Todd and Jean Tyson, and myself.

Don't think that it not only caused the laughter, it also brought forth some pointed comments. And Jean really was embarrassed.

FLORENCE ANDREWS, left, in a hat loaded with spring cleaning equipment and Avis Nichol in her prize-winning goosey hat.

Crime Victim's Award Increased

EDMONTON (CP) — The widow of a murder victim has been awarded $393 a month for one year, the Alberta Crimes Compensation board said Wednesday. Lynn Charlotte Hydamacka, 25, previously had been receiving $300 monthly after the original hearing of the board a year ago.

Disease Source Taught Pupils

MONTREAL (CP) — Loyola College is giving a free course in preventive medicine, sparked by what health service supervisor Margaret Fraser calls the "onslaught" of venereal disease during the current term. The course also will deal with abortion, contraception, cancer, alcoholism, diabetes, epilepsy and the menopause.

High Illegitimacy 'Not a Right'

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — The state should have the power to take away from an unwed mother any illegitimate children after the first two and all illegitimate children of girls under 16, the California social welfare board has proposed.

The board also recommended the state be empowered to take away illegitimate children from a mother who would not aid investigators in identifying the father.

"What we are saying is that a woman does not have the right to have as many illegitimate children as she chooses," said board chairman Robert Mitchell, a Norwalk attorney, to a news conference.

"That is not normal in our society and it is not acceptable in our society."

The board's seven members were appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to serve as an advisory panel to the state department of social welfare.

The board said the recommendations did not refer only to women on welfare.

But, the board said, California leads the nation in illegitimate births, with a rate three times the national average, and there are 234,000 illegitimate children on the welfare rolls, costing the state $160 million a year.

The law should be amended to empower the state to seize infants born to unwed mothers under certain circumstances and put the children up for adoption.

"When a child has the chance of a good home with adopted parents, the child has a right to have that home," said Mrs. Dorothy Natland of Laguna Beach. She said that for several years she has studied the children of unfit mothers, and children placed in temporary foster homes.

After several years of such a life, the children "have built-in emotional problems and are no longer adoptable," she said. "It is the unloved child we want to help, the unwanted child."

Under the proposals, a woman giving birth to a third illegitimate child could be presumed to be an unfit mother, and the child — and any subsequent illegitimate children — would be taken away by social welfare authorities and placed for adoption. All illegitimate children would be taken from mothers less than 16 years old.

The board proposed a state law requiring that the paternity of an illegitimate child be established within six months of birth, unless it was put up for adoption.

If the mother refused to cooperate in identifying the father, that would also be legal grounds to take away the child, the board proposed.

The mother would have the right to a court hearing if she wanted to keep the child and felt she could prove it would have a decent home, the board said.

"Our proposals are provacative," conceded Mitchell, "but they have the expectation of stimulating discussion leading to a greater emphasis on the rights, physical well-being and social development of these youngsters."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I grew up reading your column and your word is law where I'm concerned. My problem is driving me nuts because just when I think I have it settled one way, something happens to change my mind.

I am 24 and there are two men in my life. They both want to marry me. My four-year-old daughter, Beverly, dislikes Artie because he refuses to cater to her and he won't let her get away with anything. He is a strict disciplinarian and doesn't stand for any foolishness. Joe, on the other hand, spoils Beverly rotten. She can twist him around her little finger. Of course, she is crazy about him.

I don't need either of these men for financial support. I have my own money and have always been able to command a good salary. I am happier when I'm with Artie. We always have so much to talk about and we get along well together. But I do think a woman with a child should consider that child's feelings when she thinks of remarriage. Beverly keeps telling me she wants Joe to be her daddy. I need your help, Ann. —Two for One.

Dear Two: Any woman who would let a four-year-old child tell her who to marry is beyond my reach.

I am not about to make the decision for you either, but I can tell you that a parent who allows a child to do as she pleases does that child no favor. Discipline is a special kind of love. It's also hard work. It's easier to say yes than no — and kids know it.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my brother Marty moved out of the house and into his own apartment. He let his hair grow long, smokes pot and has a girl living with him. The girl is Catholic and we are Jewish. All this has upset my mother to the point of hysteria. My father is also very unhappy about Marty's life style. But my brothers and I have decided that what really bugs Dad is that he has lost control over Marty.

Dad's "thing" is power and he needs to be in charge of everything and everybody. Even though Dad is annoyed by Marty's behavior as my brothers and I are also, he still gives him financial help whenever he asks for it.

I like my parents a lot and I also like Marty. But I believe he should be allowed to control his own life and find happiness in his own way. If he had to live under this roof, he'd be miserable. Secretly, I envy his freedom and look forward to the day when I can be on my own. Do you see any way that this family rift can be healed? We need a non-relative to give us an unbiased view. —A Brother.

Dear Brother: Not a day goes by that I don't receive at least 50 letters about this problem. Son moves out of the house. Wants his own pad. Girl moves in with him. Son is doing his own thing which means long hair and pot. Parents are unhappy. Son says, "I don't buy your system so flake off. But thanks for the car, Dad, and that last cheque sure came in handy. Can you spare another twenty clams? I'm outa bread."

For those who want to do their own thing, I say okay. Go do it. But don't expect your parents to subsidize you. Parents don't owe a son rent money for a separate pad with some chick. They do owe him a warm welcome if the kid decides to come home and abide by the house rules. They also owe him therapy he wants it — and most of them need it.

Liberation

She Started

By DIGBY DIEHL
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Gloria Steinem is the living symbol of the women's movement in North America. She is an articulate speaker, a talented writer, and — as even other women have been quick to point out — she looks fantastic in a miniskirt, jeans or a burlap bag.

Emerging from a deprived childhood in the slums of Toledo, Ohio, she was graduated from Smith College in 1956, a summa cum laude in political science.

Her 1963 diary of her experiences working in a playboy club as a bunny, published in Show magazine, launched her carreer as a freelance writer. In 1968 she became a contributing editor and political columnist for New York magazine.

In that year she also discovered feminism. Attending a meeting of a women's liberation group called the Redstockings, she became instantly drawn into the maze of emotions, problems and struggles that have engrossed her since.

In this question and answer format, she expresses her viewpoints on feminism in a changing society.

Q: Doesn't all the pressure and guilt from society work against the women's movement? Aren't there a lot of middle-class women who are angry with you for criticizing their way of life?

Steinem: There's a reaction to the image of the women's movement in the press, which represents us as saying that women should get out of the house, that being a housewife is terrible, motherhood is terrible. But, in fact, what the women's movement is saying is that human work is valuable, that all dignified work should be rewarded, and that what the woman does at home is an important job. Motherhood can just as easily be called superior as inferior. And if it's so important to do housework, men should do it, too. It's not taking away dignity or identity, it's giving it. When I stand up and say that to an audience of women, I don't get a hostile reaction.

Q: What role will your new magazine, Ms., play in the women's movement?

Steinem: The existing mass magazines are only duplicating television. They are dependent upon advertising, and women usually show up in their pages as very conventional, role-defined people. Most women's magazines simply try to mould women into bigger and better consumers in the capitalist marketplace. Ms. is beginning with the unusual premise that women are human beings.

Q: How will you implement that premise?

Steinem: As you may have seen in our first issue, we want to reflect all the capabilities, the hopes and the dreams that women have. I hope Ms. will be a forum for complaints and discussion of women's weaknesses as well as a place for muckraking studies of female exploitation. For example, something as simple as health information isn't really available in the mass magazines at present. The health community doesn't really serve anyone, but it serves women even less. This isn't confronted in McCall's or Ladies' Home Journal, because they're afraid to cross the American Medical Association. In the traditional kinds of review columns, we want to look at areas like books and movies with a humanist viewpoint. We will try to see what image of women is being depicted in our arts and media. Q: I know that the staff is almost completely female, but will you have men writing for the magazine?

Steinem: I suppose if the male press now can have some token females, we'll have a few token men. Seriously, men with ideas to offer the women's movement will certainly have a place in Ms. Nick Von Hoffman wants to do an article for us on his own particular marriage arrangement. He has incorporated himself and given half the shares in the corporation to the woman he lives with. They sold the house to the corporation and rented it back; each of them receives a salary from the corporation, which is a tax advantage. It's a terrific jab into the heart of the free enterprise system, and is egalitarian, which the conventional marriage is not.

Q: If the intentions of the women's movement are not separatist, why call the magazine Ms.? Why not just M.?

Steinem: Women still have a lot of self-defining and discussing among themselves to do before we can work hand in hand with men for a genuine re-organization of society. Women's groups simply can't include men in them yet, because most men aren't honest in their relationships with women. This is a the whole humar that I think will termed. Liberation's Symbol

She Started with Redstockings

By DIGBY DIEHL
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — Gloria Steinem is the living symbol of the women's movement in North America. She is an articulate speaker, a talented writer, and — as even other women have been quick to point out — she looks fantastic in a miniskirt, jeans or a burlap bag.

Emerging from a deprived childhood in the slums of Toledo, Ohio, she was graduated from Smith College in 1956, a summa cum laude in political science.

Her 1963 diary of her experiences working in a playboy club as a bunny, published in Show magazine, launched her carreer as a freelance writer. In 1968 she became a contributing editor and political columnist for New York magazine.

In that year she also discovered feminism. Attending a meeting of a women's liberation group called the Redstockings, she became instantly drawn into the maze of emotions, problems and struggles that have engrossed her since.

In this question and answer format, she expresses her viewpoints on feminism in a changing society.

Q: Doesn't all the pressure and guilt from society work against the women's movement? Aren't there a lot of middle-class women who are angry with you for criticizing their way of life?

Steinem: There's a reaction to the image of the women's movement in the press, which represents us as saying that women should get out of the house, that being a housewife is terrible, motherhood is terrible. But, in fact, what the women's movement is saying is that human work is valuable, that all dignified work should be rewarded, and that what the woman does at home is an important job. Motherhood can just as easily be called superior as inferior. And if it's so important to do housework, men should do it, too. It's not taking away dignity or identity, it's giving it. When I stand up and say that to an audience of women, I don't get a hostile reaction.

Q: What role will your new magazine, Ms., play in the women's movement?

Steinem: The existing mass magazines are only duplicating television. They are dependent upon advertising, and women usually show up in their pages as very conventional, role-defined people. Most women's magazines simply try to mould women into bigger and better consumers in the capitalist marketplace. Ms. is beginning with the unusual premise that women are human beings.

Q: How will you implement that premise?

Steinem: As you may have seen in our first issue, we want to reflect all the capabilities, the hopes and the dreams that women have. I hope Ms. will be a forum for complaints and discussion of women's weaknesses as well as a place for muckraking studies of female exploitation. For example, something as simple as health imformation isn't really available in the mass magazines at present. The health community doesn't really serve anyone, but it serves women even less. This isn't confronted in McCall's or Ladies' Home Journal, because they're afraid to cross the American Medical Association. In the traditional kinds of review columns, we want to look at areas like books and movies with a humanist viewpoint. We will try to see what image of women is being depicted in our arts and media. For example, Love Story should have been reviewed as the story of a woman who was dying of self-abnegation, a woman who got cancer from doing nothing.

Q: I know that the staff is almost completely female, but will you have men writing for the magazine?

Steinem: I suppose if the male press now can have some token females, we'll have a few token men. Seriously, men with ideas to offer the women's movement will certainly have a place in Ms. Nick Von Hoffman wants to do an article for us on his own particular marriage arrangement. He has incorporated himself and given half the shares in the corporation to the woman he lives with. They sold the house to the corporation and rented it back; each of them receives a salary from the corporation, which is a tax advantage. It's a terrific jab into the heart of the free enterprise system, and is egalitarian, which the conventional marriage is not.

Q: If the intentions of the women's movement are not separatist, why call the magazine Ms.? Why not just M.?

Steinem: Women still have a lot of self-defining and discussing among themselves to do before we can work hand in hand with men for a genuine re-organization of society. Women's groups simply can't include men in them yet, because most men aren't honest in their relationships with women. This is an aspect of the whole human revolution that I think will be short-termed. After all, women want to live with men. No one can live separately.

Q: Many social commentators feel that it is significant that the movement for women's liberation has followed on the heels of the pill and the whole sexual freedom vogue in the United States. Do you think the two are related?

Steinem: Perhaps there is a sociological relationship, but I think that the so-called sexual revolution is antithetical to women's liberation. It's designed to make women more available to men, without any increase of pleasure on the part of women. It doesn't enlighten anybody.

Q: I think a lot of women would consider some of the new sex books educational in a mass-market sense, books such as The Sensuous Woman, or Any Woman Can.

Steinem: Any Woman Can is simply about how a woman should play the prostitute's role for her man. In that book, Dr. Reuben tries to prove that it is in the woman's self-interest to play this prostitute role, but what he never suggests is that you should change the man. It generates great hostility if I say that, because obviously, it's in a man's interest to say: What are you going to do if I don't change? If you would dare to say that you'd find another man, they explode. And yet, that's a clearly logical thing to say.

Q: Female homosexuality seems to be an oft-mentioned area in the women's movement. How do you feel about that?

Steinem: It's a female experience. It's for women who are basically heterosexual and who have had several bisexual experiences, or for women who are totally identified with women. It's all a part of what women experience. We have an interview in the first issue of Ms. which concerns two women who have such a good friendship that they discover they really love each other. And after you finish reading it, you end up saying, so what else is new? It's so simple. The whole idea of homosexual experience in a man's life is so much more written about only because women's homosexuality isn't taken seriously. Even when they do think about it, men think a woman homosexual could be turned around by a good night in bed with a man. They're not threatened because they assume there couldn't be true love between two women.

Q: But isn't there a "who needs men?" aspect to it?

Steinem: Yes. There is that separatists aspect. There are some women who intellectually want to be lesbians. Maybe we have been socially directed toward one sexual way, but it's too late for most women to do anything about it.

Q: Since men and women are apparently stuck with each other, don't you think this is an area in which differences ought to be admitted?

Steinem: In this sexual area, in a different way from men, women are very tough. The male ego is right up there and all spread out, and therefore very vulnerable. But the woman is like an acorn — very tough, and capable of taking a lot of punishment before you get to it, but when you do, then by God —

Q: Do you really believe this?

Steinem: Yes. Society allows it to be true, because it allows men to have this enormous sense of honor, and so men have this big unrealistic ego, which makes them more vulnerable. The first thing that a male child learns is that he cannot do what his mother can do. He cannot reproduce himself. He is shattered. So society bolsters and protects that ego.

WESTPORT, Conn. — As you know, I'm 41, Divorced. Of course you know that. And I am fairly well "liberated" for the most part, having worked as a journalist for the last eight years — as soon as one of you left for nursery school and the other to first or second grade.

I always worked nearby in case one of you got sick, as happened often when the nurse would call the newspaper from school and talk about your temperature or fatigue and would I please come pick you up.

I always had help, one way or another, whether I could afford it or not, because I worked, and couldn't bear the thought of your coming home from school to an empty house. And because I hated housework; it was not something in which I excelled.

And for these five years of the divorce you have watched me become rather self-sufficient, independent. Men have been on the scene and we have all coped with the delight and despair and utter necessity of them.

I have been to a few consciousness-raising sessions, consisting mostly of suburban married women. And I would not change places with these women. Their marriages appear constricting to many of them, the constraints being very real, the monogamous state strangely confining. My own "liberation," self-imposed, has been out of desire and necessity. And at this point I am comfortable with it.

But what concerns me now, with your young womanhood approaching, and my "fulfilling" myself as a writer more and more is . . . priorities.

In other words, when you say to me, as one of you did recently after sharing an intimate confidence, your arm covering your eyes so I wouldn't see your pain, the tears escaping under your elbow down your cheeks, when you said to me, "Do you know this is the first time you have really talked to me in a long time, and I feel so much better just for that," I am taken aback.

And I think about your faces behind the shut door of my room when I confront the typewriter at night after being away at work all day. And I think about coming home from work at 7 or 8 o'clock sometimes, irritable and tired and ill-equipped to be an understanding mother.

And I think about Gloria Steinem and the beautiful sense she makes, and how right she is in demanding a re-evaluation of the relationship between the sexes, and the essential feeling of self-worth women must have as professionals and people, as well as females.

But I wonder what she would do at those moments when a daughter just needs her mother and whatever wise womanly self that mother can muster, and she is not there, but out fulfilling herself.

And when I pull your arm away from your eyes, and look at the moist brown, and kiss away the wetness, I wonder about liberation. I wonder about dedication to one's work. I read that politicians rue the travelling involved in campaigns because it takes them away from their families, and I wonder who is going to dry the eyes of the children of the women's caucus, and talk into the night about what it is just to be in this world, and especially what it is to be a woman.

I wonder about those feminists who decry having husbands or fathers for their babies. I respect their zeal and independence, but a baby becomes a person all too soon, and what a mother should give to that person as the maturer of the two is awesome.

So I am taken up short.

I am saying to you, I'm sorry when I throw you out of my room when I want to write. And I'm sorry that I miss those moments and let the days go by without sensing that we have not talked. And I'm saying I wonder if there is a way to be all things to all people, especially your children, and be "liberated" at the same time.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my brother Marty moved out of the house and into his own apartment. He let his hair grow long, smokes pot and has a girl living with him. The girl is Catholic and we are Jewish. All this has upset my mother to the point of hysteria. My father is also very unhappy about Marty's life style. But my brothers and I have decided that what really bugs Dad is that he has lost control over Marty.

Dad's "thing" is power and he needs to be in charge of everything and everybody. Even though Dad is annoyed by Marty's behavior — as my brothers and I are also — he still gives him financial help whenever he asks for it.

I like my parents a lot and I also like Marty. But I believe he should be allowed to control his own life and find happiness in his own way. If he had to live under this roof, he'd be miserable. Secretly, I envy his freedom and look forward to the day when I can be on my own. Do you see any way that this family rift can be healed? We need a non-relative to give us an unbiased view. — A Brother.

Dear Brother: Not a day goes by that I don't receive at least 50 letters about this problem. Son moves out of the house. Wants his own pad. Girl moves in with him. Son is doing his own thing which means long hair and pot. Parents are unhappy. Son says, "I don't buy your system so flake off. But thanks for the car, Dad, and that last cheque sure came in handy. Can you spare another twenty clams? I'm outa bread."

For those who want to do their own thing, I say okay. Go do it. But don't expect your parents to subsidize you. Parents don't owe a son rent money for a separte pad with some chick. They do owe him a warm welcome if the kid decides to come home and abide by the house rules. They also owe him therapy he wants it — and most of them need it.

Victoria Symphony Fights To Keep Playing

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Reporter

Recreation, in this world of increasing leisure time and, especially in Victoria, years of retirement, is a matter of growing importance.

The forms of recreation are multitude, embracing the arts, sports, hobbies — a thousand ways of spending time to the benefit of the spender. It seems to make sense that with more time available, it could well be divided among two or more of the pursuits available.

On the other hand, these forms of recreation are in themselves businesses, which must prosper to some degree or collapse. Should that happen, the loss belongs to the thousands of participants, not just to those in "the business" itself.

A case in point is the Victoria Symphony Orchestra. It is far from facing oblivion, but it is having a battle, tougher every year, to keep its head above financial waters.

In an interview with Stuart Soward, past president of the symphony society and a member of its executive, made this very clear while indicating hopeful plans for improvement. He offered, too, information from sources in tht United States that some of the most famous symphony orchestras in that country are in far worse shape than ours — tottering, in fact, on the verge of bankruptcy.

The reason is easy to see: a steadily increasing gap between revenue and expenses.

Soward offered these figures:

Victoria Symphony revenue for the current year consisted of $120,600 from concerts and special concerts, and $81,657 from grants and other sources, for a total of $202,257.

Expenses came under three headings: direct (concerts and special events), $176,000; production: $22,000; administration: $26,800, for a total of $224,800.

Deficit: $22,543.

Revenue, concerts and special concerts: $123,600; grants and other sources: $85,000; total: $208,600.

Deficit: $25,900.

Revenue from ticket sales and other sources for the past year totalled $120,000; expenses concerning the orchestra (salary, theatre rent, etc.) totalled $176,000. Loss: $55,400.

Soward . . . donations static

Projected similar revenue for next year: $123,600; expenses: $183,500. Loss: $59,900.

The gap is clearly widening.

"I feel," said Soward, "that it's a matttr for discussion between the symphony and the community. I think over the years the symphony has grown and now we must identify ourselves ultimately to see where we go from here.

"I think this is generally applicable to all societies. They are all endeavoring to meet their financial goals and at the same time work within limitations, and then, also, meet the public's requirements."

Soward saw as a primary aim the need to identify the degree of public support given the symphony, financially and through attendance at concerts.

Another area was that of grants, on the three layers of government.

"I think, also, that donations and general fund-raising have yet to be identified to the extent that we can determine the limits available."

It was in this connection, Soward said, that he and Albert Hestler, a society director, had been asked by the finance committee to prepare the projection of revenue-expense figures referred to above.

Expenses could be determined readily; the question of how much support could be generated locally, at the various levels of donors, had yet to be completed.

"We're making a good stab at it," he said, "with the Jack Benny concert.

"We can't do this every year, of course, so we must amortize what we make over the next two or three years and then come up with something else. It's a very significant goal we are after, because it would virtually bail us out of the debt that is forecast for this year."

Soward said he felt the symphony had flattened out to a certain extent on season ticket sales, while expenses had to go up each year just through economic inflation. Increasing the corps of the orchestra had also increased expenses, but had made the symphony stronger in its field of work and better able to branch out into school work.

"It all comes to the same thing," said Soward. "You must identify your costs and work within a certain degree of relationship between them and your goals, because you can't plan and spend and then look for the money.

"You can't look at culture in terms of profit and loss, but you have to have some way of putting it together to see what you are going to come out with.

"Our donations have remained almost static. Our grants from the federal and provincial levels have increased quite nicely, running from about eight to 10 per cent more each year, but this barely keeps up with the cost increase.

"Our first aim is to increase our audience by about 800 members, and this will give us virtually a sellout condition at the Royal. If that is achieved, and I am sure it will be, we must relate that to a new performing arts centre.

"That way we can cut down on our expenses by about $50,000, by presenting the same number of concerts and getting one full house for each concert. But then that is a diminishing return because the orchestra can't play as many pieces and they can't get as much income, so we have to relate the two."

Soward believed a secondary aim is to create a balance of objectives that must be achieved within the means available, bearing in mind "that the No. 1 goal is survival."

Quoting from the American Society of Symphonies Newsletter, he said too many organizations were foundering today because they try to accomplish too much too quickly, and they either underestimate their costs or overestimate the financial resources available. "Risk . . . must be analyzed to ensure that it is calculated so failure would not be fatal."

The society, Soward said, was taking other steps under study to improve its position. One possibility was increasing its board strength by reducing its numbers but acquiring people with more time to give to symphony work.

The society also must look ahead on membership. Many of its first and present members are no longer young, and means must be found to draw in young people.

Such events as the Paul Horn concert, plus an increase in the number of young people actually in the orchestra and the work done in schools would, it was hoped, help in this direction.

For the rest, other means of fund-raising must be explored, and close study was now being given this avenue.

Musical Figure

Tupman Rites Due Monday

Tupman . . . choir ma

He came to Victoria more than 50 years ago, and had been director of Victoria Male Choir, Metropolitan Church choir, David Spencer choir, Victoria high school choir, and of massed choirs.

He was a member of Arion Male Choir for a long time and, at the time of his death, was its conductor-emeritus. In addition, he had been a vocal teacher and for more than 30 years manager of the Western Music Store.

He was also past president of the Sons of England.

Tupman was born in Devonshire and moved to Canada with his family in 1911. They lived first in Saskatoon and then, shortly after his marriage, on a family homestead near Prince Albert. They moved to Victoria in 1920.

Surviving are his widow, Margaret, at home, 5171 Agate Lane; two sons, Vernon, Victoria and Dennis, Vancouver; two daughters, Myrtle Campbell, Vernon and Clarice Gaskill, Nanaimo. There are nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Rev. A. E. King will conduct funeral services at 1:15 p.m. Monday at Metropolitan United Church. Burial will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Flight directors made the final phase of Pioneer 10's second mid-course correction as the unmanned spacecraft continued its journey to Jupiter. The first burn lasted 34 seconds. Flight engineers at NASA's Ames Research centre termed it "successful." 'Clan' Makes Chess Name

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Robin Schofield, then in Grade 2 at Brentwood elementary, did it last year by winning the first C-FAX elementary schools championship, even though he was only taught the game a year earlier by his brother Robert, who was in grade 5 at the same school last year.

This year, with more than 2,300 pupils teeing off in the giant chess jamboree, young Robin Schofield didn't even get past his Grade 3 playoffs which were won by Richard Coverdale of Keating.

However, Robert Schofield, now in Grade 6 at Brentwood, more than made up for it by going all the way into the grand championship final.

Boge plays, referee Allan Ferguson

The final is scheduled for this morning at Hillside shopping centre mall as part of a special Meet-the-Champs Day.

Chess sets will be set up in the mall and all grade finalists from the C-FAX tournament will take on all comers, starting at 9:30 a.m. and continuing to about 4 p.m.

The five finalists earlier eliminated by Robert Schofield and Crowther — who will all be there for the champs' day this morning — are Coverdale; Adrian Sutherland, Rockheights; Ralph Boge, Vic West; Steven Moody, View Royal, and Jim Michaels, Happy Valley.

According to Cyril Large, tournament co-ordinator, runners-up from the seven grade finals also will be at the exhibition. They are Alexander Gibb, Doncaster; Michael Loeschnik, Christian elementary; Robert Dynowski, McKenzie; Stuart Blasner, Hillcrest; Karl Ullrich, Burnside; Kerry Chan, also Burnside, and Francois Robillard, St. Patrick's.

"The public, of course, is invited and encouraged to come and meet the champs," Large emphasized.

Alaska Tremor Not Dangerous

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — A moderate earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale occurred 220 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska, the Palmer Observatory said. The quake occurred at 10:38 p.m. EST and was felt in Port Heiden and King Salmon. The observatory said the magnitude was not sufficient to generate a tsunami, a large tidal wave. No damage was reported.

STAGE WHISPERS

By BERT BINNY

There will be no magic trumpet or talking tree or even a wizard at the McPherson Playhouse today.

The Bastion Theatre production yields place to something of a more mundane character — the annual meeting of B.C. Forest Products.

But the trumpet will be in tune and ready to go again April 1, 8 and 15.

Both start at 8 p.m. — the former with its final performance.

Sunday there are two school band concerts at the McPherson: Oak Bay at 2:30 p.m. and Cedar Hill at 7:30 p.m.

Oak Bay offers Grey, Scarlet, Jazz and Concert bands, led by Dave Dunnett and involving more than 200 performers with music from the mediaeval era clear down to the present day. Original band music by Latham, Rossini and Creston will be featured.

The Oak Bay high schools, incidentally, are in process of forming a marching band, too, for participation in the Belmont Park May parade, Victoria Day celebrations and Oak Bay Tea Party.

Additionally, they are co-sponsoring a walkathon with the Oak Bay Kiwanis May 13, just six days after a similar event by the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

There could be a lot of footsore musicians hereabouts around mid-May.

□

At the McPherson Sunday, the grey and scarlet of the afternoon charges to green and gold in the evening.

Their program includes items from the repertoire of Dixieland and the Beatles. The program dips infrequently into the classics; George Frederick Handel is about their only representative.

Cedar Hill's Gold band will be on stage for the second half and they will present items such as Mission Impossible and the theme from Exodus. Band director is Paul Curtis.

The 10th and final pair of symphony concerts for 1971-72, Sunday at 3 p.m. and Monday at 8:30 at the Royal Theatre, feature a guest artist right from our own backyard.

This is young pianist, May-Ling Kwok, who won the City of Victoria Medallion at the 1971 Greater Victoria Music Festival and subsequently also won the B.C. Music Festival in Vancouver.

She will be heard in Robert Schumann's A minor piano concerto.

Two plays, Tale Theatre and Night Play, will be presented by Victoria's Company One at the Art Gallery: 8 p.m. on March 27.

Boys' Choirs in Haydn Mass

Boys' choirs of St. John's Anglican Church and Glenlyon Boys' School, accompanied by the orchestra of the Victoria Conservatory of Music and Frances Carter at the organ, will perform the Nelson Mass in the church at 8 p.m. on Good Friday.

By coincidence, the mass will be performed on the birthday of the composer, Franz Josef Haydn.

John Gallienne, organist and choirmaster, at St. John's, who is directing the performance, says he believes this is the first time a work of this scale has been performed in Victoria by a boys' choir.

"It goes to show that, although many people say that choirs are dying out and fewer and fewer boys are interested in singing, there are still many boys who are willing to accept the challenge of tackling a full-scale choral work," he said.

In addition to the boys' choirs, the following soloists will sing: Karen Smith, soprano; Judy Temple, contralto; Charles Dorrington, tenor, and Ronald Bermingham, bass.

The Nelson Mass was given its name by the public because it was performed in Vienna shortly after Admiral Lord Nelson's naval Victory over Napoleon at Abukir in 1798. Haydn had named his work Missa in angustiis — Mass in time of Fear — but the popular name stuck.

Organist Plays On Wednesday

The conductor of the Bach choir at the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church in Berlin will give an organ recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday in St. John's Anglican Church.

The organist, Karl Hochreither, was professor of artistic organ playing at the Berlin School of Church Music for a year before taking his present position.

He was born in Speyer-Rhein in 1933 and studied philology, history and philosophy at the University of Freiburg before entering the Northwest German Music Academy in Detmold for courses in church music.

His teachers included Dr. Michael Schneider, organ; Kurt Thomas, choir conducting; Wolfgang Fortner and Josh. Driessler, composition, and Irmgard Lechner, harpsichord.

He has made recordings with almost all German companies as well as those of other countries and is well-known for his concert activities in many parts of the world.

Workshop Develops Potential

California psychologist Dr. Herbert Otto will conduct a one-day workshop in methods of actualizing personal potential from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday, May 1, at St. Mary's Priory, Langford.

The workshop is being sponsored by the Greater Victoria Citizens Counselling Centre which had its beginning under the auspices of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Mrs. Mona Hundleby, co-ordinator of the centre, said the all-day workshop is designed to equip people with skills to develop their own potential.

Otto's methods, she said, "focus on the expansion of the self-image and self-concept and are essentially ego supportive in nature."

Otto's wife, Roberta, will assist her husband in the workshop. Otto, who lives in La Jolla, is the author of Guide to Developing Your Potential, More Joy in Your marriage, Group Methods to Actualize Human Potential: A Handbook, and Love Today: A New Exploration.

A weekend workshop is being held April 29 and 30 at the Priory but it is already sold out. There is still room for more at the May 1 session. The cost is $30 per person and Mrs. Hundleby is taking reservations at 592-1566.

Hunger Supper

A hunger supper will be held at St. Ann's Academy auditorium at 6 p.m. Tuesday with proceeds going to the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace. The public is invited.

Safety First

VANCOUVER (CP)—McMillan Contractors Ltd., of Lone Butte, Friday was awarded the Workmen's Compensation Board Centennial '71 safety award for completing more than 80,000 accident-free man-hours of work without a lost-time injury.

Salvation Army Bandsmen In Two Sunrise Services

Salvation Army bands will take part in two Easter Sunday sunrise services — the Gideons' service in Victoria and the Army's own service in Esquimalt.

The Victoria service will begin at 7:45 a.m. April 2 in Centennial Square and is sponsored by the Victoria camp of The Gideons International.

The Esquimalt service will begin at 7:30 a.m. at Highrock Cairn in Highrock Park.

An ensemble of members of the army's Esquimalt Road Corps band will play and the corps leader, Capt. Fred Russell, will preach on the subject Be a Free Man in God's World. If it rains, the service will be held in the Army's building at 1245 Esquimalt Road.

For the Gideons it will be the 29th consecutive year they have held the community service. For years it was held in Beacon Hill Park near the entrance at Douglas and Michigan but in 1967 it was switched to Centennial Square. The change has proved so popular that it has been held there ever since.

Lawrence Wallace of the local Gideon camp will deliver the Easter message. He is well-known for his work with young people and has been active for more than 35 years as a Bible expositor and gospel speaker.

Vocal soloist will be Arthur Wiebe. The program will be broadcast over a public address system.

The Salvation Army band from the Victoria Citadel Corps will play in continuance of a tradition which has been in effect since the inception of the services.

Palm Sunday Talks:

Thief Blamed God

It's God I accuse. These are the words of one of the thieves crucified with Christ as seen by the contemporary composer Sydney Carter in his song, Good Friday.

It goes like this: You can blame it on Pilate, You can blame it on the Jews, You can blame it on the devil, It's God I accuse.

"The thief holds God responsible, as do many persons today for the suffering and hurt that is in the world," says Rev. Gordon Walker, rector of St. David's Anglican Church, who will speak on the problem at 10:30 a.m. this Sunday, Palm Sunday.

"I cannot believe that God is irresponsible. If God is not irresponsible, then God is responsible," Walker says. "It seems the man Jesus felt God was responsible. So he was able to trust God."

"It seems to me that God accepts the responsibility and with it the punishment that man gives. Involved in this problem that baffles our understanding is the freedom and responsibility that is shared with created man."

Sunday's service is titled The Road to Calvary and will deal with an account of Jesus' betrayal, arrest, trial and crucifixion told in readings from the Bible by members of the congregation and hymns and special music by the choirs.

VOICE OF ONE

Cruelty is Timeless

By
REV. DR. FRANK MORLEY

No one can think of the Crucifixion without pondering the problem of the cruelty of men.

Why are men so cruel? Why do they like to inflict and to watch suffering? One theologian described crucifixion as "the most terrible and cruel death which man has ever devised for taking vengeance on his fellow men."

At the place of crucifixion the cross was placed on the ground, the prisoner stretched upon it, and his hands nailed to it with a saddle of wood between his legs which prevented the nails from tearing completely through the flesh, while the feet were normally not nailed but bound.

Sometimes prisoners would hang on the cross for a week going mad from hunger and thirst and the biting of gnats and flies. But this was the death which the crowd desired and which they forced Pilate to impose on Jesus.

Such brutality is not strange to us. I have heard church members explain how necessary the nuclear cremation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki were when men, women and babies were burned alive by the hundreds of thousands.

Others explain the massacre at My Lai as a necessary part of war. The bombings and devastations of Vietnam continue when the loveliest country on earth is turned into a desert and a huge graveyard.

A British soldier in Ireland was killed recently trying to rescue two children and at the funeral the crowd booed. An officer marvelled that people could be so cruel, yet this week comes the news of the bombing of a crowded Belfast restaurant packed with 200 persons, mostly women and children taking a tea break from shopping.

Rosaleen McNern, 22-year-old girl shopping for a trousseau for her wedding, had both legs and an arm blown off and was blinded in one eye. Her sister, Jennifer, also lost both legs.

The Roman Catholic primate, William Cardinal Conway, said from the pulpit at St. Patrick's Cathedral in Armagh, "This was a horrible deed and nothing can justify it."

Cardinal Conway went on to say that everyone with a spark of human feeling will have been horrified. One fears in that case that there are many people without a spark of human feeling because certainly everyone is not going to be horrified and shocked.

There is a demoniac quality in men which delights in such infliction of savage suffering, in inflicting pain. That is why the brutalities of Count de Sade have become best-sellers and sadism has become an essential ingredient in most popular books and motion pictures.

But all the horrors of Count de Sade sound very pale indeed beside the frightful bestialities in Bangladesh where the rapings, lootings and countless hundreds buried alive make a horror story unsurpassed in any history.

The vice-president of Bangladesh was kept alive for 24 days while day by day different parts of his body were chopped off.

I have known quite a few children who were brutally beaten by parents, one child hurled downstairs over the father's head. I knew a boy who used to capture animals to torture them.

Anyone in business must see daily examples of sadism in offices and shops by superiors against inferiors. Wherever man gains power over his fellows there is brutality and cruelty.

The average man is naturally brutal. Love is the miracle and very few people are loving. Love is an act of the grace of God and runs directly contrary to the natural man's tendency to savagery and sadism. When any man sees or experiences love let him thank God for he has seen something that is beyond this earth, that is divine and a superhuman creation of God Himself.

Movement 50 Years Old

Shantymen Carry God's Word

By DON GAIN
Colonist Church Editor

They travel all over Vancouver Island and from Sechelt to Bella Coola by camper, truck, boat and, occasionally seaplane.

They call in at logging camps and other isolated spots to visit the sick and injured, hold gospel meetings, conduct Bible schools, show religious films and renew old friendships.

They are members of the Shantymen's Christian Association and, as their superintendent Don Robertson of Victoria puts it, they have "only one common desire, that is to see God's work progress."

The movement started about 50 years ago in the mining and lumber camps of Northern Ontario.

The work was taken up in Victoria 45 years ago when an Englishman who became known as Uncle Sammy Whiting organized a group here. His work has been carried on and one of the most active workers over the years has been Percy Willis of Victoria, who is still doing it.

In addition to visiting remote communities, the Shantymen have been conducting the Noon Hour Prayer Meeting which still continues at the YM-YWCA. Robertson said it is so popular that the Y chapel is too small for the meeting and it is held in another part of the building. There were 63 at this week's service, he said. They are held from noon to 1 p.m. every Wednesday.

For years the Shantymen travelled by boat around the Island but with the advent of better roads they do most of their visiting on four wheels.

Last Saturday night they had their annual dinner meeting in Emmanuel Baptist Church. In addition to the members, about 200 of their friends attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peters came down from Union Bay for the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ottom came down from Port McNeill and Mr. and Mrs. Ron McKee came from Pachena Bay.

Wally Walker was there, too. His home is in Montreal where he shares in the Shantymen's ministry, visiting deepsea ships. But Montreal harbor is closed for the winter and he came to Victoria to keep his hand in until St. Lawrence River navigation opens up again this spring.

Sonata Recital By Organ, Oboe

A recital will be given at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in St. Paul's Anglican Church, 1379 Esquimalt Road, by the church organist Herman Bergink and Gert van der Linden, oboist in the Naden Band. The two men will combine in sonatas by Willem de Fesch and Santo Lapis and Bergink will play works of Bach, Flor Peeters, Alec Rowley and Cor Kee.

Raquel's Roller Rink Stunts Are High Risk Hazard

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Raquel Welch broke her arm rehearsing for her new movie and may fracture other limbs in her pursuit of starring in The Kansas City Bomber playing a professional roller skate queen.

The darkly beautiful actress sat in a Beverly Hills restaurant, her right arm in a cast, and said she was anxious to skate again.

"MGM has set up a special racing track for me on a sound stage," she said. "It's the same one we'll take to Portland where all the skating scenes will be shot.

"I love doing my own stunts. Riding horses. Climbing and jumping for action pictures. It's part of the fun of acting."

Raquel must be careful in discussing her new movie which is being made for her own company. She uses the term "roller games." It seems that Roller Derby belongs to someone and the owners object to the use of the title, Kansas City Bomber.

Morever, Raquel makes confesses she will be well padded for her role.

She is, of course, amply endowed in the padding department. But to protect herself in the rough and tumble of competitive roller skating her thighs, elbows and knees will be heavily wrapped.

"I was skating off and on for six months before I had the accident," Raquel said. "At the time I was alone on the track and felt myself toppling backward. To save myself a bump on the head I put out my arm.

"It hurt terribly. But I thought it was just a bruise. A couple of hours later it was swollen and very painful. It was broken.

"The first thing I had to learn about skating on a banked track was to maintain my balance. The curves are banked at a 45-degree angle and it can make you dizzy if you look down at your feet.

"Even though my broken arm has held up production for more than a month it was the best thing that could have happened. Now I'll be falling a half dozen times in a two-hour period. It's a matter of learning how to fall without hurting yourself."

"It give me the opportunity to do some acting," she said. "I know people don't think of me as an actress as much as they do a, well, sex queen. But I'll be doing my best."

Miss Welch is a different girl than the one with a chip on her shoulder in Myra Breckinridge. She smiles and laughs more than she once did.

Raquel was divorced from husband Pat Curtis earlier this year. The end of her marriage may or may not have changed the actress from a pouting, reserved woman to an outgoing, laughing female.

Whatever the reason, the transformation is at once pleasing and surprising.

Rockets Planned To Squelch Hail

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to use rockets to attack the hailstorms that cost the United States up to $390 million a year in crop and property damage. Scientists said small rockets carrying silver iodide will be fired from planes into thunderstorms suspected of being potential hail-producers to see if such seeding can cut hail formation.

Adolf Hitler Films Now Laughing Sto

VIENNA (UPI) — Adolf Hitler is the laughing stock of the Viennale film festival, organizers said this week.

The Austrian-born dictator is being greeted with hoots of laughter every time he appears on the screen at Vienna's first postwar revival of Nazi propaganda films.

"We had never dreamed of such an effect," said Peter Konlechner, 34, chief organizer of the annual Viennale's movie museum. "We were slightly worried how these old Nazi films would be received but there has been only one common reaction to Hitler's screen appearance — laughter."

The two-week program of Nazi propaganda and allied chronicling Hitler's rise and fall is playing to packed houses.

"It's the biggest Viennale's 10-year Konlechner said.

"Most of our au young people who Hitler alive," said. "They are learn about the parents adored d pre-war period. Th reaction is a wides appointment."

Konlechner e however, that the ridicules allie propaganda films done.

"They are not one have definitely lea lesson from the said. "They would again for a big liar."

Movie's Silent Critics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The motion picture, The Godfather, opened to an empty house at the Empire Theatre in Kansas City Wednesday night because the Italian-American Unification Council had purchased all the tickets.

Thomas Gialde, vice-president of the council, said it paid $2,500 for the tickets because "we strongly oppose the kind of prejudice the picture can cause."

"Many Italian-Americans suffer from a sociological malady called cultural prejudice. Because of novels, TV series and motion pictures like or similar to The Godfather the American culture has developed a prejudicial outlook in regard to the Italian-American contributions.

Painting Found

FRANKFURT AP) — West German police said they have recovered a stolen painting by Pablo Picasso which the artist presented to the city of Skopje, Yugoslavia, in 1963. The painting of a woman's head was recovered at Frankfurt airport in possession of five men police said belong to an international band of art thieves.

Adolf Hitler Films Now Laughing Stock

VIENNA (UPI) — Adolf Hitler is the laughing stock of the Viennale film festival, organizers said this week.

The Austrian-born dictator is being greeted with hoots of laughter every time he appears on the screen at Vienna's first postwar revival of Nazi propaganda films.

"We had never dreamed of such an effect," said Peter Konlechner, 34, chief organizer of the annual Viennale's movie museum. "We were slightly worried how these old Nazi films would be received but there has been only one common reaction to Hitler's screen appearance — laughter."

The two-week program of Nazi propaganda and allied chronicling Hitler's rise and fall is playing to packed houses.

"It's the biggest hit in the Viennale's 10-year history," Konlechner said.

"Most of our audience are young people who never saw Hitler alive," Konlechner said. "They are eager to learn about the man their parents adored during the pre-war period. The common reaction is a widespread disappointment."

Konlechner emphasized, however, that the crowd also ridicules allied counter-propaganda films when overdone.

"They are not one-sided and have definitely learned their lesson from the past," he said. "They would never fall again for a big liar."

Movie's Silent Critics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The motion picture, The Godfather, opened to an empty house at the Empire Theatre in Kansas City Wednesday night because the Italian-American Unification Council had purchased all the tickets.

Thomas Gialde, vice-president of the council, said it paid $2,500 for the tickets because "we strongly oppose the kind of prejudice the picture can cause."

"Many Italian-Americans suffer from a sociological malady called cultural prejudice. Because of novels, TV series and motion pictures like or similar to The Godfather the American culture has developed a prejudicial outlook in regard to the Italian-American contributions.

Painting Found

FRANKFURT AP) — West German police said they have recovered a stolen painting by Pablo Picasso which the artist presented to the city of Skopje, Yugoslavia, in 1963. The painting of a woman's head was recovered at Frankfurt airport in possession of five men police said belong to an international band of art thieves.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — The easy answer was That Old Black Magic, the song with the line about "icy fingers up and down my spine," and the tough one was Skip Nelson, who sang Magic on the Glenn Miller recording. That was after Ray Eberle left in a huff.

YOU WON'T BELIEVE THIS

Now at our docks. A 40-ft. GARDEN EXPRESS CRUISER, built by Philbrooks, powered by twin Perkins Diesels. It cruises at 17 knots in great comfort. She has a large salon galley with deluxe shag carpet and bar. The interior is tastefully done in teak. So warm up to a real pleasure yacht and see this fine boat.

A beautiful old 46-ft. Bridgedeck Cruiser that looks as fine as any modern luxury yacht. Built by Stewart and Fellow in 1932, she is fully equipped by modern day standards for extended cruising in the best of comfort. She is powered by a 6-71 G.M. Diesel that has very few hours since factory rebuild. You haven't seen a boat in finer condition until you have seen this one.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Many successful decalrers go to great lengths to avoid a simple finesse. Often this is justified because declarer is searching for a better play for his contract. However, in close situations when the exact probabilities are obscure, a declarer's refusal to finesse may indicate either brilliance, plain stubbornness or some guiding sixth sense.

Today's hand is an excellent example. It was played by the great French champion, Claude Delmouly.

Vulnerable: East-West
Dealer: West.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 NT
Pass	4 ♠	All pass

Opening lead: King of diamnods.

The bidding was standard, with South probing for a nine-trick game and North deciding in favor of four spades.

At this point, the average declarer would win the diamond, decide on which way to play the spades, and then bank all on a successful heart finesse. Mr. Average Declarer would lose two diamonds, a spade and a heart, and his contract. Reasonable play? Certainly not unreasonable.

Study's Delmouly's approach. He deliberately ruffed West's third diamond lead with dummy's small trump to lead dummy's spade queen. This was covered by East's king and declarer's ace. Declarer then played dummy's three top clubs and discarded a heart.

Dummy's last club was ruffed by declarer (only the outstanding high trump could overruff) and West was trapped. If he overruffed, he would have to lead hearts for a free finesse or lead a diamond to yield a ruff and discard for declarer's 10th trick.

West refused to overruff and delayed his fate. But not for long because declarer then played a trump to West's black jack and West was forced to make a lead to concede the contract.

A well-played hand by Claude Delmouly. Who needs finesses with card reading such as this?

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient Ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Foil the Wind

In my last column on roses and rose planting, I mentioned my strong preference for siting a proposed rose bed right out in the open where the wind, the rain and the sun will all exercise their healing influence on our plants.

It has been my experience that insect pests are fewer and less destructive in such a spot, and those two scourges of roses, mildew and black spot, are nothing like as troublesome in the open as when the plants are grown in a sheltered position.

I suspect the airborne spores of these fungus diseases may have some difficulty in making a landing on the leaf surface in a spot where the wind is brisk.

True, the flowers may take quite a beating from driving gales of rain in such an exposed position, but we have superior rose varieties nowadays with tough, sturdy petals which can stand up to the weather. If you insist on growing the namby-pamby weather-shy kinds, you'll just have to pick 'em in the bud when storms threaten.

Wind-rocking can be a hazard in an exposed site, particularly in the spring just as new root actionis commencing. The rocking loosens the grip of the roots on the soil, often breaking the delicate root hairs, while the movement of the main stem tends to create a tapered hole in the ground, in much the same manner as when you push a crowbar into the soil and wiggle the bar top around in circles.

The walls of such a tapered hole are hard packed by the rocking movement of the brush, so when it fills with rain, it doesn't drain away as freely as it should. This tends to rot the stem of your rose bush at its most vulnerable point — the graft union.

Two things you can do to minimize this effect. First, you can thrust a few light bamboo canes into the ground between the branches of your rose. This isn't a proper staking, and certainly no tying is necessary — just poke the canes in the ground in such a way as to prevent too much movement in the wind.

Second, it is a good idea to keep the base of each rose bush mounded up at all times with coarse sand, small gravel, crushed cinders or some such free-draining material.

Some of the older textbooks insist upon a heavy clay loam soil for roses, but actually, the type of soil in your garden needn't be the deciding factor when you pick your site. Whatever kind of soil you may have, we can amend it to make it grow good roses.

Whether your ground is sandy or gravelly loam or sticky, heavy clay, the digging in of old rotted manure will fix it. Do the whole rose bed, though, rather than just dumping a spadeful of manure into the bottom of each planting hole. Ideally, the manure should be spread thickly on the surface, then dug or rototilled in to mix it thoroughly and intimately with the soil.

While soil texture can be amended without too much difficulty, drainage is a pup from a different litter, and much more troublesome to correct. Roses simply will not tolerate a home where puddles stand over the roots in wet weather, and it is a waste of time and money to plant them in such a sodden site.

If your only available planting site is on low-lying, poorly drained ground, about all you can do is to contruct a raised bed, with retaining walls of brick, logs or rocks.

Great-Great-Great-Grandson Defends Ancestor

Captain Bligh Defamed

By ROBERT NELSON

From Sittingbourne, England

Maurice Bligh, whose ancestors have been at sea for hundreds of years, is just back from 17 months spent retracing his great-great-great-grandfather's epic South Sea voyage. He seems to have returned with more than mutiny or the Bounty on his mind.

In the blustery weather of his hometown here, not far from the Thames estuary, he dreams of tropical Polynesia. He would happily be transported back to Fiji, especially in May, when a massive presentation of Polynesian art is scheduled.

Bligh is determined to try to strengthen ties between this part of the world and the South Pacific. He would like Britain to have a special showing of South Sea culture.

"It's time," this adventurous youg man remarks, "for an awareness of the South Pacific as a real part of the world. It's there to be enjoyed." And then, tantalized by recent memoires, he adds: "But please don't desroy it."

He's not quite sure how it will be possible to talk up Polynesia without undamming a tide of tourists hungry for some new beach or quaint marketplace to flood.

Bligh is full of compassion for those two misreported, misunderstood, and mis-allianced 18th-century seafarers who came to such grievous times in the midst of such luscious places. Fletcher Christian and Capt. William Bligh clashed in the much-Hollywooded mutiny on the Bounty in April of 1789.

Maurice Bligh has a book in mind that will set the record straight. Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh were comrades and friends. The irresistible yearnings of one clashed with the irrepressible disciplines of the other. They could not be reconciled.

Mr. Christian was completely beguiled by the places and the people of Polynesia, where the Bounty has sailed on a botanical mission — collecting breadfruit trees for transplanting to feed British sugar plantation slaves in the West Indies. Captain Bligh was duty bound to the mission and to the codes of the Admiralty.

The younger Bligh is convinced that any mariner of today, if given his choice, would prefer to sail under Captain Bligh than any other British captain of the 1800s.

"Christian and the Bounty crew were volunteers," he explains. "Not one was pressed into service. Who would choose to sign on for two years under a tyrant? Christian asked to serve under Bligh. He knew him.

"To Bligh," says Maurice, "his crew were 'my people.' If anything, he was too sentimental, too lenient. Bligh's flogging record, for example, was half that of Captain Cook, a captain with whom Bligh had sailed, known in those days as a humanist and a fair skipper.

"Bligh deeply regretted that he could not persuade Christian to return with the Bounty. He couldn't believe that Christian could do such a thing as mutiny when he had treated him as a brother."

Maurice Bligh's business is books — buying and selling old ones and publishing a few new ones. His own writing about the trip is highly sought after now, but he's resisting a crash program to get it done.

When it does come out — barring any unforeseen put-offs or procrastinations — the focus will be on Captain Bligh, the man; the 18th century as a maritime era; and on "an ocean called peace," as young Bligh rather romantically puts it.

"I found the first and the third on my journey," he says, "and appreciated the second, the era. You've got to be careful not to lose yourself in the dusty histories," he adds in the tone of a seller of antique books.

"I went after the full reality of this story. Nobody before has done this," says M. Bligh about W. Bligh.

Chaplin Got Even

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Charlie Chaplin has written producer Joe Pasternak that he wants a reunion with all his old pals when he returns to Hollywood for the Oscars. Sadly, after a 20-year absence, Charlie may have to do some digging at Forest Lawn. Chaplin's public image, spawned by his controversial political views, is entirely different than the way the old-timers in Hollywood remember him. The general public always has been down on Chaplin because of his fondness for young girls, but in this town that's a way of life. No star or producer or director would ever be caught dead with an old girl friend — unless his wife caught him at it.

A little-known fact about Chaplin is that he was the perpetrator of many a legendary Hollywood practical joke. His old pal, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., usually was the butt.

The senior Fairbanks — and his son is no different — was always enchanted by royalty. Even when Fairbanks and Mary Pickford ruled Hollywood society, they did it like a king and queen with Pickfair as the castle. Doug's wine cellar was the best in town even during prohibition. "That was okay," Chaplin once told me, "but when his ordinary friends like me dined at Pickfair, Doug would always bring out his cheap wine. Only royalty ever saw his rare vintages. That used to irk me more than anything."

That ire led Chaplin once to spend thousands of dollars on an elaborate practical joke for which he hired costume extras from Central Casting like a modern producer would do to make an epic. "I started it off with two ambassador types who were perfectly cast. They visited Doug and informed him that the King of Norway was going to spend two weeks incognito in California and had expressed a desire to meet his movie idol, our Doug. Doug not only was thrilled but he invited the king and his entourage to stay at Pickfair. Fine, said the ambassadors, but no publicity please. It was an unofficial, incognito visit.

"I next went to Central Casting and got myself a perfect king of Norway, outfitted him at Western Costume and provided him with a hard drinking and hungry entourage of about six or eight people. Next I went to the Santa Fe Railroad and arranged for a private car to be hooked on the Chief at San Bernardino. An equerry was dispatched to notify Doug of the royal arrival. Since secrecy was of the utmost importance, the king and his party would debark at Pasadena instead of the main Los Angeles depot.

"Doug, as scheduled, met the royal party and observed all protocol. As I recall, Mary curtsied. And all drove merrily off to Pickfair. For two weeks, my $5-a-day king drank Doug's finest wines and ate his most lavish meals. And then they departed as secretly as they came. And Doug, his cupboards and cellars bare, couldn't tell a soul whom he had entertained. I never told, of course, because Doug would have murdered me on the spot."

Richard Gully, who hobnobs with royalty — the real kind — like I do with actors, says that the seven-year marriage of the young King and Queen of Greece is at an end. Constantine II is now living in London while Queen Anne-Marie is in Rome with their three young children. Richard is the grandson of a former viceroy of India and a first cousin to Anthony Eden. Cause of split. London sources say, is Constantine's attentions to other women. He is 31 and the queen, daughter of the late King Frederick IX of Denmark, is but 25. And there's no prospect — even if he were happily married — of Constantine regaining his throne in Athens from the military junta. Just threw that royal stuff in to show readers that I got other friends than Dean Martin and Frank Sinatra.

Seat Belts 'Unlucky'

No "practical" solutions to any of our major problems will work until we are able to do something about the massive irrationality of the human race. This irrationality is even more powerful than the so-called "sense of self-preservation."

For instance, a recent U.S. study of weekend auto crashes showed that 745 Ohio motorists died in such crashes within a single year. Of them only 28 — or four per cent — were known to be wearing safety belts at the time of the crash.

It is not true that motorists fail to use the belts because they are negligent or because they feel the belts won't improve their chances in a crash. The real reason, in most cases, is an unconscious superstition that people will not admit to themselves.

And that is the feeling that ignoring the belt somehow gives you a magic protection against accidents; whereas, on the contrary, acknowledging the possibility of death on the highway by buckling the belt may actually bring on a fatal accident.

Our primitive belief in magic — which is only thinly coated by our rationality — is part of the schizophrenic makeup of most people.

One part of us knows that safety belts are prudent and necessary; another, and usually dominating, part feels that acknowledging this danger is to tempt the fates into visiting disaster upon us.

We repress our fears by tucking them away in dark corners and hoping they will not spring out at us, instead of admitting them openly and taking some rational measures to control them and their possible consequences.

The most characteristic conduct in this symbolic attitude toward fear is that of the person who refuses to see a doctor because he is afraid that a diagnosis will show something seriously wrong with him.

Rationally, he knows that the longer he waits, the less chance of arresting a truly serious ailment; magically, he hopes that if he ignores his symptoms, the disease will disappear.

We tend to do this with most of our major social, as well as personal problems; and it is shallow to blame this on "negligence" or "apathy."

Rather, it is a manifestation of the schizoid nature of most of us, as well as of the dominating influence of magical beliefs that remain as potent within us within any "primitive" tribes.

Balky Car Lifesaver

HAMILTON (CP) — A homemade bomb was found Friday in the engine compartment of a car belonging to Jennifer Trott, a 23-year-old McMaster University student, police say.

They said the bomb was set to go off when the car engine was started.

Mrs. Trott tried to start her car Friday morning, but was unable to do so. Her husband Ray opened the engine compartment and found the bomb.

Baby Bonus

Computer For Every Family?

OTTAWA (CP)—The government, which apparently has resolved difficulties with Quebec over its revised baby bonus plan, ran into trouble at home Friday as opposition MPs belabored the program in the Commons.

Welfare Minister John Munro, guiding the revised bill at second reading, was told by opposition MPs that the complicated formula designed to ensure the payments go only to those who need them will create a bureaucratic jungle.

"Every family will have to have a computer," said Stanley Knowles (NDP Winnipeg North Centre) to find out whether it qualifies for payments and how much.

P. B. Rynard (PC-Simcoe North) said the complex procedures will entail hiring another 1,500 public servants and cost the taxpayer another $12 million in administrative costs.

To Committee

Debate ended Friday without second readings for the measure, which is to go to committee for detailed study once second-reading debate is completed.

The new plan would scrap the universal aspect of family allowances — a payment for every child without regard to income of the parents — that has been in the legislation since it was first introduced in 1945.

Present payments are $6 a month for every child under 10, $8 a month for those age 10 to 16. Coupled with this is a youth allowance program that pays $10 a month for children from age 16 to their 18th birthday as long as they are still in school.

At Lower End

Munro said the new Family Income Security Program — or FISP — would eliminate allowances for 1,059,000 families now getting payments while another 2,457,000 families would retain them.

Those on the lower end of the income scale would get higher payments than those provided under the present universal program.

He said about 35 per cent of all Canadian families would get maximum benefits — $15 a month for children 12, $20 a month for those 12 to 17. About 17 per cent would get partial allowances but still more than they got under the universal program.

Income Base

Another 17 per cent would get less than they receive now and about 30 per cent would get nothing.

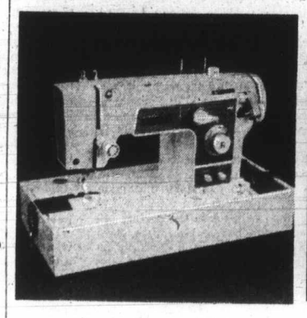

An income base is set for each family, depending on the number of children. The base is $4,500 for a family with one child and it goes up to $500 for each additional child.

So a family with one child under 12 would see its allowance disappear at income of $9,000. With one child over 12, the allowance disappears at annual income of $10,500.

Give Peace a Cha Heath Plea to Uls

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fresh from announcing the imposition of direct rule by his Westminster government over turbulent Northern Ireland, appealed Friday night for Ulstermen of all religions to regard the British move as "a chance for peace."

Heath made his appeal in a television broadcast as angry militants of the majority Protestant community in Ulster threatened intensive — though for the time being peaceful — protests against suspension of the semi-autonomous Northern Ireland government.

The British Army alerted 4,000 additional troops in case of violence in Ulster where there already are 14,500 British soldiers and where 286 persons have died in violence in the last 32 months.

In the Irish Republic, Prime Minister Jack Lynch gave cautious approval to the British action by announcing the return to London of the Dublin ambassador, recalled after the Jan. 30 killing of 13 civilians during a demonstration in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city.

The underground Irish Republican Army rejected the British initiative and promised a continuation of its guerrilla campaign.

Hanoi Filibuster Blamed by U.S.

Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said Friday that he ordered suspension of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris to break a 31½-year "filibuster" by the North Vietnamese.

"They refuse to negotiate seriously," he told a press conference. "They use the talks for the purpose of propaganda while we have been trying to seek peace."

But Nixon emphasized his readiness to resume the talks, either publicly or in secret channels, when Hanoi decides to negotiate seriously. Other press conference points:

● In Vietnam "an ominous enemy buildup continues," and communist attacks in the dry season are still expected.

● In the strategic arms limitation talks, the U.S. and Soviet Union are agreed in principle but "still very far apart on some fundamental issues — whether or not SLBMs (submarine-launched ballistic missiles) should be included (in an agreement), matters of that sort," Nixon said.

Silver Buck Will Cost A Mint

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint will issue a silver dollar dated 1972 for coin collectors, the finance department announced Friday. It will cost $3.

The coin will be double-struck to give sharper images, and will be made from an alloy of fine silver. Regular "silver" dollars are mainly nickel now, and smaller than they used to be, because of rising cost of silver.

Winner Moores kissed by wife: 'new era'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives led by Premier Frank Moores, 39, scored a landslide victory over the Liberals in Friday's Newfoundland election, winning 33 of 42 legislature seats.

The Liberals, who had won six straight provincial elections with ease until last October's near-saw-off, took the other nine seats.

The outcome was seen as a return to political stability in this province of 525,000, where one political crisis followed another after the indecisive Oct. 28 election.

The Conservatives bowled over the opposition from St. John's in the southeast to Labrador in the northwest to score their first majority victory in the 23 years since Newfoundland became a Canadian province.

Newfoundland had been a bastion of Liberalism from Confederation in 1949 until last October's election, which saw former premier Joey Smallwood's forces badly battered. But that battering wasn't enough to give Moores' Conservatives a majority in the 42-seat house.

The fears of many Newfoundlanders that Friday's vote would be a rerun of the October cliff-hanger were quickly dissolved as the Conservatives scored victories in traditional Liberal ground as well as PC ridings.

Two hours after the polls closed, all of Moores' cabinet members had been elected or were leading while only two

Bill 88 Shelved

'I've accomplished what I wanted . . . by getting the commitment from the two—the building trades and the federation'

—Chabot

● Legislature stories, Page 15

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

Bill 88 went down for the count Friday in what is being hailed in some quarters as a clearcut victory for labor over the provincial government.

But provincial Labor Minister James Chabot says he hasn't backed down at all, that he will resurrect the piece of potentially dangerous legislation if the construction unions haven't shaped up as promised by the end of this year.

Chabot said he decided to let the bill die on the order paper because he was impressed by the pledge of the unions to conduct a study of inter-union rivalry and seek a solution.

While this was somewhat less than he had originally demanded, Chabot said he is convinced labor means business and that there will be no more trouble this year at job sites.

Situation Modified

"You have to have faith in people," he told the Colonist, "and I think I have reason to have faith in both the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council and the B.C. Federation of Labor in this case."

Some political sources say Chabot's move can't be described as anything but a retreat. Their reactions range from "astounding back-off," to "compromise of a compromise."

Originally, Chabot had introduced Bill 88 as an amendment to the Trade Unions Act to remove restrictive clauses from agreements negotiated with employers. He said he wanted to end tight affiliation clauses that were keeping some unions off construction sites.

Last Tuesday he offered a compromise proposal that modified the situation a bit. He gave the 60,000-member building trades council a deadline of noon Friday to accept or reject.

When the deadline arrived he granted a two-hour extension and it wasn't until after 4:30 p.m. that he announced his decision.

The result was twofold: Immediately obvious was the avoidance of what appeared an almost certain confrontation between labor and government. Less noticeable but there just the same, is a slight cooling of election talk.

Confrontation Fear

Premier Bennett has made it clear before that he wouldn't hesitate to go to the people over a labor confrontation. But it is also known in the current case that not all government backbenchers were happy about Bill 88.

Some were said to fear confrontation because of the growing number of people — such as teachers, public employees and others — taking a stand against restrictive legislation.

Meeting at the same time were officers of the building trades council. Later officers of both met together, as they had the day before.

The 155,000-member federation had moved quickly to make sure the construction unions didn't act on their own. A united front was wanted and when Chabot received a telegram announcing the final decision, it was signed by both Jim Kinnaird, president of the council and George Johnston, president of the federation.

They said in the telegram many hours had been spent looking for recommendations Chabot would find satisfactory.

"This is, of course, an extremely complex problem affecting building trades unions and other unions in a variety of ways," the telegram said. "The building trades council does not have the power or the right to make a commitment without first having an opportunity for its affiliates to consult with their membership."

"Clearly, this could not be accomplished by today. We cannot emphasize strongly enough that the specific pro-

Give Peace a Chance Heath Plea to Ulster

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fresh from announcing the imposition of direct rule by his Westminster government over turbulent Northern Ireland, appealed Friday night for Ulstermen of all religions to regard the British move as "a chance for peace."

The underground Irish Republican Army rejected the British initiative and promised a continuation of its guerrilla campaign.

But less extreme Roman Catholic politicians in the North promised serious consideration of Heath's program, which provides for administration of Northern Ireland by a British minister, aided by a commission made up of elements representing all sections of the community.

The British government's plan, announced in the House of Commons by Heath, also provides for eliminating internment of suspected IRA supporters in Northern Ireland, provided no new terrorism results and for plebiscites to test Northern Ireland sentiments on the question of remaining part of the United Kingdom or joining the republic to the south.

There are about one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics in the North.

Lynch expressed belief that the minority group in Ulster will accept the opportunity for peace presented by the Heath initiative and will be encouraged "in the right direction."

But Rev. Ian Paisley, a leader of militant Ulster Protestants, denounced what he termed the British government's failure to bring about complete integration of Northern Ireland with the rest of the United Kingdom.

Premier Brian Faulkner, though indignantly rejecting a London takeover of his Northern Ireland government's security powers, combined the resignation of himself and his cabinet with an appeal for order and dignity among Protestants in the face of direct rule.

Trudeau Would Take Connally 'for a Ride'

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday night Canada did not need enemies when it had friends like U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Trudeau made the comment, his second swipe at Connally in two days, when the host of a television hotline program asked about President Nixon's statement earlier in the day that trade talks with Canada were deadlocked because it was harder to negotiate with friends than with enemies.

"I didn't think we were hard to get along with, but I think we feel the same way ever since last August when they brought in these very tough measures against their friends and enemies alike.

"We felt that with friends like Secretary Connally, who needs enemies. We're tough negotiators, I suppose, and so are they," Trudeau said.

He said he was looking forward "very much" to Nixon's April visit to Canada, when trade is expected to be the main subject of discussion. After more than a year's negotiation, Connally vetoed a proposed package of revised trade arrangements with Canada on Feb. 9. No date has been set for a new round of talks.

When the moderator asked if Trudeau was going to "be tough" with Nixon, Trudeau's only reply was: "It will be a very pleasant visit, I'm sure."

He said he did not know if Connally would accompany Nixon, but "he would be very welcome if he comes. We would bring him for a drive . . . take him for a ride," Trudeau said with a smile.

On another question, Trudeau said the government was exercising "royal prerogative" in commuting to life sentences the death penalties of eight persons convicted of capital murder.

"If we did not exercise the royal prerogative, people

Freight Rams Bus, Three Die, 47 Hurt

CONGERS, N.Y. (AP) — A freight train rammed into a school bus at a rural grade crossing Friday killing three high school pupils and injuring 47 persons, eight of them critically. Bus wreckage was scattered along the track for quarter of a mile.

An investigation is attempting to determine initially whether the bus had stopped at the crossing.

'Basic Disagreements'—Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon said Friday "some very basic disagreements" may remain between Canada and the United States after his April 13-14 talks with Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa.

Nixon told an impromptu White House news conference:

"I think it is very helpful that at this point we are meeting with our friends from Canada, although we will find that we have some very basic disagreements, probably, after the meeting as before."

From prior meetings with the prime minister, Nixon said he feels Trudeau "has some very constructive ideas to suggest."

Referring to deadlocked trade negotiations between the two countries, the president said it sometimes seems that the U.S. had more problems negotiating with its friends than with its adversaries.

Heart Surgery Delayed Fourth Time

The Wait Goes On

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

A 42-year-old Saanich man was told for the fourth time Friday that the open-heart surgery he is awaiting at Vancouver General Hospital has been postponed.

Len Ainey, 4055 Magdelin, had just got the word from his doctor when he was contacted by the Colonist to inquire whether the surgery scheduled for next week was still on the hospital books.

He said he had been told that the surgery now will be April 2 or April 23 — and both bookings are tentative.

"If anything, I expect it will be the 23rd," he stated. "I was not given a reason for this postponement but I anticipate persons more ill than I have had to be given priority."

He said he had made arrangements to be in Vancouver next week, including finding a housekeeper to look after the three children while he and Mrs. Ainey were away.

He has been off work for about 18 months, with his heart's pumping capacity declining after two veins on its outer wall became obstructed. The operation would involve grafting a vein over the obstructed segments, thus restoring a blood supply to the heart's muscles.

The Aineys have daughters aged 15 and 18 and a son, 8.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. Gangs in Streets Worry Courtena

COURTENAY — The problem of gangs of youths gathering on city street corners is of mounting concern to local aldermen.

Mayor William Moore discussed the subject at council this week. He said that the subject could not receive too much discussion since an action taken by RCMP is now before the court. He did say however, "It's not good enough when citizens have to walk in the gutter" to get by a corner.

Moore said an elderly woman from out of town experienced an "upsetting" situation when a gang of youths rocked her compact car which was parked on a main downtown street.

On the same subject Moore said he had investigated reports about lack of police action at a teen dance. He said he was "satisfied policing was adequate and the calls to the police station answered."

Trustee Resignations Asked by Teachers

CAMPBELL RIVER — The Campbell River District Teachers' Association has called for the resignation of four school trustees in the continuing crisis over John Young, principal of the Campbell River secondary school.

About 100 teachers, at a general meeting Thursday night, supported Young in his refusal to resign and called for the resignations of trustees Ray Sharpe, Hal Newman, Arnold Cameron and Doris McLean. They also voted no confidence in district superintendent William Ramsay.

The school trustees voted 4 to 3 earlier this week to request Young's resignation. His critics accused him of repeated defiance of the school board and Ramsay.

The association's move followed slightly different action Wednesday by the staff of Young's school. They demanded Ramsay resign and expressed no confidence in the school board.

In a petition to Ramsay, the staff said he had made little effort to observe and appreciate the progressive high school. And a petition to the school board said a majority of the trustees were clearly out of touch with the operation of the school and the educational needs of young people.

Friday, teachers association president Joe Harrison challenged the school board to fire Young so that the whole issue would then be taken into court where, he said, the board would find itself without any proof of its charges against Young.

Young became the cente of controversy last year when the provincial education department removed the accreditation of the Campbell River school, a move that makes it necessary for students leaving the school to write government exams before going on to higher education.

The teachers also condemned Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox, for his charges that the association was going to use disruptive and militant tactics to battle Bill 3.

That bill sets a ceiling of 6.5 per cent on teachers' salary increases that would be shared by the provincial government. Raises above 6.5 per cent would have to be approved by public referendum.

Social Credit 'Out To Get' School Chief

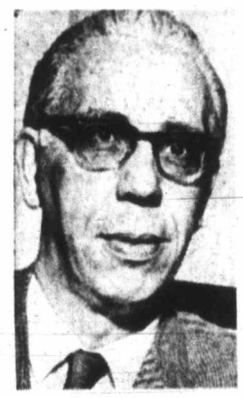

Controversial Campbell River high school principal John Young was strongly defended in the Legislature Friday by NDP member Gordon Dowding who described the latest round in which Young has been asked to resign by his board "a drumhead ceremony."

Speaking in debate on amendments to the Public Schools Act which would change the requirements to suspend or dismiss teachers, Dowding said the act should contain provisions to prevent a situation like the current one in Campbell River.

He described Young as "one of the finest teachers in B.C.," and said the board appeared to have asked for his resignation for "purely political reasons."

Young had not been given any notice that he was going to be asked to resign nor had he been given specific reasons why the board was dissatisfied with his performance as principal, Dowding said.

"I think it's incredible that a board would, without giving notice or reasons, put a teacher or, in this case a principal, in such an invidious position."

Dowding
. . . 'drumhead ceremony'

The plan to ask for Young's resignation appeared to have been inspired by Social Credit board members who were "out to get him," Dowding said.

Ney Votes Against Government

Nanaimo Socred MLA Frank Ney joined with opposition members in the Legislature Friday to vote against a new law which will require all teachers' salary increases to be passed by ratepayers in a referendum if they exceed a provincially-set limit.

Ney did not speak in debate on the bill, but afterwards outside the house said he opposed the amendment because it was being applied only against teachers and was in effect singling them out for special treatment.

He added he was "very sympathetic" to the problems of the government in trying to stop escalating costs, but he would have preferred to see it not bring in the salary-referendum amendment.

Ney

Instead the government should try holding boards to the 108 per cent budgetary limitations for a year and see if that worked to curb the costs before introducing the legislation against teachers.

It was, he said, the first time he has been "disturbed" by an issue since he was elected MLA in the 1969 election, and he had talked to hundreds of people about it, including teachers, school trustees and general members of the public.

The difficulty was to find alternative methods of curbing escalating costs and he had not been able to find any alternative he would consider really satisfactory.

One suggestion he had heard was a plan which was being used in Saskatchewan in which if no agreement was reached between teachers and a board, then the next year the same contract as the year before would apply.

Ney said it was the second time he had voted against the government since he was elected. The first was early in the 1970 session when he had supported Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace, then a Socred, in opposing the government on a minor issue "just so he'd have somebody to support him."

It was the second time in the day that a Socred backbencher had broken ranks, the first being Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) who opposed the Gift Tax Act.

Fills Bill

By BEA HAMILTON
Colonist Correspondent

FULFORD — Two Salt Spring Island boys took pity on a wild duck found with a broken lower bill in the Long Harbor area this week — leading it to successful plastic surgery.

Johnny Villadsen and Robin Prest took the disabled bird to Dr. David Lott. The veterinarian examined the dangling bill, then cemented it firmly into place with liquid plastic.

No sooner had the plastic dried when the bird let out a long "quack" and bit Lott's hand.

"It was a beautiful little Golden-eye," said the doctor.

Young Flails Board Request

'Work-to-Rule Reversed'

John Aurele Young, the principal of Campbell River senior secondary school, issued a two-page statement this week condeming his school board's request for his resignation.

"The board's request for my resignation constitutes an irresponsible abuse of its power," Young's statement reads. "The board gets its information at second-hand from an old-fashioned and conservative-minded district superintendent who had not made any effort whatsoever to become properly informed about the school's program."

Young stated that the superintendent, William Ramsay, has spent less than four hours in the school since taking the post 15 months ago.

". . . Most of which (time) was spent in my office," Young said. "He has never made a systematic evaluation of the school."

Young said Ramsay has "harassed" the school with "an endless stream of requests for obscure and worthless information" in what he called "work-to-rule tactic in reverse . . . designed to bring an institution to a halt."

Young also said the superintendent ignores the advice and suggestions given by teachers, "many of whom possess superior academic qualifications, experience and knowledge."

He said four of the seven trustees on the board have been "brainwashed" to Ramsay's views.

"It is alleged by the four misguided trustees that I have failed to supply the district superintendent with statistics and information he requested," Young said. "This is a calculated misrepresentation.

"What I have done is to strongly question the necessity of digging out useless information. I have also resisted very strongly the superintendent's abuse of his authority in demanding silly information which has no possible relationship to what the students learn."

Young said the information requested concerns student ages, addresses, last schools attended — part of demands which have "practically paralyzed the normal administration of the school."

"Every public meeting held in Campbell River concerning this school has shown overwhelming public support for the school and its policies."

Roaming Dogs Kill 11 Sheep

DUNCAN — Two large marauding dogs early Friday killed 11 registered yearling sheep, two lambs and badly mauled 10 more sheep at Brackendale Farm owned by John Harris on Lakes Road.

Total loss amounts to about $1,000 said Mrs. Harris. The farm is located in the North Cowichan municipality but there will be no compensation from the municipality, she said.

Council several years ago stopped paying livestock claims. District agriculturalist Ken Jameson of Duncan said farmers in the unorganized areas receive compensation for livestock destroyed by unidentified marauding dogs from the provincial department of agriculture.

The compensation is based on the animal's age and whether it was grade or purebred. The payment ranges from about $20 to $25.

"People should not keep dogs and allow them to run at large," Jameson said. "It is getting to the stage that people in North Cowichan will not keep sheep any longer because of the risks of marauding dogs.

"People just will not be able to stand it any longer."

There are about 60 sheep on the farm.

Mrs. Harris said they discontinued raising geese because of trouble with dogs, but it was the first time that dogs attacked sheep on the farm.

Loggers Walk Out

The company's logging superintendent, Bruce King, said there was a conflict between fallers and sub-contractors. He said it was "a case of wind, not wages."

High winds buffetted central Vancouver Island all night and this morning. General practice of logging companies is to stop falling operations if wind presents hazardous conditions for loggers.

Moore told aldermen, council should take a hard look at this type of activity (teen dances) in a city-owned facility (the Courtenay Recreation Association Hall). He said if rowdiness continues perhaps the dances should be banned.

One more dance is scheduled for mid-April with a popular band coming to play, council was told.

Moore said the majority shouldn't suffer for the actions of a few and one more dance would be permitted.

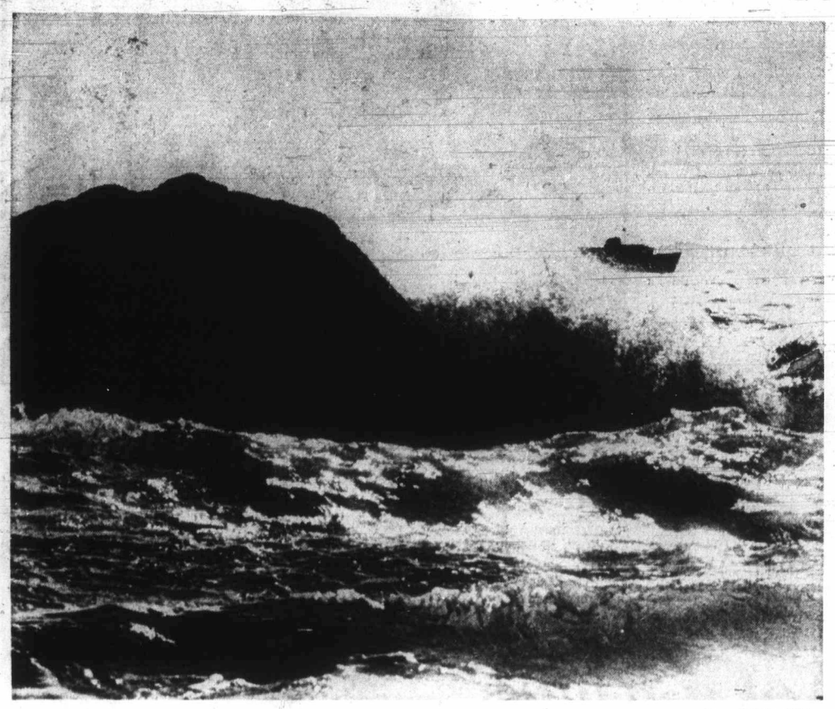

If the same result is apparent, the hall would be closed for such purposes, he said.

Hydro Expropriation

Land Valuation Price Doubled in Court Test

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

B.C. Hydro has been ordered by a County Court judge to pay a Munn Road property owner more than double the sum the crown agency first claimed was a proper price for the five-acre site.

Judge M. L. T. Drake, in a judgment handed down earlier this week, stated that $17,848.35 is the compensation that should be paid to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Borden for the property Hydro has expropriated for a powerline right-of-way.

Before Hydro got a cabinet order expropriating the land on Jan. 29, 1971, its top offer to the Bordens was $7,500.

First Tested

This is the first Hydro expropriation in the Munn Road area that has been tested at the level of a County Court judge.

Almost every property owner along Munn Road and the Highlands, where Hydro is putting through a new power system, has complained about the prices the Crown authority has paid for their land.

P. A. Codyre, 1890 Munn Road, likely is the best-known of the group. He is so inflamed over Hydro's prices and tactics that he has refused to leave his home and four acres that also have been expropriated.

Planned Home

However, the Bordens, who live at 2144 Ferndale Road, Saanich, hoped to eventually use their five acres at 2100 Munn Road for a new home.

When they refused Hydro's offer of $7,500, their property was expropriated by a provincial cabinet order. Under the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority Act, they had the right to ask for an appraisal by a government-appointed valuator and they did so.

The valuator, J. G. Ritchie of Victoria, reported that the replacement value of the Borden's property was $13,585, or roughly $6,000 more than Hydro's highest offer to the Bordens before it expropriated the property.

However, Hydro thought the Ritchie valuation was excessive and it ordered its lawyers to take the issue to a County Court judge. That is how the matter went before Drake, who has now set the value of the property at more than double Hydro's offer and $4,000 more than that of the government-appointed valuator.

Drake stated that while the five acres may now be a parcel of wild land, its price must be calculated on the basis of its highest and best use, which he said is that of a country homesite.

Not Impressed

The judge said the Ritchie valuation erred in that it spoke of market values. Compensation must represent the value to the owner of the property taken and not the cost of replacement, he said.

The judge stated he was not "particularly impressed" by the evidence of H. R. Jones, an appraiser whom Hydro called as a witness at the hearing. He valued the parcel simply as vacant land and based his value on a study of seven recent sales, admitting there were no exact comparisons.

Allen Keenleyside, another appraiser who was a Hydro witness, also made no allowances for various valuable intangibles such as topography, location or municipal services "nor did he search very far in the market area for comparable sites," said Drake.

Unique Nature

He then reviewed the evidence of P. J. Jackson, an appraiser who appeared on behalf of the Bordens.

"Not only did this witness recognize the somewhat unique nature of the property taken but he studied some 12 comparable properties and covered a wider area in his search for comparisons, thus indicating his knowledge of the realities of the real estate market in the southern Saanich Peninsula and the Highland district area," said the judge.

Drake said Jackson came to a market value that was only $30 away from the Ritchie estimate.

(The Bordens said they would have accepted the Ritchie estimate of $13,585 if Hydro had not taken them to court.)

Power Easement

The Jackson estimate did not include the 1.65 acres of Borden property already occupied by a power line easement. The judge noted Borden testified that the easement did not interfere with his enjoyment of the property and therefore, said Drake, the per acre value of $3,369.97 should apply to the whole area.

Added to that was $1,000 for improvements — Drake noted that a primitive road and a cabin on the property were used by the Bordens from time to time.

"I can find no special value to the owner over and above all the factors reflected in the market value and so find the compensation payable to the owners by the Authority to be $17,848.35," stated the judge.

Cost $6,000

Mrs. Borden said Friday the whole episode with Hydro has cost the family about $6,000. In addition, she said, Hydro has been flagrantly wasting taxpayers' money by being vexatious.

All of its lawyers and appraisers work at public expense, she stated.

Codyre said the outcome of the Borden case proves what he has been claiming for two years about Hydro's expropriation policies.

He also reiterated that B.C.'s expropriation laws need updating and the report of the B.C. Law Reform Commission on that topic will be tabled "until Hydro gets all the land it needs for its disgraceful powerlines."

Old Trick

"Provincial Secretary Wesley Black says the report needs more study," said Codyre. "It's just another old trick that is being pulled before the election. The government will take it out of mothballs again in two or three years."

The power line that will march through the properties formerly owned by the Bordens, Codyres and other persons along Munn Road is the system that has been strongly attacked by local municipal councils.

Langford Branch

Bank Stickup Man Flees with $600

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

A bank robber who used a withdrawal slip for his holdup note just before noon Friday in Langford didn't get his wish for "all big bills" because of the coolness of a bank teller who was going through her second holdup.

Instead, the "average-looking" robber got only about $600 from the Canadian-Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at 752 Goldstream before escaping in a car and eluding a police dragnet of more than 30 cars spread across southern Vancouver Island.

The robber was described as about 40, six feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, with dark curly hair and wearing a green ski jacket, light-colored slacks, dark shoes and dark sunglasses. He left in a light green, late-model sedan.

Staff Sgt. Lloyd Smith, officer in charge of the Colwood RCMP detachment, asked that anyone with information on the holdup man — either at the time of the robbery or since — phone his office at 388-3123.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 11:50 a.m. and printed these words on a withdrawal slip, "Hold Up. Live Longer. All Big Bills. Have Gun."

He gave the note to teller Mrs. Joyce Copeman, Happy Valley Road, saying nothing. She tried to stall and the man said something to the effect of "Let's get on with it."

Mrs. Copeman, who was robbed of about $6,000 during a 1966 holdup of a Vancouver bank where she was a teller, decided against giving him big bills and shoved a mass of small bills through the wicket instead.

The man took them in his hands, walked past the only other customer in the bank — a woman directly behind him — and went out the door.

He then ran across the small parking lot of the Westbrook shopping plaza, of which the bank is a part, got into a parked car and drove north. The woman customer ran to the front window and provided police with their only description of the car.

As Mrs. Copeman sounded the alarm, the officer in charge of the bank branch, Phil Lindsay, was talking on the phone to R. J. Walker, who manages both the Langford branch and one at 307 Goldstream in Colwood. Walker, in his Colwood office, heard: "Oh, it's an alarm. We're being held up."

Colwood RCMP were notified at once and passed the word on to RCMP headquarters in Victoria and police in Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and the RCMP detachments in Sooke, Sidney, Duncan and Shawnigan Lake.

Walker, who said three persons were working in the robbed branch at the holdup time, praised Mrs. Copeman for her coolness. He said the branch had never been robbed before.

It was the first bank robbery in Greater Victoria since Sept. 24, 1970, when a young Ontarian robbed a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch at Yates and Government and then went on a trail of terror that included two wounded Victoria policemen and six unhurt hostages.

The youth, who surrendered to U.S. authorities early Sept. 25 after holding some of the hostages in a boat that drifted across the border, was later sent to prison for 20 years.

Hear the Siren? Then Pull Over

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

Ask the average driver what he does when he hears sirens or sees flashing red emergency lights and he'll probably say he pulls his car over — and most of the time, he may be right.

But Oak Bay firemen have been reporting so many motorists ignoring emergency signals lately that Fire Chief Bill Pearson has issued a public appeal about the problem.

The chief estimates men of his department have gone on 70 emergency runs to date this year and says, that, during half or more of those runs, at least one driver did not pull over but, in fact, "just kept right on going."

How is it in other parts of Greater Victoria?

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons says go-ahead drivers are a problem on virtually every emergency run his department makes. Saanich Chief Glen Robbins says it isn't as much a problem in his area and spokesmen in Esquimalt and Langford say it is.

Pearson says firemen on a rig making an emergency run simply do not have the time to jot down the licence number of a go-ahead car.

He and other firemen say that the odd time a motorist is stopped for this offence, the answer is either "I didn't hear the siren" or "I didn't see the light" or "I didn't know I had to stop."

Well, the law is that drivers should pull over to the side of the road whenever an emergency vehicle is in their area — whether coming from behind or approaching. The penalty is several demerit points.

All departments said their men are warned they just can't go flat out. As Robbins said, firemen have a duty "to consider the public, too" — like the people with eyeglasses or hearing aids.

Robbins added the reason Saanich may not have the go-ahead problem to any great extent is that a police car travels in advance of every vehicle on an emergency run, clearing the way. Other departments agreed that was a good scheme but one chief said, "We shouldn't have to have police ahead of us to tell drivers to obey the law."

In Langford, the worst problem time is Sunday afternoon on the Trans-Canada Highway. Then, said one fireman, "nobody listens — and we have the loudest siren you can get."

Pearson and other spokesmen said they realized most drivers go along with the windows up and the radio on, which makes it difficult to hear a siren.

Campbell Praises Council Stand

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Reporter

At a special meeting Friday afternoon council decided to hold the line on indemnities for aldermen and increase that of the mayor by $100 a year.

"It was a very responsible position to take," Campbell said and noted it was the first municipal council to come within the proposed government guidelines limiting indemnity increases that are now before the Legislature in amendments to the Municipal Act.

The proposed indemnity bylaw when first introduced at open council Friday would have allowed an increase for aldermen from the current $700 to $1,000 a year and for Mayor Trevor Davis from $2,600 to $3,600.

Davis told council the proposed increase was "very modest" and noted the increasing responsibilities borne by council members.

"It is only a token compensation," he said, and emphasized that in "no way" did it begin to compensate aldermen for their responsibilities.

Ald. Neil Horth said that she had never measured her service to the community in terms of money.

"I'd be plain embarrassed to take a raise," Ald. H. A. Taylor said emphatically and noted there were many people in the municipality living on fixed incomes. Council was also trying to hold down costs.

The mayor pointed out the purpose of the bylaw was to provide "further compensation" for aldermen before indemnity-restricting legislation was passed in the Legislature.

Mrs. Horth said the indemnities could be raised at any time provided they came within the government guidelines.

Council decided to amend the bylaw so the indemnities for aldermen would be unchanged at $700 and that of the mayor's to be increased from the basic $2,600 to $2,700 a year.

Ald. Paul Grieve and the mayor opposed the decision.

Old Buildings Issue

Separate Groups Take Joint Aim

By BROCK KETCHAM
Colonist Reporter

Two separate groups of concerned citizens trying to achieve a similar goal in a confined area can lead to difficulties.

So, one of the citizen groups, which met Friday night to discuss ways in which old buildings in Victoria could be preserved, agreed on an amicable solution to the problem.

The newly-formed group, which has been named the Capital Region Heritage Foundation, decided to abandon a plan for setting up a formal organization.

Instead, it will attempt to join forces with the Greater Victoria Historic Building Foundation.

Spokesman for Foundation No. 2 — the newer one — is Sam Bawlf, the Victoria developer who specializes in restoring old buildings to contemporary use.

At Friday night's meeting, Bawlf told the 14 persons who attended that Foundation No. 1 — the historic building foundation — will be having a general meeting sometime after its board of trustees meets next Thursday.

Bawlf said Foundation No. 1 confines its interest to historic buildings while No. 2 would broaden its interest to all buildings of heritage value.

"Historic buildings tend to be historical monuments for persons or incidents," Bawlf said.

"Heritage buildings are those buildings which are of significance in broader social terms. They represent the heritage of our community ... and we must preserve a wider cross-section of our heritage."

Referring to Foundation No. 1, Bawlf said: "There are people who take a narrower definition of what is worth preserving. They have had the best of intentions but in a narrow context."

Another meeting was scheduled for 8 p.m. April 7 in the auditorium of South Park elementary school and Bawlf handed out copies of a proposed program.

Bawlf told the persons that Foundation No. 2 must establish definite objectives and attend Foundation No. 1's next meeting to present those objectives.

"It is not sufficient to preserve the heritage merely by going and lying in front of a bulldozer at a demolition site," he said.

Although both groups should join together and attempt to create a "groundswell of support," Foundation No. 1 will have to scrap its formal name, Bawlf said. He said the mention of historic buildings in the name narrows the organization's goal.

At the meeting, Mrs. Kathleen Ransom, of 450 Simcoe, Peter Cotton, of 649 Admirals, Esquimalt, and Robert Peden, of 908 Sioux Place, Esquimalt, were chosen to act as a correspondence committee.

They were instructed to write a letter to Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien asking for information on the Heritage Canada program and how local organizations could participate.

Search for Lost Boys Stopped by Police

Central Saanich police have discontinued their search for two boys missing on a fishing trip since March 16, police said Friday night.

Site Survey Will Be by Air

A survey of possible sites on Vancouver Island for the United World College of the Pacific will be made from a seaplane by Earl Mountbatten of Burma Tuesday afternoon.

Mountbatten, chairman of the International Council of United World Colleges, will make the flight over Vancouver Island during his visit to Vancouver next week, Bertram Butler of Victoria reported Friday.

Butler, chairman of the United World College ad hoc committee which is negotiating for a site for the college, said the seaplane will not touch down on the Island during the tour.

He said the earl will leave Vancouver harbor for the flight over Southern portions of Vancouver Island in a MacMillan Bloedel plane after a noon address to a joint meeting of the Canadian, Rotary and Lions clubs.

J. V. Clyne, chairman of the large forest products company, made arrangements to provide the plane and pilot, Butler said. Clyne will be chairman of the board of governors of Pacific College.

Butler said the site committee is studying "three or four" possible sites for the college, locations of which are not being disclosed because of possible land speculation.

Butler said, however, that the sites are located on southern portions of the Island but he was unable to comment on when a site would be chosen.

Target date for opening of the college is September, 1973, with 60 students from Pacific rim countries attending. Enrolment is expected to reach 300 by 1975.

It will be the third in the United World College system. An Atlantic college is in operation at St. Donat's Castle in Wales and a second is to open in Singapore this year.

Give Peace a Cha Heath Plea to Ulst

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fresh from announcing the imposition of direct rule by his Westminster government over turbulent Northern Ireland, appealed Friday night for Ulstermen of all religions to regard the British move as "a chance for peace."

Heath made his appeal in a television broadcast as angry militants of the majority Protestant community in Ulster threatened intensive — though for the time being peaceful — protests against suspension of the semi-autonomous Northern Ireland government.

The British Army alerted 4,000 additional troops in case of violence in Ulster where there already are 14,500 British soldiers and where 286 persons have died in violence in the last 32 months.

In the Irish Republic, Prime Minister Jack Lynch gave cautious approval to the British action by announcing the return to London of the Dublin ambassador, recalled after the Jan. 30 killing of 13 civilians during a demonstration in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city.

The underground Irish Republican Army rejected the British initiative and promised a continuation of its guerrilla campaign.

Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon said Friday that he ordered suspension of the Vietnam peace talks in Paris to break a 3½-year "filibuster" by the North Vietnamese.

"They refuse to negotiate seriously," he told a press conference. "They use the talks for the purpose of propaganda while we have been trying to seek peace."

But Nixon emphasized his readiness to resume the talks, either publicly or in secret channels, when Hanoi decides to negotiate seriously. Other press conference points:

- In Vietnam "an ominous enemy buildup continues," and communist attacks in the dry season are still expected.
- In the strategic arms limitation talks, the U.S. and Soviet Union are agreed in principle but "still very far apart on some fundamental issues — whether or not SLBMs (submarine-launched ballistic missiles) should be included (in an agreement), matters of that sort," Nixon said.

Silver Buck Will Cost A Mint

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint will issue a silver dollar dated 1972 for coin collectors, the finance department announced Friday. It will cost $3.

The coin will be double-struck to give sharper images, and will be made from an alloy of fine silver. Regular "silver" dollars are mainly nickel now, and smaller than they used to be, because of rising cost of silver.

the market area for comparable sites," said Drake.

Unique Nature

He then reviewed the evidence of P. J. Jackson, an appraiser who appeared on behalf of the Bordens.

"Not only did this witness recognize the somewhat unique nature of the property taken but he studied some 12 comparable properties and covered a wider area in his search for comparisons, thus indicating his knowledge of the realities of the real estate market in the southern Saanich Peninsula and the Highland district area," said the judge.

Drake said Jackson came to a market value that was only $30 away from the Ritchie estimate.

(The Bordens said they would have accepted the Ritchie estimate of $13,585 if Hydro had not taken them to court.)

Power Easement

The Jackson estimate did not include the 1.65 acres of Borden property already occupied by a power line easement. The judge noted Borden testified that the easement did not interfere with his enjoyment of the property and therefore, said Drake, the per acre value of $3,369.97 should apply to the whole area.

Added to that was $1,000 for improvements — Drake noted that a primitive road and a cabin on the property were used by the Bordens from time to time.

"I can find no special value to the owner over and above all the factors reflected in the market value and so find the compensation payable to the owners by the Authority to be $17,848.35," stated the judge.

Cost $6,000

Mrs. Borden said Friday the whole episode with Hydro has cost the family about $6,000. In addition, she said, Hydro has been flagrantly wasting taxpayers' money by being vexatious.

All of its lawyers and appraisers work at public expense, she stated.

Codyre said the outcome of the Borden case proves what he has been claiming for two years about Hydro's expropriation policies.

He also reiterated that B.C.'s expropriation laws need updating and the report of the B.C. Law Reform Commission on that topic will be tabled "until Hydro gets all the land it needs for its disgraceful powerlines."

Old Trick

"Provincial Secretary Wesley Black says the report needs more study," said Codyre. "It's just another old trick that is being pulled before the election. The government will take it out of mothballs again in two or three years."

Target date for opening of the college is September, 1973, with 60 students from Pacific Prim countries attending. Enrolment is expected to reach 300 by 1975.

It will be the third in the United World College system. An Atlantic college is in operation at St. Donat's Castle in Wales and a second is to open in Singapore this year.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives led by Premier Frank Moores, 39, scored a landslide victory over the Liberals in Friday's Newfoundland election, winning 33 of 42 legislature seats.

The outcome was seen as a return to political stability in this province of 525,000, where one political crisis followed another, after the indecisive Oct. 28 election.

The Conservatives bowled over the opposition from St. John's in the southeast to Labrador in the northwest to store their first majority victory in the 23 years since Newfoundland became a Canadian province.

Newfoundland had been a bastion of Liberalism from Confederation in 1949 until last October's election, which saw former premier Joey Smallwood's forces badly battered. But that battering wasn't enough to give Moores' Conservatives a majority in the 42-seat house.

The fears of many Newfoundlanders that Friday's vote would be a rerun of the October cliff-hanger were quickly dispelled as the Conservatives scored victories in traditional Liberal ground as well as PC ridings.

Two hours after the polls closed, all of Moores' cabinet members had been elected or were leading while only two

Bill 88 Shelved

'I've accomplished what I wanted . . . by getting the commitment from the two—the building trades and the federation'

Colonist Reporter

Bill 88 went down for the count Friday in what is being hailed in some quarters as a clearcut victory for labor over the provincial government.

But provincial Labor Minister James Chabot says he hasn't backed down at all, that he will resurrect the piece of potentially dangerous legislation if the construction unions haven't shaped up as promised by the end of this year.

Chabot said he decided to let the bill die on the order paper because he was impressed by the pledge of the unions to conduct a study of inter-union rivalry and seek a solution.

While this was somewhat less than he had originally demanded, Chabot said he is convinced labor means business and that there will be no more trouble this year at job sites.

Situation Modified

"You have to have faith in people," he told the Colonist, "and I think I have reason to have faith in both the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council and the B.C. Federation of Labor in this case."

Some political sources say Chabot's move can't be described as anything but a retreat. Their reactions range from "astounding back-off," to "compromise of a compromise."

Originally, Chabot had introduced Bill 88 as an amendment to the Trade Unions Act to remove restrictive clauses from agreements negotiated with employers. He said he wanted to end tight affiliation clauses that were keeping some unions off construction sites.

Last Tuesday he offered a compromise proposal that modified the situation a bit. He gave the 60,000-member building trades council a deadline of noon Friday to accept or reject.

When the deadline arrived he granted a two-hour extension and it wasn't until after 4:30 p.m. that he announced his decision.

The result was twofold: Immediately obvious was the avoidance of what appeared an almost certain confrontation between labor and government. Less noticeable but there just the same, is a slight cooling of election talk.

Confrontation Fear

Premier Bennett has made it clear before that he wouldn't hesitate to go to the people over a labor confrontation. But it is also known in the current case that not all government backbenchers were happy about Bill 88.

Some were said to fear confrontation because of the growing number of people such as teachers, public employees and others taking a stand against restrictive legislation.

Meeting at the same time were officers of the building trades council. Later officers of both met together, as they had the day before.

The 155,000-member federation had moved quickly to make sure the construction unions didn't act on their own. A united front was wanted and when Chabot received a telegram announcing the final decision, it was signed by both Jim Kinnaird, president of the council and George Johnston, president of the federation.

They said in the telegram many hours had been spent looking for recommendations Chabot would find satisfactory.

"This is, of course, an extremely complex problem affecting building trades unions and other unions in a variety of ways," the telegram said. "The building trades council does not have the power or the right to make a commitment without first having an opportunity for its affiliates to consult with their membership."

"Clearly, this could not be accomplished by today. We cannot emphasize strongly enough that the specific pro-

Give Peace a Chance Heath Plea to Ulster

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fresh from announcing the imposition of direct rule by his Westminster government over turbulent Northern Ireland, appealed Friday night for Ulstermen of all religions to regard the British move as "a chance for peace."

Heath made his appeal in a television broadcast as angry militants of the majority Protestant community in Ulster threatened intensive — though for the time being peaceful — protests against suspension of the semi-autonomous Northern Ireland government.

The British Army alerted 4,000 additional troops in case of violence in Ulster where there already are 14,500 British soldiers and where 286 persons have died in violence in the last 32 months.

The underground Irish Republican Army rejected the British initiative and promised a continuation of its guerrilla campaign.

But less extreme Roman Catholic politicians in the North promised serious consideration of Heath's program, which provides for administration of Northern Ireland by a British minister, aided by a commission made up of elements representing all sections of the community.

The British government's plan, announced in the House of Commons by Heath, also provides for eliminating internment of suspected IRA supporters in Northern Ireland, provided no new terrorism results and for plebiscites to test Northern Ireland sentiments on the question of remaining part of the United Kingdom or joining the republic to the south.

There are about one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics in the North.

Lynch expressed belief that the minority group in Ulster will accept the opportunity for peace presented by the Heath initiative and will be encouraged "in the right direction."

But Rev. Ian Paisley, a leader of militant Ulster Protestants, denounced what he termed the British government's failure to bring about complete integration of Northern Ireland with the rest of the United Kingdom.

Premier Brian Faulkner, though indignantly rejecting a London takeover of his Northern Ireland government's security powers, combined the resignation of himself and his cabinet with an appeal for order and dignity among Protestants in the face of direct rule.

Trudeau Would Take Connally 'for a Ride'

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday night Canada did not need enemies when it had friends like U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Trudeau made the comment, his second swipe at Connally in two days, when the host of a television hotline program asked about President Nixon's statement earlier in the day that trade talks with Canada were deadlocked because it was harder to negotiate with friends than with enemies.

"I didn't think we were hard to get along with, but I think we feel the same way ever since last August when they brought in these very tough measures against their friends and enemies alike.

"We felt that with friends like Secretary Connally, who needs enemies. We're tough negotiators, I suppose, and so are they," Trudeau said.

He said he was looking forward "very much" to Nixon's April visit to Canada, when trade is expected to be the main subject of discussion. After more than a year's negotiation, Connally vetoed a proposed package of revised trade arrangements with Canada on Feb. 9. No date has been set for a new round of talks.

When the moderator asked if Trudeau was going to "be tough" with Nixon, Trudeau's only reply was: "It will be a very pleasant visit. I'm sure."

He said he did not know if Connally would accompany Nixon, but "he would be very welcome if he comes. We would bring him for a drive . . . take him for a ride," Trudeau said with a smile.

On another question, Trudeau said the government was exercising "royal prerogative" in commuting to life sentences the death penalties of eight persons convicted of capital murder.

"If we did not exercise the royal prerogative, people

'Basic Disagreements'—Nixon

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon said Friday "some very basic disagreements" may remain between Canada and the United States after his April 13-14 talks with Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa.

Nixon told an impromptu White House news conference:

"I think it is very helpful that at this point we are meeting with our friends from Canada, although we will find that we have some very basic disagreements, probably, after the meeting as before."

From prior meetings with the prime minister, Nixon said he feels Trudeau "has some very constructive ideas to suggest."

Referring to deadlocked trade negotiations between the two countries, the president said it sometimes seems that the U.S. had more problems negotiating with its friends than with its adversaries.

Heart Surgery Delayed Fourth Time

The Wait Goes On

By JOHN MATTERS
Colonist Reporter

A 42-year-old Saanich man was told for the fourth time Friday that the open-heart surgery he is awaiting at Vancouver General Hospital has been postponed.

Len Ainey, 4055 Magdelin, had just got the word from his doctor when he was contacted by the Colonist to inquire whether the surgery scheduled for next week was still on the hospital books.

He said he had been told that the surgery now will be April 2 or April 23 — and both bookings are tentative.

"If anything, I expect it will be the 23rd," he stated. "I was not given a reason for this postponement but I anticipate persons more ill than I have had to be given priority."

He said he had made arrangements to be in Vancouver next week, including finding a housekeeper to look after the three children while he and Mrs. Ainey were away.

He has been off work for about 18 months, with his heart's pumping capacity declining after two veins on its outer wall became obstructed. The operation would involve grafting a vein over the obstructed segments, thus restoring a blood supply to the heart's muscles.

The Aineys have daughters aged 15 and 18 and a son, 8.

Family Life Looked at Through Lens

By LOUISE SWEENEY
Colonist News Service

"Happy families are all alike; unhappy families are all unhappy in different ways," says Leo Tolstoy in beginning Anna Kareniña.

This summer the American Film Insitutue (AFI) will offer an intensive four-week course on The Family on Film which will sweep through some of the most happy and unhappy cinematic families.

They range from the warm clan to Welsh miners How Green Was My Valley to the corrupt nest of Nazis in Luchino Visconti's The Damned. The seminar, designed for film educators, will be held at the AFI Centre for Advanced Film Studies, Beverly Hills from July 2 to 29.

List Short

When you think about how many films dealing with traditional families have been made in the last few years, the list is short. Diary of a Mad Housewife, The People Next Door, I Never Sang for My Father, are recent troubled examples of what sometimes seems to be a vanishing genre.

Filmgoers with long memories may wonder why we don't have films today like The Grapes of Wrath, You Can't Take It With You, or It's a Wonderful Life, which deal with the supportive love and even happiness possible within a family in spite of its problems.

Seminar director Joseph Dispenza, AFI education programs manager, had done some thinking about the way family films once were:

"L. B. Mayer had a family of stars, the people who worked under him he considered his children, he even liked to be called 'Daddy' by them. He planned for his child stars, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Freddie Bartholomew, to go through school at the studio.

"Today the M-G-M kind of family movie has been replaced by TV's domestic situation comedies. The American family is watching itself in the American living room. That has taken the place of things like Since You Went Away and the Andy Hardy series.

More Serious

"But the more serious films have always dealt with the family apart, with the breakdown of the parent-child relationship. Long Day's Journey into Night, which we're including in the seminar, is the quintessence of that kind of film.

Ted Perry, who will be part of the faculty of the seminar says, "Long Day's Journey on the surface is written about the family in crisis, but when you study it you realize the clashes in the family build out of the way the director (Sidney Lumet) moves the camera, the lenses he uses, etc. If only we had 60 films like that . . ."

Perry, who is chairman of the department of cinema studies at New York University, is joined on the seminar faculty by David Thaxton, West Point cultural historian.

War Films

Perry speculates on why there's a dearth of films about the family now (apart from TV): "At the times when problems are the most crucial, films are often not being made about them." (There has been much speculation on that theme about the lack of Vietnam war films.)

Perry speaks of another time and another place: "In Italy from 1942-1947 neo-realistic films about families and family problems were hardly shown in Italy. No one was interested in seeing them till afterward . . .

"It used to be," he continued, "when children stayed at home that the family was a viable unit . . . It's been a very short period of time, 25 years or so, since then. But now that kind of family, the large, cohesive family is an anachronism."

We talked for a few minutes about how the "tribal" family has emerged recently in real life as well as in films. Arthur Penn's Alice's Restaurant is a remarkable example of that kind of film, with den mother Alice Brock and her husband playing house in a desanctified church ringing with Arlo Guthrie and his hip friends.

Family Life Looked at Through Lens

By LOUISE SWEENEY
Colonist News Service

"Happy families are all alike; unhappy families are all unhappy in different ways," says Leo Tolstoy in beginning Anna Karenina.

This summer the American Film Insitutue (AFI) will offer an intensive four-week course on The Family on Film which will sweep through some of the most happy and unhappy cinematic families.

They range from the warm clan to Welsh miners How Green Was My Valley to the corrupt nest of Nazis in Luchino Visconti's The Damned. The seminar, designed for film educators, will be held at the AFI Centre for Advanced Film Studies, Beverly Hills from July 2 to 29.

List Short

When you think about how many films dealing with traditional families have been made in the last few years, the list is short. Diary of a Mad Housewife, The People Next Door, I Never Sang for My Father, are recent troubled examples of what sometimes seems to be a vanishing genre.

Filmgoers with long memories may wonder why we don't have films today like The Grapes of Wrath, You Can't Take It With You, or It's a Wonderful Life, which deal with the supportive love and even happiness possible within a family in spite of its problems.

Seminar director Joseph Dispenza, AFI education programs manager, had done some thinking about the way family films once were.

"Between 1935 and the early '40s films showed families very optimistically, particularly at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"L. B. Mayer had a family of stars, the people who worked under him he considered his children, he even liked to be called 'Daddy' by them. He planned for his child stars, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Freddie Bartholomew, to go through school at the studio.

"Today the M-G-M kind of family movie has been replaced by TV's domestic situation comedies. The American family is watching itself in the American living room. That has taken the place of things like Since You Went Away and the Andy Hardy series.

More Serious

"But the more serious films have always dealt with the family apart, with the breakdown of the parent-child relationship. Long Day's Journey into Night, which we're including in the seminar, is the quintessence of that kind of film.

Ted Perry, who will be part of the faculty of the seminar says, "Long Day's Journey on the surface is written about the family in crisis, but when you study it you realize the clashes in the family build out of the way the director (Sidney Lumet) moves the camera, the lenses he uses, etc. If only we had 60 films like that . . ."

Perry, who is chairman of the department of cinema studies at New York University, is joined on the seminar faculty by David Thaxton, West Point cultural historian.

War Films

Perry speculates on why there's a dearth of films about the family now (apart from TV): "At the times when problems are the most crucial, films are often not being made about them." (There has been much speculation on that theme about the lack of Vietnam war films.)

Perry speaks of another time and another place: "In Italy from 1942-1947 neo-realistic films about families and family problems were hardly shown in Italy. No one was interested in seeing them till afterward . . .

"It used to be," he continued, "when children stayed at home that the family was a viable unit . . . It's been a very short period of time, 25 years or so, since then. But now that kind of family, the large, cohesive family is an anachronism."

We talked for a few minutes about how the "tribal" family has emerged recently in real life as well as in films. Arthur Penn's Alice's Restaurant is a remarkable example of that kind of film, with den mother Alice Brock and her husband playing house in a desanctified church ringing with Arlo Guthrie and his hip friends.

New Serial Taps Peyton Place

The Peyton Place novel by the late Grace Metalious, which was tapped for a long series of nighttime programs by ABC, is the source of an all-new daytime drama serial, Return to Peyton Place that is scheduled to begin April 3 on NBC.

Broadway Shows Bust

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five of the first six plays to reach Broadway since Jan. 1 closed in short order after receiving notices ranging from glowing to awful.

In order, they were Fun City, There's One in Every Marriage, The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window, Wise Child and The Love Suicide at Schofield Barracks.

The only one that made a try at staying around as a result of fine reviews was There's One in Every Marriage, Canadian production in English of a farce by the old French master, Feydeau, that was imported by producer David Merrick. But it never caught on.

The trouble probably was that to sell a turn-of-the-century Feydeau farce in New York you had better have a couple of top stars in the cast, and the Canadian players, while excellent, were virtually unknown here.

Movie Ratings Problem

MLAs 'Wasting' Their Time

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist TV Writer

B.C.'s MLAs have lately been working hard on a committee down at the legislature on the problem of rating movies that will be seen in theatres — and I regret to inform them they are wasting their time.

Within a year, if Premier Cablevision of Canada and Optical Systems of California have their way, a pay-television system will be operating in Victoria, Vancouver and Coquitlam in B.C. as well as in Toronto, maybe Quebec and also several California cities.

The system's first big attraction to get cable-television subscribers to spend $15 or more for a scrambler that will bring in pay-TV will be the showing of first-run movies for maybe $1.50 a time.

Supposing the first of these was The French Connection, which is replete with four-letter words and gore. What would be the use of rating it for a few thousand people in theatres if it was seen at the same time by scores, even hundreds of thousands in their homes?

Tie-ins

The pay-TV people will have tie-ins with the theatre owners and movie distributors. So The French Connection would be shown in homes at the same time as it was in theatres, which is usually 7 and 9 p.m. What would be the use of preceding it with a black-cat warning if it was shown when young children were still up?

And even if pay-TV doesn't make the efforts of the MLAs a waste of time, CBS will.

The explanation of that is, roughly, that 1971-72 was supposed to be the year of big names and slick productions. But the names failed and the slick productions fell short while All in the Family remained king and the CBS late movies, starting Feb. 14, provided what seemed to be the main new trend.

They have been a ratings success — across the U.S., the first two weeks of the late CBS shows doubled the audience share that CBS got from the Merv Griffin talkfest, which the films replaced.

Better Quality

In fact, the late audience increased in number as more people stayed up to watch films they thought would be of better quality than the usual late movies shown by individual stations.

As well as All in the Family, this has been the season of reduced network control of primetime, increased low-quality syndicated shows, a virtual end of variety hours, a shortage of sponsor money after the end of cigarette commercials and even the slow death of daytime soap operas.

But in the long run, it may be remembered as the year CBS brought X-rated films to TV in its late-night package, starting with The Damned, Luchino Viscounti's 1969 story of a degenerate family in Nazi Germany shown Feb. 28 at 11:30 on Channels 7 and 12.

Despite a fantastic total cut of 36 minutes, almost entirely X-rated material, several gamy sequences remained.

Martin Berger, playing the transvestite son who became family head, first appeared in a drag imitation of Marlene Dietrich with CBS and Warners (the distributors) felt was vital if the viewer was to understand the story—a point with which I agree.

Michael Is a Girl!

This, no one needs to be told, is a picture of a girl. However, it is also a picture of Michael O'Hara IV, the character portrayed by actress Jo Ann Harris in a two-part mystery to be seen on World of Disney this Sunday and the one after. Viewing times are 6 p.m. on Channel 2 and 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Hints of two child molestations by Berger were seen on CBS but graphic illustrations were deleted. So was the suicide of a Jewish child, which caused Berger to become a strong person. Its deletion on TV left the viewer clueless about this key plot turn.

While bits of the Night of the Long Knives and its preceding orgy were seen, most of the homosexual implications and gore were gone. So were all of the nude scenes.

Two man-woman bed sequences were cut entirely, apparently due to waist-up nudity and so was the incest sequence between Berger and "mother" Ingrid Thulin, although a couple of tiny hints of their incestous relationship remained.

The Damned, by the way, was the only X-rated film among the first 175 bought by CBS, mostly from Warners and MGMs, as late movies.

Big Factor

Warners cut 25 minutes and CBS cut 11 more. The network said it ran the film because it told "an important story — the decay of a civilized nation" and added the big factor in cutting was making the original movie conform to TV standards and needs.

I agree the story was important and TV standards should have been the main factor in cutting. But who decides needs?

TV history has been that CBS, part of a relatively small conglomerate, led the U.S. networks ratings race every year for more than a decade until NCB, part of the huge RCA conglomerate, began to catch up a couple of years ago.

Profits from TV have meant more to CBS than they have to NBC and this has made CBS the leader in programming trends, with the other imitating CBS winners.

If the late movies remain a ratings success, which they seem bound to, there is no doubt in my mind the flow of X-rated movies to TV will increase — even without pay-TV. For just one thing, most movies not yet seen on TV are in the restricted or X categories.

CBS needs the money and will continue to insert such films into the 11:30 slot. Eventually the public will get used to the idea — especially after the films have been seen so often on the networks they are sold to individual stations.

If the film is The Damed, an individual station may not show the 25 minutes cut by Warners but my guess is the 11 minutes cut by CBS will be back.

The Damned has opened the floodgates and the only question is how much time will pass before the trickle becomes a flood. If pay-TV shows X-rated films uncut, 1973 will be the year of the flood; if not, it will be a matter of waiting until one or more networks needs flood-sized money.

So why are B.C. MLAs wasting their time on ratings for theatres? If ratings are needed, who's going to put X on movies seen on television? Is the answer nobody?

Picking Up Good Vibes

Jazz buffs face a feast at 9:30 p.m. Monday on Channel 8 in a half-hour special stressing their favorite music. Lionel Hampton is the main star with Johnny Mercer the host and Gene Krupa, Teddy Wilson, Joe Bushkin and others as the sidemen. It'll be energetic and, hopefully, will lead the way to a swinging series.

U.S. Networks Watch ABC Narrow Gap

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The Once-Over: Along the network corridors, they are talking about the emergence of ABC this year into a strongly competitive position. Time was, Milton Berle was cracking jokes about the best way to end the war.

"Put it on ABC," Berle would say, "and it'll be cancelled in 13 weeks."

For years, ABC lingered along as the third network, the one with fewer affiliated stations and an obvious handicap in nailing down impressive ratings. Now this is changing and with it the network's perennial runner-up status. "We have a tremendous momentum going," says Jim Duffy, president of ABC.

Major Thrust

Undoubtedly, the innovation of Monday Night Football provided a major thrust. When ABC elected to take its nine cameras and imaginative techniques and Howard Cosell into the arena, Pete Rozelle, exalted high lama of the NFL, turned philosopher and proclaimed: "The family that watches pro football together stays together."

Dick Cavett, in the last year, has emerged as a late-night asset for the network. And Harry Reasoner, acquired from CBS, has added strength (along with a touch of wit) to "ABC News, which has narrowed the gap long maintained by NBC and CBS.

Powerhouse

ABC also provided the most talked about of the season's TV movies in Brian's Song...a powerhouse in the ratings and critically acclaimed as well. ABC, to its credit, is still experimenting and the mid-season shifts will bring several new shows of promise — the Monday night specials, the ABC Comedy Hour and The Sixth Sense, with dramatized investigations into extrasensory perception.

Color TV Sales Soar

The latest NBC estimate on the number of color television sets reports that 32.8 million U.S. Households were so equipped as of Jan. 1. That is 52.6 per cent of video households. The year 1971 saw 5.2 million homes added to the color parade.

More Freedom for Ticket Brokers

Theatre Study Proposes Step Backward

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — For old Broadway hands, there is some wry humor to be found in the city-state-sponsored "study of the New York theatre" that has raised the hackles of various groups that feel they have been ignored in its suggestions for improving the lot of the stage, financially and otherwise.

The humor stems from the first two of 19 recommendations to better the theatrical scene.

The first seeks repeal of city and state regulations inhibiting the sale of theatre tickets, which has to do largely with giving more freedom to ticket brokers.

Tickets Unsold

Well, the Broadway theatre once had such benefits, back in the 1920s and early 1930s.

Those were the days when the brokers, who charge a premium ($1.50 today) over the box-office price of a ticket to customers, were a major, free-wheeling adjunct of the theatre.

They were, in a sense, "partners" of many producers. Actually, they financed numerous shows by making "buys" of large blocks of tickets for promising forthcoming productions for many weeks. They could charge their customers whatever the traffic would bear for these choice seats.

Poor Relation

There were, of course, some evils in the system. There were under-the-counter payments to box-office treasurers for preference; producers themselves might get into the act beyond having an advance guarantee of broker money to help them finance their productions. There were complaints that the ordinary playgoer was shut out for long periods from getting prime tickets to hits.

So, in the early 1930s, the "buy" was legislated out of existence, which resulted in a revolution in the matter of financing shows. Most producers had to scrounge for financing from the general public — investors, "angels" — the system that prevails today. Many shows have dozens of scores of backers.

The broker became a somewhat poor relation, especially when, not long after the "reformation," the theatre party agent became an ever-growing power. These agents buy, in advance, whole or partial houses of promising productions for weeks or months in behalf of charitable organizations seeking to raise money.

It was the "buy" in a different form. And a more expensive one. For the premiums over the box-office price that these organizations extracted from their members and other were, and are, much in excess of what brokers charged in the old days.

Ruled Roost

Actually, the general public is worse off now than in the days when the brokers ruled the roost in the case of hit shows. The brokers never controlled all of the seats for a performance. Theatre parties may absorb all seats for five or six performances of a week's eight for many weeks.

Producers have come to accept the theatre party sales as a necessity to insuring a certain length of run even though the critics' notices may be mixed or wholly adverse. However, this is not, as it was with the brokers' buys, "front money" that can be used to finance productions.

The theatre party system has cut brokers' allotments of tickets to hits to the bone.

Old-Time Buy

The "study" does not recommend a return to the old-time buy, but it asks for repeal of various city and-or state regulations hampering brokers, especially those preventing them from selling anything but theatre tickets and limiting them to $1.50 a ticket.

As for the last-minute disposal of tickets that otherwise would be unsold — in short, selling them at reduced prices:

In the 1920s and into the early 1930s there was the wonderful Lebland Ticket Agency in the basement of Grey's drugstore at 43rd Street and Broadway where one could shop shortly before curtain time any night and get tickets for a variety of attractions at a hefty discount.

This was vastly helpful to many shows. It expired largely due to the crackdown on ticket agency buys, for much of the Lebland ticket supply came from last-minute "dumping" of tickets by agencies that had not been able to dispose of all of the tickets to which their buys had committed them.

Could it be that, after all, there was something good about those bad old days?

My First Business Venture Folds

Inside the Tube With Bill Mahan

Having participated in every conceivable phase of film-making — including writing, directing, producing, acting, film editing — and not having been successful in anything, I decided it was time to stop nurturing failures and put my money where it would do some good, preferably not where my mouth had been.

A good rule of thumb I'd been told is never to invest money in something you know nothing about. Since I'd reached that point in life when I knew I'd better stop talking and start listening, I also knew that I knew nothing about anything but the entertainment business. That's where I should invest all right. But where do you go with $125?

Then it came to me. The mail order business. I would get into the mail order business and sell my years of failure. I could tell people how to break into any phase of the entertainment world. Where to go, who to see, how to get in, who the agents were, the good ones the bad ones. All I would have to do is write a marvellous ad and put it in one of the movie magazines.

After careful study of all the current magazines on the stand, I opted for one which had well over a million circulation, plus all the girls that read it under the hair dryers in beauty shops.

I titled my ad "New Faces" and ran a two-incher. It read: "Don't Come to Hollywood Cold. Don't expect to be discovered unless you know who to see and where to go.

I have personally produced theatrically released motion pictures and television shows. I have seen young talented people fall tragically by the wayside because they couldn't get to producers, directors, agents—the people who count!

"I offer you now, for the first time, actual names — who to see, how to get to see them, plus many valuable 'ins and outs' of Hollywood known only to those who've risen to the top! Now you can have the vital information the Hollywood 'In' crowd has spent years finding out the hard way. Don't let your talent die on the wrong side of a closed door. Send $3 now to: New Faces, Box 1552, Hollywood Calif."

Reluctantly, I wrote my cheque for $125, dropped it and the ad copy in the mail and waited. It took two months for the ad to see print and through that period all my co-workers (I was then working as an assistant film editor on Here Come the Brides at Screen Gems) and I speculated on my soon-to-be new-found riches. We waited for a week after the magazine came out to check the post office box. It took all my self-discipline not to run over and check every day but I knew no mail could possibly have arrived so soon.

Finally, the week was up and six of us headed for the Hollywood Post Office. As we raced toward Box 1552, it was obvious it was full of mail — we could see it through the glass window. My friends were so tightly crowded around that I could barely get the key in the slot and when I did we all grabbed at once.

But none of the mail was addressed to New Faces. It was all for the box next to mine. The postal clerk had made a mistake.

We checked every day for a week and nothing came through. Finally, I wrote myself t letter to see if the box was working. The letter came through. My friends who'd lauded the scheme turned Monday morning quarterbacks. The ad was too long, they said, too close to Christmas, $3 was too expensive. They lost interest and I had to do all further checking alone.

I never received one answer. I still check now and again. And I haven't lost the art of listening. If anybody wants that information for $1, they can have it.

First of Its Kind

All of the U.S. networks are trying out proposed series these days and one in the coming week stars veteran Jack Warden and youngster Christopher Stone as private eyes named Wheeler and Murdock. It's on Channel 4 at 9 p.m. Monday and its unique feature is that it was the first network pilot filmed in Seattle.

French Comedy Bought

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arthur Cantor, co-producer with Roger L. Stevens of Captain Brassbound's Conversion, has acquired the American rights to a French comedy by Jean-Claude Carriere that ran for two seasons in Paris under the title of L'Aide-Memoire.

ABC Signs Up Anita Bryant

Sinatra Talked Back to Work

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — James Daly of Medical Centre and Jane Bogart, wife of director Paul Bogart and mother-in-law of actor Elliott Gould, are partners in a new antique shop and "country store" in very rich country, Pacific Palisades, a Los Angeles suburb frequented by the stars.

Since Medical Centre was on hiatus, Daly himself was in the shop when I stopped by a day or two before the grand opening, arranging his wares and wondering whether they weren't priced too low.

Some experts in the field had warned him that his English biscuit barrels were underpriced, and I, though no expert, was inclined to agree.

Their rule of thumb is: "There's nothing for sale here we wouldn't be pleased to use and live with."

On opening day their piece de resistance was a partners' desk which they as partners were putting to practical use. When it sells, I bet they'll miss it.

Tina Sinatra comforted herself with so many calories after her break with Bob Wagner, she had to shed pounds by way of Duke Hospital's famous rice diet.

Meanwhile it was Fritz Lowe, frank Sinatra's near neighbor in Palm Springs, who gave Sinatra the music from an upcoming Lerner and Lowe show and talked him into starring in the production.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Assuming Frank doesn't change his mind about the deal, his short retirement will be over.

□

At the same time, Desi Jr. continues to tell the world that Lisa Minnelli is the first girl he has ever wanted to marry.

And again at the same time, Patty Duke reports from Duluth, Minn., where she's making a movie for Universal, that she's glad it was John Astin and not Desi at her bedside when she was hospitalized there with a kidney complaint.

For the Thalians' beautiful Viennese Ball, Debbie Reynolds crammed herself into the pink, green and white Victorian gown she wore in the movie How the West Was Won, made 10 years ago when her 22-inch waist was four inches smaller.

Through sheer grit, she fastened herself into the bodice with its 18-inch circumference at the waistline. But, during the dancing, she confessed to friends that she couldn't stand the pinch any longer.

"Please help me out," Debbie asked.

Obliging chums unhooked or unzipped or unbottoned the back, and a relieved Debbie danced the rest of the evening with a shawl draped over her shoulders to hide the gap in her gown.

Proceeds from current Thalian events are earmarked for an $8 million mental health centre.

The Homecoming

Very few people take a TV crew with them when they go back to the old home town. ABC newsman Harry Reasoner did and the result will be seen at 8 p.m. Monday on Channel 4 in an ABC Monday Special on A Small Town in Iowa. The town name is Humboldt and the show is the second of six by Reasoner looking at various aspects of life in the U.S.

Show's Demise Rankles Star

By JOSEPH THESKEN

HOLLYWOOD — The cancellation of Bracken's World by NBC-TV still rankles Elizabeth Allen, who appeared in the former series as talent scout Laura Deane.

Much water has flown over the dam since that time a few seasons ago but the actress becomes animated when she talks about the show being dropped.

Miss Allen, who now is touring in Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? discussed the demise of Bracken's World during an interview.

"That was a real shocker," she exclaimed. "I was on a public relations tour when I heard the show was cancelled. I couldn't believe it.

"I mentioned it on a talk show in Chicago and the switchboard lit up like a Christmas tree, the viewers were so astonished.

"The show wasn't doing badly in the ratings and there was something to it. It gave the people a good view of what Hollywood was like, how it is in a movie studio. It was authentic."

Why would NBC-TV kill the program under those circumstances?

The actress has her own theory, which she doesn't mind disclosing.

"I know what happened," she replied. "NBC had bought a package, 15 shows called the Strange Report. It was made in England with English players.

"The network looked around for a spot to place it in the programming. Unfortunately, it was decided to replace Bracken's World because we were an hour show.

Classic Plays to Be Filmed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Columbia Pictures and the American Express Co. have agreed to create The American Film Theatre, a venture which will produce movie versions of classical plays and distribute them to theatres on a subscription basis.

In its initial season, the group plans to make at least eight films, including Harold Pinter's The Homecoming, Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream and Eugene O'Neil's The Iceman Cometh. The first film is expected to premiere in October.

An estimated 500 participating theatres in the United States and Canada are taking part in the plan.

Ely Landau, who has produced plays such as The Pawnbroker and The Madwoman of Chaillot, will be in overall charge of film production, while Columbia will handle distribution and American Express will take care of promotion and ticket sales.

Miss Sally Says Romper Room Has Education as Main Goal

By JOSEPH THESKEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Miss Sally, the pretty brunette who presides over Romper Room, is a young lady with definite ideas about the education of children.

"One thing the kids need today is to be challenged and to be a part of their surroundings, instead of just spectators," she commented during an interview.

"In Romper Room the children at home must participate. We don't want them to sit in front of their TV sets like bumps on a log," she said. "Instead of teaching at the children, we teach with them."

She said the goal of Romper Room has always been one of education rather than entertainment.

"Romper Room has been on the air 19 years but the show on television today is not nearly the same as the one years ago," she added.

"We keep up with the latest in educational trends and theories. We feel we have a responsibility to educate those who watch the show. There are a lot of entertaining children's programs but not many that concentrate on educating youngsters.

"For example, the trend in education today is toward perceptual motor development. This sounds awfully forbidding but it simply deals with a child's motor skills, the messages that go from the brain to his hands and legs and enable him to function properly.

"Much of our programs make use of perceptual motor skills, teaching the youngsters how to perform certain things."

In private life Miss Sally is Mrs. Ken Gelbard. Professionally she is known as Sally Rogers, but to the millions of children who watch Romper Room in the U.S. and abroad, she is simply Miss Sally.

Greene Says Bonanza 'Beats Picking Cotton'

Greene was asked how he felt about his long run as Papa Cartwright.

Answer — Not at all. It all comes quite naturally after all these years.

Q. Are you bored with playing the same role year after year?

A. It's something you have to watch out for all the time.

Q. How do you combat boredom?

A. By doing a great many other things.

Q. For instance?

A. I've done three television movies in the past three years. I appeared on the Sonny and Cher Show and I did the documentary on Shoot-Out at the O.K. Corral.

Q. But how do you fight lethargy when shooting Bonanza?

A. I try to find things in the script that excite my mind.

Q. For example?

A. I come up with one little piece of business that will give the audience an insight into how I feel. There are many choices, an infinite variety, but only one is precisely correct.

Q. Does Bonanza tie you down more than you like?

A. Actually it's not as demanding as it used to be. When we started the show we had only an eight-week hiatus because we made 34 shows a year. Now we only film 26 episodes a season.

Q. How else do you break the monotony?

A. I give speeches. Once I get involved in the preparation of a speech I devote hours and hours to the project without giving a thought to Bonanza.

Q. Do you still make a number of public appearances each year?

A. Not as many as I did in the past with Dan Blocker. Now I appear solo at five or six rodeos around the country, singing and chatting.

Q. Have you changed the character of Cartwright over the years?

A. Hell yes. I have a print of the pilot show. I used to be a bombastic, eye-rolling tyrant. I was humorless and terrible. Not any more.

Q. You weigh 50 pounds less than when the show went on the air. How did you accomplish that?

A. Well, I go to Duke University and go on their special diet program. Then I walk four or five miles a day in the canyon where I live. I also swim in the pool and play tennis every week.

Q. Would you like to do another series?

A. I'm loyal to Bonanza because it's done so much for me. And as Blocker says, it sure beats picking cotton.

Julie Andrews News Good

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is good news that Julie Andrews will star in a one-hour weekly variety series for the ABC network during the 1972-73 season, but one wonders if it wouldn't be a better policy to have her do only two shows month. That weekly grind is a tough thing to keep at first-class level no matter how big or good the star.

Danny Kaye Starts Animated Series

Happiest of the Easter specials on television could be the second of Danny Kaye's new series of animated musical hours on ABC, this time Here Comes Peter Cottontail. Air time is set for 8 p.m. Thursday on Channel 4 and the show comes only a few weeks after a new version of The Emperor's New Clothes, wherein Kaye returned to TV as host and character voice.

Burr Unveils Super Wheelchair

LONDON (CP) — Actor Raymond Burr, who plays a wheelchair detective in the popular U.S. television series Ironside, attended the unveiling Thursday of an electrically-powered wheelchair billed as a major advance toward making handicapped persons more mobile.

The mechanism, on which a variety of chairs can be mounted, was introduced at a news conference attended by Lord Snowdon and Burr.

Burr, a native of New Westminster, praised what was billed as a new invention in which a prominent role was ascribed to Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret.

The artificially-powered wheelchair is equipped with a hand-controlled mechanism and is essentially a battery-powered mobile platform which can accommodate various types of chairs.

The new mechanism will allow the physically handicapped to move around homes, offices and factories in a chair of their choice.

389 Schools Ready To Plug In

Cable TV Now Teaching Aid

By ALAN MERRIDEW
(Copley News Service)

SAN DIEGO — Educators here say they lead the nation in applying cable television teaching.

Experts predict the future impact of cable television on education will be enormous.

CATV, without fanfare, started sending lessons into some San Diego schools last October.

● A $2-million-plus microwave-CATV system to interconnect 389 schools and junior colleges in San Diego County, scheduled to start operating next year.

● A mixed media program which would allow people to study at home for University of California at San Diego, San Diego State College and junior college extension credit courses.

High Speed

They can also carry two-way — "upstream" as well as "downstream" — traffic, radio programs and high-speed data.

"Upstream" use over the next few years will probably be experimental, industry spokesmen say.

The San Diego area Instructional TV Authority (ITVA) and Mission Cable Co. started delivering prerecorded lessons to schools via cable on a regular basis Oct. 4.

Nearly all other programs which CATV now pipes into homes and schools are picked off the air.

ITVA delivers tapes to Mission Cable's central origination point to be fed into the cable.

The 40 schools now hooked into Mission Cable's system can get about three hours of nonbroadcast cable lessons a day. These are mainly repeats of lessons broadcast over the air for ITVA but delivered at different times and on different days.

Wider Use

"It allows wider use to be made of the more popular materials."

Clayton said the project had already shown present CATV facilities can deliver nonbroadcast programming "without excessive cost — in fact, free to us — to either the cable company or the authority."

ITVA works under a joint powers agreement between school districts and the county education department, which finance it — this year to the tune of a projected $350,000.

Clayton said that to his knowledge CATV is not being used anywhere else in the U.S. to originate educational instructional programs.

"We're looking forward to CATV's expanding to more schools," he said.

"I see its potential as a communications system supplementing, but no replacing, present teaching techniques.

"The potential goes well beyond televised programs," Clayton said.

"We're using these programs to develop the logistics, to develop an idea of how to move next, to think about the feasibility of two-way systems."

Two-way sound and visual CATV will be quite complicated to use educationally, Clayton said.

"I know it sounds terrific," he said, "but I do know that when you've just sending out from a central location to several schools, your problems are bad enough.

Open School

"But if there's feedback, the logistic problems are going to be tremendous.

"It'll take a heck of a lot of time to sort it out."

Clayton thinks an open school system in which students would watch a lot of their lessons at home "will be a long time coming," he said.

"There are too many hurdles to jump before such a drastic change in education," he said.

Opportunities

The other main approach to exploiting CATV educationally in San Diego involves California's three tiers of higher education.

The University of Califirnia, the State Colleges (universities) and the junior colleges are co-operating to find ways to extend learning opportunities to people who have left school.

"If we find there is a demand for them, courses will start this year," Jones said in an interview.

"They will be credit courses in extension at the three levels. We're experimenting with ways to blend them."

The initial study is funded by a $76,000 grant from the State Colleges' central office of continuing education.

Jones said the group would seek federal funding, and added, "Nixon's office is aware of it."

Jones said the "Networks for Knowledge" project "aims to find ways to give educational opportunity to those not now involved in further education."

A secondary task — one Jones said was still years off — is to see what scope there is for an external degree program or programs — that is, studying for a degree without attending college or not often.

"We see cable as having a fantastic potential in higher education," Jones said.

"And especially for people who cannot go to school because they're working, or who can't go at night because of family obligations or distance."

The group is studying the possibilities of using some of the British Open University techniques "for several multi-level course uses in Southern California," Jones said.

Great Potential

"We think that CATV has great potential for this — if there is the demand for the courses," he said.

Thus, people may be able to study for external credit using combinations of KPBS-TV over-the-air broadcasting, CATV, radio, counseling, correspondence, telephone and tutoring.

San Diego is "a unique and proper" place to try the experiment in the United States, he said, because it has the country's biggest cable system and prospects or great cable expansion.

Jones and Dr. Martin Chamberlain, UCSD's assistant chancellor for external studies, visited Britain last year to examine the open university.

The open university started a year ago to offer adults a chance to continue their education without giving up other pursuits.

Its students attend study centres—there are about 250 in the country — for tutoring, counselling and tapes of radio and TV programs which they missed. They have to spend a week at summer school on a traditional campus.

According to reports in scientific and educational journals, the open university's first year was a sound success.
